
Blood donor

Bryan Crites, 605 Holly Hill, took time Tuesday night to donate a unit of blood for the Red Cross blood bank. The blood drive, held at the First United Methodist Church, obtained 88 units of blood, according to Anita Woods, volunteer chairman. The goal was 140 units. Another drive is being held today at Broadway Methodist Church in Scott City. Another blood drive will be held here in October.

Carter attacks Ford-Butz farm and consumer policies

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Carrying his campaign to the Midwest, Jimmy Carter said today the Ford administration has neglected the family farmer and American consumer and has failed to establish a stable agricultural policy.

"We need to take agricultural leadership in Washington out of the hands of the corporate interests and the grain speculators," Carter said in a speech prepared for delivery at the Iowa State Fair.

"We need a president and a secretary of agriculture who understand the problems of the family farmer and the consumer — and if I am elected, we're going to have both.

The peanut farmer from Plains, Ga., who is confident he has a strong chance of winning in President Ford's native Midwest, made Des Moines his last stop on a four-day campaign trip. Aides said he would try to capitalize on what he believes is significant discontent in the farm belt over Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and the administration's farm program.

He has attacked Butz as a supporter of big agricultural businesses, lacking understanding and support for small farmers.

"We need to close the revolving door between the agriculture department and the large special interests," Carter said.

"If I am elected, we will make sure that our support prices are at least equal to the cost of production. That will not guarantee profit — no real farmer wants that — but it will give the determined farmer a chance to stay in business."

Alan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau, criticized Carter's tactics.

"Most farmers are for Earl Butz because of his attitude toward farming and the free market system," said Grant, whose membership includes 2.5 million farm families in state farm bureaus.

Grant was questioned Tuesday in Springfield, Mass., about reports that Carter would attack Butz. "They'll lose on that," he said.

He said the issue of family farms vs. large corporations "comes up every four years, but the facts remain the same." He said that the ratio of family-run to corporate-owned farms has remained about steady during the last three decades.

"The farmer himself will save his farm, if the government allows the free market to function," Grant said.

The Democratic presidential nominee also attacked export embargos placed on agricultural products by the Nixon and Ford adminstrations in the last three years, calling them "a record of unparalleled incompetence.

"It's not my idea of a fair shake when the government promotes foreign sales and then cuts them off for political convenience.

"It's not my idea of a fair shake when inside speculators, with special connections in the agriculture department, make windfall profits on grain deals while the producer himself sells at a loss."

Carter had said Tuesday night when he met with representatives of two dozen national farm organizations that if elected president he would never authorize an embargo singling out foreign shipment of U.S. farm products.

"Under my administration, if I'm elected, there will never be another embargo that singles out farm products," the former Georgia governor said during the meeting with representatives of such groups as the National Farmers Organization, Farmers Union, National Grange, American Farm Bureau and National Corn Growers Association.

Embargoes on shipments of U.S. grain, particularly last October's embargo on shipments to Russia, have been a sore point with many farmers who claim they lost money because of them. The administration has said that no farm sales were lost because all available ports and ships were tied up at the time of the embargoes.

Carter also said that, if elected, he would do what he could to clean up what he called "the dirty situation" in the country's grain inspection system.

An ongoing federal investigation of the grain export business in New Orleans has resulted in the conviction of more than 50 grain companies and individuals.

After his arrival Tuesday evening, Carter spoke to a crowd of about 5,000 persons who attended a rally on a farm near Des Moines.

3 charged with sex soliciting

NEW MADRID — Three itinerant black women in their 20's, suspected of soliciting sex at Scotty's S & C Truck Plaza, located at the Highway 80 interchange on Interstate 55, were arrested at 1:30 a.m. today by New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Ronnie Adams.

Adams said he was notified by personnel at the truck stop that the women were harrassing truck drivers on the parking lot.

The women, identified as Linda Caldwell, Ruth Johnson and Linda R. Martin, were traveling in a car bearing California license plates but claimed to be residents of Georgia, Florida, California and other points.

A misdemeanor charge of prostitution was filed against them in New Madrid County Magistrate Court, and they were released after posting bonds of $25 each.

Conran man hurt seriously

Two persons were injured, one seriously, in separate traffic accidents Tuesday, according to the highway patrol.

A Conran man suffered serious injuries in an accident at 2 a.m. Tuesday on Highway 162, six miles east of Portageville.

The accident occurred when the driver of an eastbound pickup truck, Gary Don Mattingly, 27, of Conran, ran though a stop sign at a "T" intersection, drove 300 feet into a soybean field and overturned. Mattingly lay in the field until 7 a.m. Tuesday when a passing motorist reported the accident.

Mattingly suffered serious injuries and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital by the Portageville City Ambulance. He will be transferrred to Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

An accident at 12:20 p.m. Tuesday on a city street in Lilbourn resulted in minor injuries to a Lilbourn girl on a

U.S. demands North Korea punish killers

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United States demanded today that North Korea punish the soldiers who hacked to death two U.S. Army officers at the Panmunjom truce village a week ago. North Korea proposed physical separation between Communist and allied guards at Panmunjom to prevent clashes like the fight in which the two Americans perished.

The U.S.-led United Nations command declared the separation proposal "may be a positive step" and would be studied in detail — but said it meanwhile expects punishment of the North Koreans who killed the Americans in a dispute over pruning a tree.

"I have called this meeting for one purpose ... to inform you that our side calls for punishment of those responsible for the murder of the two UNC officers," U.S. Rear Adm. Mark P. Frudden told the North Koreans during a 48-minute session of the joint commission which oversees the 23-year-old

Garrison adds Stoddard attorneys to defense

BLOOMFIELD — Two Stoddard County attorneys this week agreed to act in the defense of Dr. Norman A. Garrison Jr. of Corinth, Miss., charged with the Sept. 8, 1974 murder of his wife, Lee Ann Garrison.

Jim Spain of Bloomfield and C. H. Parsons of Dexter entered appearances for Garrison Monday.

These attorneys are in addition to Jim Robison of Sikeston and attorneys in Mississippi who are defending Garrison.

Trial date for Garrison has been set for the week of Oct. 18 by Judge Rex Henson of Poplar Bluff, who was designated special judge in July after Judge Flake McHaney of Kennett disqualified himself.

The action came on July 7 and was because McHaney had presided over matters involving Garrison in the past, specifically his divorce from the late Mrs. Garrison.

The Garrisons separated in January 1974 -- eight months before her death -- and in June agreed to a divorce settlement that called for payment of

Escapees caught

BLOOMFIELD — Two juvenile boys who escaped from the Stoddard County jail Monday night were captured about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday and returned to the jail by the highway patrol, the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said today.

The two were identified as Carl Thomas Jackson, 17, and Brian K. Kirkpatrick, 16, of Bloomfield.

The escape was made when they pried back a heavy, wire screen on their second floor jail cell and leaped to freedom.

Another juvenile was reportedly in the cell at the time of the escape, but told the sheriff's deputies that he slept through the escape.

Both juveniles are now in the Stoddard County jail.

Thieves hit donut shop

PORTAGEVILLE— Early Bird Donut Shop, 209 King Ave., was burglarized Tuesday night. Items reported stolen included potato chips, gum and candy mints. Two half pints of milk were consumed at the scene.

A drive-in service window had been broken out to enter the building.

Drugs stolen in break-in

NEW MADRID— A sizeable quantity of narcotic drugs were stolen in a break-in sometime after midnight Monday at the Gideon Prescription Shop, according to New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo.

A double-door cabinet secured with two locks had been pried open with a bar to obtain the drugs, which Wingo said were valued at $255.80.

One of four drawers in the pharmacy cash register had been pried open, but no money was found.

The prescription shop is located in part of the Gideon IGA building.

After entering the building by prying open a northeast door, the thieves climbed over an inside partition into the prescription shop.

The sheriff's department, highway patrol and Gideon Police department are continuing the investigation.

Manager says plant shutdown temporary

The temporary closing of the Sikeston plant of Triangle PWC was caused by a low level of construction activity and the lack of demand for the company's building wire products, according to Charles McPhail, plant manager.

The closing will affect about 100 manufacturing personnel. Office and shipping employes will remain active during the shutdown, McPhail said.

The shutdown will be for one month and all personnel will be recalled a the end of that month, he added.

McPhail said the company is not planning a permanent shutdown. He said the company will be doing plant modification construction during the shutdown.

Burglars hit 2 homes

Burglars took $462 worth of merchandise from the Kenneth Marshall apartment, 518 S. Kingshighway, sometime between Friday and Monday, according to police.

Taken were 30 eight-track tapes valued at $150, a $70 tape player, an AM-FM radio worth $58, and FM stereo eight-track player worth $139, a hunting knife valued at $28, a spear gun worth $12 and a matchete valued at $5.

Hasps on the front and back doors were pried off, police said.

Vivian Russel, 829 Ruth St., told police that she discovered her .38-caliber pistol missing Tuesday. The gun wasvalued at $125.

Pistol, battery stolen

BENTON — Thefts of a pistol and a farm tractor battery in two separate incidents were reported to the Scott County Sheriff's Department Tuesday.

Danny Richardson, Oran Route Two, reported at 2 p.m. Tuesday that a 357-magnum pistol had been stolen from his trailer.

At 2:30 p.m. B.T. Johnson of Vanduser reported the theft of a battery from his farm tractor.

Value of the items and time the thefts occurred has not been determined.

Scout roundup set Sept. 16

The 1976 Fall Roundup for Scouts in the Okeechobee District will be held Sept. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in schools throughout the district.

The roundup schedule was announced Tuesday night at the Okeechobee District Committee meeting at the Production Credit Association building, by David Corti, district executive. Roundup chairman will be Ernest Elledge, 809 Poplar Drive.

In Sikeston, boys interested in joining the Cub Scouts will meet at Southeast, Southwest, Matthews and Lee Hunter elementary schools. Boys interested in joining the Boy Scouts will meet at Middle School.

The schedule in other towns in the district includes:

Charleston: Warren E. Hearnes Elementary School, cubs and Scouts.

East Prairie; A.J. Martin Elementary School, cubs and Scouts.

New Madrid: Scott Street Elementary, cubs.

Morehouse: Morehouse Elementary, cubs and Scouts.

Benton: Kelly Elementary, cubs and Scouts.

Morley: Morley Community Building, cubs and Scouts

Oran: Oran Elementary, cubs and Scouts.

Parents of prospective cubs or Scouts are asked to bring their boys. A boy will not be able to complete his application without his parent.

Boys will be registered and assigned to units at the meeting. Boys and parents will also meet other Scouts and leaders, who will present displays and demonstrations.

Each school will be surveyed and literature will be sent to the parents about one week before the roundup.

The district committee also announced that cornerstone training for adult Scout leaders will be held in Sikeston on Oct. 11-12 and Nov. 8-9. Cub leader training will be held Oct. 5-6 and Nov. 3-4.

"LEGION FEVER"

We're not saying this is the explanation, mind you, but the mysterious and selective appearance of the killer disease "Legion Fever" at the American Legion convention in Philadelphia should at least alert us to the potential danger of biological or chemical warfare.

Consider the circumstances: 152 persons — all of them attendees at the Legion convention — are suddenly struck down by a virulent malady that kills one out of four. No one else, apparently, contracted the disease. It has not been transmitted to the friends or families of the afflicted. And although the Legionnaires stayed at three hotels where they mingled freely with the hotel workers who waited on tables, cleaned the rooms and handled their luggage and mail, not a single hotel employee was afflicted with the "disease," much less died from it. No wonder doctors are baffled. They can only tell us what it is not. Some are saying the cause may never be known.

Well, might a foreign nation, which had developed the causative agent for such a disease, seek to try it out in the U.S. on an experimental basis? The Soviet Union inevitably comes to mind. The Soviets are known to conduct extensive research in biological and chemical warfare. What more appropriate target, in their eyes, could there be than the American Legion — an organization not well known for its devotion to "detente"?

If the Soviets, or any other communist or terrorist group wanted to use biological warfare, it seems resonable that they might try to develop an agent which could be selectively used against command centers or troops units, for example. Something which could not be traced, which would not be contagious, and would not spread to the public at large. Something, in short, like "Legion Fever."

Again, we don't suggest that is what we are confronted with in this case. A conventional explanation may be discovered, and even if it is not there is no evidence of sinister origin. We say only that this ought to make us better aware of biological or chemical warfare could be like if ever it turned loose.

Forewarned is forearmed.

'WATCH' OUR COMEBACK

Striking proof (no pun intended) that the United States still sets the pace in advanced product tecnology is found in the phenomenal growth of the digital watch industry.

Digital watches are those little electronic jobs using light- emitting diodes (LEDs), which at the touch of a button show the time in hours and minutes and in some cases seconds, as well as the month and day.

For decades the American watch industry saw its share of the market declining in the face of competition from other nations, especially the Swiss. But now the Swiss and Japanese and other foreign watchmakers have found themsleves left high and dry by the surge of American companies, backed by modern electronics technology, in the new field of digital watches. The result, as Business Week recently reported, has been to bring watchmaking leadership back to the United States.

"We sold over 300,000 digital watches last year and we expect to do even better this year," says Eugene Gluck, president of E. Gluck Corp., the nation's No. 3 watch company in terms of unit sales.

As additional proof of the continuing vitality of the American free enterprise system, it is interesting to note that Gluck came to the United States in the 1940s as a wartime refugee from Europe and started his company from scratch. It now sells nearly three million watches of all types a year.

"Congratulations, Mr. Ford. No one deserves the chance to try this more than you do."

P.S. TO THE NEWS

NEW YORK TIMES QUESTION

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

If you picked up a newspaper and read the screaming headline "Are We -- or Is Our Strategy -- MAD?" you would probably think you were reading a sensational tabloid.

Would you believe -- such a headline was recently splashed across the dignified New York Times?

The contents of the article were just as blunt. It came to grips with two life-and-death problems: the threat to the very survival of the United States from the tremendous buildup of Soviet military power, and whether U.S. national strategy for dealing with this threat might be totally wrong.

The New York Times quotes with respect, if not outright endorsement, statements from the London Times and London Economist that the Soviet Union will have "valid strategic superiority by the end of this year" and that the Kremlin leaders believe they could then destroy America without suffering unacceptable reprisals.

For the last 15 years, U.S. strategy has been based on the theory that the Soviets won't attack us because they know we would strike back and kill millions of Russians.

This theory of deterrence was once accurately explained by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger as the product of three factors: military power, the will to use it, and the assessment of those factors by a potential aggressor.

But please note: since deterrence is a product, not a sum, if any one of them is zero, deterrence fails.

The deterrence theory might have been true in 1962 during the Cuban missile crisis when we had an 8-to-1 lead in nuclear power. But 14 years later, the strategic balance is reversed, and the theory is perilously obsolete.

Many experts believe that because of Soviet bases in Cuba and our many cities which can be hit from Soviet submarines, the United States is at least 10 times as vulnerable to nuclear attack as the USSR is today.

Foy Kohler, our former ambassador in Moscow, summed it up like this: "Instead of a 'balance of terror' which equally restrains both sides, the terror would be mainly on the part of the United States."

British and American experts now say that the Kremlin leaders believe they will this year have enough military superiority, combined with such elaborate civil defense installations and preparations, that they will be able to destroy America without suffering unacceptable retaliation. If this is true, deterrence has failed, our strategy is indeed "mad," and so are the architects who devised it.

In the understatement of the century, The Times concludes: "Surely the American people have a right to be informed about the truth of the statements ... so that they can debate whether it is necessary to revise our strategic assumptions. Mere national survival should be the paramount issue of this autumn's election."

It's too bad we weren't told this early in the year, before 19 presidential primaries, so that the eager candidates would have all been forced to present their strategy for dealing with this "paramount issue."

However, we still have two months left before the election, and it's not too late to force policy commitments, from the candidates who remain in the race, on the matter of building adequate antimissile and civil defenses.

STILL THE BEST

A California Manufacturers Association magazine observes that New York, long known as the "Empire State," once stood at the head of the roster of states. It had the most and the best of everything, including population, industry and money. But now, as the California publication notes, New York is losing population, along with "...industry, plants, production, and jobs." The major problem is a hostile business climate.

Some of the factors that made it tough for business in New York included very heavy rates of taxation, excessive and unjustified regulation and such contributing things as handsome unemployment payments available for strikers. The business publication points out that in California the same sort of hostile business climate is resulting in a loss of people and productive enterprise to other areas with less oppressive regulatory and tax policies. The hope is voiced that California will learn its lesson from New York without actually having to experience it. It might be hoped also that the United States of America will learn its lesson from the evidence of history and correct the long-standing habit of taxing, regulating and criticizing its highly-productive private enterprise system out of existence.

Let's face it. How many people really want to buy their automobile of approved design and uniform gray color from a federally-operated factory outlet or purchase their groceries from a state store? Under such a system, it would be dangerous to have a private thought, let alone express it. Let's stand up for what we have. It is still the best there is.

XXX

TIME FOR RADICAL SURGERY

The candidates and the experts (they are not necessarily the same) have given us so many explanations of the horrendous $73 billion federal deficit recorded for fiscal year 1976 that average citizens can only be thoroughly confused. Not many of us can understand how, year after year, with inflation worsening and unemployment being held to barely tolerable levels, the Congress can continue to pursue the discredited course of trying to spend this country into prosperity. It has't worked in the past, isn't working now and won't work in the future.

The "cure" of inflationary deficit spending is proving more harmful than the "disease" of recession and unemployment. Inflation hurts everyone, especially the old and the disabled and the truly needy. And while special programs can be devised to help the jobless, little can be done for anyone if we continue to pursue chronic inflationary policies.

It is doubtful that there is any magic governmental medicine for our economic malaise. The only proven way for politicians to doctor our economy is to perform radical surgery on spending and do what is necessary to create a good business climate. Then the private sector can do what it has done so well during the past 200 years—provide the jobs and goods and services that have enabled an ever-increasing number of us to enjoy a steadily improving quality of life.

TERRORISM STANDS ACCUSED

CHAIM HERZOG, Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, has not wasted words trying to defend the Israeli commando raid on Uganda that freed more than 100 hostages of Palestinian terrorists.

While members of the Organization of African Unity, backed by Arab governments and the Soviet Union, have sought to label Israel as an aggressor, Herzog rightly has charged that it is his country that should be doing the accusing. It is, he suggested, Idi Amin who ought to be standing in the dock.

AMIN, ARROGANT AND rattle-brained dictator of Uganda, obviously made it possible for the terrorists to carry out their villainous scheme. The unfolding story of the Israeli raid shows what remarkable intelligence the Isrelis gathered on Amin and Uganda in their hurried preparations. So when Israel stands as accuser of Amin's role as a co-conspirator of sorts, its words are believable.

At one point Herzog told the Security Council, "I stand here as an accuser of the countries that because of evil design or lack of moral backbone, have collaborated with these bloodthirty terrorists. I stand here as an accuser of this world organization, the United Nations, which has been unable, because of the machinations of the Arab delegates and their supporters, to coordinate effective measures in order to combat the evil of world terrorism."

And finally, Herzog said, "Before us stands accused, this rotten, corrupt, brutal, cynical, bloodthirsty monster of internationalism and all of those who support it in one way or the other, whether by commission or omission."

THE UNITED STATES has lauded not only Israel's stand on this point of terrorism. William Stanton, the U.S. ambassador to the UN, also has forthrightly praised the raid itself.

And more than that, he has called on the Security Council to "record its collective view that international terrorism—and specifically hijacking—must be stopped."

It can be stopped only when hypocritical nations stop giving sanctuary to terrorists. It can be stopped only when the United Nations shows the moral fiber to direct its righteous indignation against international gangsters rather than powers that seek to protect their own citizens against air pirates.

PRISONER EXCHANGE WORTH CONSIDERATION

From The Kansas City Times

The issue of the abuse of American prisoners in Mexican jails continues to abrade relations between two friendly nations that ought to have more productive topics to engage them. The abuse is fact, only the full extent of it is uncertain. The question is what officials in Mexico City are prepared to do about it.

Many of the 550 Americans in prisons south of the border were confined for drug offenses. The U.S. has no quarrel either with the sternness of drug enforcement or the severity of the sentences. What is intolerable is the pattern of torture and other physical mistreatment, including the forcible extraction of confessions, and the frequent denial of access to consular or legal aid.

Six months ago the State Department had in hand more than a score of documented cases of physical abuse and nearly 100 of legal deprivation, and officials conceded at the time that there certainly were many more instances than had been verified. Release of the report added to the growing storm of indignation in this country and provoked impatient exchanges between the U.S. and Mexican governments.

As it turns out, Mexican authorities also are complaining about the lot of their nationals in American jails. So, when the subject came up during Secretary Kissinger's recent Mexico City visit, his hosts were reported privately to have made a novel proposal: Outright exchange of the 550 jailed Americans for the 1100 Mexicans behind bars in the U.S. for federal offenses.

The potential complexity of any such deal is obvious. Sentence schedules differ for the same offense, and it would be clearly intolerable for a prisoner sentenced to 20 years by the Mexicans to be serving alongside another, guilty of the same violation in the U.S., with a term of two years or less. Or, worse, to be incarcerated for what would ordinarily be a probated offense in this country. Parole laws also vary widely.

But with all its possible snags, the proposition nevertheless deserves close study. The alternative is to hope that Mexico will correct its penal abuses, and the wait for that is guaranteed to be interminable.

TRAGEDY OF NOT TRYING

Among the many complaints folks in outstate Missouri often voice is that appointments to the nations service academies too often go to young men in the big cities.

A recent announcement by a Congressman shows that of nine appointments, five were from the St. Louis area.

One of the reasons why a majority are from the urban sections is that there are more young men in them than in the rural areas.

Another is that seldom if ever does a student from our town or a nearby one even apply.

A service academy provides the finest education a young man can get. It is a tragedy of omission in not trying to get such an appointment.

Conscience. That's the still, small voice within, where the acoustics are so bad.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Money for Machel:

Why is Sen. Clark fighting to subsidize Marxist African dictatorships?

LISBON -- And little children huddled amid their own strange fears. And cried. And clung to their mothers who weren't much less frightened or less tear-stained at first. Slowly one youngster, then another, improvised little playrooms in corners of hotel lobbies thousands of miles from home.

They weren't paying guests. They were in transit -- from their ancient soil to nowhere, at the new Portuguese government's expense.

In the crowded dining room of the not-so-luxurious Hotel Lutecia here they ate queitly, sisters and brothers and hopeless parents, staring into a stonewalled future. At that moment I wished the United States Senator from Paris, Iowa, Richard Clark, the debating champ from Iowa University, was at the table with me among these "miserables." Why?

Richard Clark is the semi-skilled intellectual who heads the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on African affairs. He is fighting to force the U.S. to contribute some 12 million American dollars to the weirdly totalitarian bush-league East African Marxist "republic" of Mozambique. From which these children, these parents had to flee for their lives.

Since Richard Clark, with all of 3½ years' experience in the U.S. Senate, hasn't been here or even in East Africa, how would he know of the sufferings of the "retornados" who are in flight from the year-old Communist African nation he is befriending?

These children are refugees from African Marxist dictator President Samora Machel. They are the victims of reverse discrimination. They hurt no one. They are of a line backing into some 470 years of farming, retailing and commerce in Mozambique, Angola and even Timor. Now they have no homes but the hotel rooms, the lobbies and the streets. They are the lucky ones who got out after the "liberation" fronts took over.

Now the Portuguese government must find $30 million a month to feed them, house them in hotels, pay specialists to find their parents overseas jobs.

Quite a task. There are some 800,000 retornados in Portugal.

I write this story at a great distance from Maputo, capital of Mozambique, because I, as other Western news people, can't fly in. That coastal nation's bearded dictator, sounding like the eerie ruler of Frederick Forsyth's mythical African dictatorship in "Dogs of War," doesn't want the truth told.

Why should he? He and others of his self-appointed and anointed cabinet returned from Moscow recently. There they arranged for the Soviets to build naval bases in Maputo (formerly Lourenco Marques) and other ports.

There they liaisoned with the Cubans, planning joint offensives in eastern and southern Africa. There they talked of Western "imperialist" Europe and America.

And at home in Maputo, protected by a free-swinging, free-stabbing, free-clubbing personal bodyguard, Samora Machel, president and dictator, chief of the Frelimo movement, runs a concentratin camp nation. Crawling prisons teem with tens of thousands of dissenters. Slave labor camps ("reeducation centers") are jammed with men and women who did little more than demand wages due them. Or whose crime was -- and is -- being Jehovah's Witnesses.

"Machelismo" comes as close to political psychosis as anything since Adolf Hitler bit a rug. Not too long ago, when Machel got into a sharp debate with a cabinet minister, the president's bodyguard stabbed the official. Another time, when a commercial jet pilot moved his aircraft too close to Machel's private plane (nothing's too good for the proletarian leadership) the bodyguard almost beat the aviator to death.

For the record, the report is that the stabbed man was Armando Guebuza, minister of the interior. He was cut down in the presidential palace.

Machel isn't an illiterate springing from the bush. He and his comrades in the Frelimo are intellectuals, poets, writers. This hasn't kept them from incarcerating over 60,000 persons. Nor has it kept him from Fidel Castro-like speeches running four hours and more.

He has nationalized almost everything in sight. Business, utilities, land and even private homes. And has paid for nothing.

He has warned workers they may have to wait three years for their wages. And he has spoken of a "solidarity bank" into which would be put expropriated pay.

He is collectivizing farms. Revolutionary justice is meted out to those who murmur objections. Unhappy soldiers are shot.

It's all there for Sen. Clark to see. Certainly, president Machel won't shut the airport to the gentleman from Iowa who wants to give Maputo so many million American dollars.

And it might do Dick Clark some good to get to Africa. After all, the Iowa Senator, an expert on Eastern Europe, is head of the African subcommittee. Wonder how he got the post?

Sen. Clark had better get there fast if he wants to hand out all that money. President Machel is asking the United Nations for $50 million a year to help him develop his country. And more money from UNCTAD (UN-Conference on Trade and Development). UNCTAD will hand out millions more. And some of those millions will be American dollars.

As the King of Siam once said: " 'Tis a puzzlement." That goes for Sen. Clark. Why does the gentleman from Paris, Iowa, want to subsidize a grisly dictatorship? Why help a new nation on whose coast the Soviet navy soon will park? Why not come here, Senator, and bring some toys, too?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Blue Collar Ills

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Blue Cross has been telling the American public that it does more "than just pay bills." That's true. The boys at Blue Cross like to run up bills of their own and stick Uncle Sam with the tab.

A confidential audit prepared by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare reveals that at least five Blue Cross companies overcharged the federal government thousands of dollars in the administration of Medicare programs.

The federal government pays the giant health insurance system $7.2 million per year to administer a portion of the $17.7 billion Medicare program. Blue Cross then signs subcontracts with its subsidiaries, which handle the day-to-day drudgery of processing claims.

The HEW report charges that Blue Cross subcontractors in Iowa, Maine, Nebraska, and Wisconsin purchased luxury automobiles, chartered private airplanes and foisted the bills off on Medicare. Here are the details:

— Some Blue Cross executives flew first class to business meetings and stayed at the finest hotels. They took their families along and charged it all to the government. "Charging Medicare for the meetings was a questionable practice," the audit states, "since the meetings were of a general nature, held in settings outside the contractors service area."

— Blue Cross officials in Iowa and Wisconsin bought fleets of luxury automobiles, which they charged to Medicare. These costs were "unreasonable," said the confidential audit, and "unallowable for reimbursement to the contractors."

— Blue Cross workers also charged the taxpayers thousands of dollars for "business automobiles" which they put to personal use. Employes in Iowa and Maine took the vehicles home after work and used them as if they owned them.

— Blue Cross executives often shunned commercial airlines and chartered private planes. In each instance, the audit charges, commercial flights were available. The public paid.

— Blue cross auditors who should have halted the waste of federal money simply looked the other way. On one occasion, according to a confidential memorandum, a government investigator grilled a Blue Cross auditor about the personal use of federal monies. "So what?" snapped the Blue Cross man. "We'll call it compensation and make the necessary adjustments."

Blue Cross' current Medicare contract expires at the end of September. Our sources predict, however, that the insurance colossus will flex its political muscle and get the agreement renewed.

Rep. Charles Vanik, D.-Ohio, chairman of the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee, will hold hearings on the Blue Cross Medicare contract later this month.

"We think this is the tip of the iceberg," said one House investigator. Vanik anticipates finding similar abuses in Blue Cross' administration of the Medicaid program and Defense Department insurance plans.

Footnote: A Blue Cross spokesman tacitly admitted to our associate Marc Smolonsky that the insurance organization had overcharged the federal government. But the thousands of dollars involved, he argued, was "insignificant" in comparison to the total amount of the contract. Blue Cross, he added, is trying to "correct the problem."

REVOLVING REPUBLICANS: This year Republicans won't be able to use the traditional campaign theme, "Don't change horses in midstream."

At least that's what Democratic party boss Bob Strauss is saying. In a fund-raising letter, Strauss outlines the game of government musical chairs the GOP has been playing during the past seven years.

Both Richard Nixon and Sprio Agnew resigned from office. That meant two appointed vice presidents and one appointed president, Strauss points out.

There have been six different Republican Attorneys General, five Commerce and Labor Secretaries, four Secretaries at Defense, Interior, and Health, Education and Welfare. The Department of Housing and Urban Development has had three different bosses in seven years.

Meanwhile, the CIA is on its fourth new director, as is the Budget office and the Federal Energy Administration. The FBI command has turned over only three times.

Strauss, of course, is pushing for one more change at all of these agencies. That would be the appointment of Democratic party faithfuls in a Carter administration.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Prior to a recent House poll on anti-abortion, Rep. Wayne Hays, D.-Ohio, was asked by his cloakroom colleagues how he planned to vote. Hays, who has admitted to a personal liaison with Elizabeth Ray, smiled back: "Since I've come out foursquare for (sex), I guess I have to favor abortion."

— Rep. Robert Giaimo, D.-Conn., may now be regretting his ardent support for congressional funding of a subway system for Washington. The construction crews have now made a trench out of the street in front of his home, and he is awakened every morning by the turmoil.

Area demos to back Teasdale

Bootheel Democrats who formerly supported Sen. William J. Cason for the nomination for governor in the Aug. 3 primary election met with winner Joseph P. Teasdale in a show of unity Monday night at Two-Tony's Smorgasbord.

About 70 party leaders from southeast Missouri enthusiastically applauded Teasdale when he spoke to them at a dinner meeting. His central theme was party unity.

But the meeting also symbolized, according to political observers, an emerging political strategy Teasdale will follow in attempting to unseat Republican Gov. Christopher S. Bond in the Nov. 2 general election.

Party leaders do not believe they will have any trouble in turning out a large majority for Teasdale, who they see as an attractive candidate and hard campaigner.

This is in contrast to the 1972 election when, with George McGovern at the top of the Democratic ticket and lackluster Edward L. Dowd as the gubernatorial nominee, they had problems keeping party faithful in line.

In fact, they point out, Republican inroads were made as the usually heavy percentage given Democratic candidates dropped. Bond got 40 per cent of the vote in the Bootheel.

Teasdale hopes to reverse that and the meeting here Monday was an early step in getting the support he needs from outstate party centers of strength, to challenge Bond.

Democratic strategists, in looking at the 1972 vote totals, note that Bond's nearly 200,000-vote victory was concentrated in several important areas where Democrats usually do better.

For example, nearly half of Bond's margin was in Kansas City and St. Louis, Jackson County, Teasdale's homeground and where he served as prosecuting attorney, gave Bond nearly 66 per cent of the vote.

Additionally, Bond carried St. Louis County by 75,179 votes. It is believed that Teasdale can cut into that strength.

The Democratic nominee went to St. Louis County Tuesday to meet with party leaders there. He expects to resume his personal campaign effort to voters about Labor Day.

Theft of tools, oil is probed

PAINTON— The Scott County Sheriff's Department is investigating the theft of hand tools and motor oil taken from an equipment shed belonging to Delane Streeter, Route One.

Approximately $1,000 worth of hand tools were taken along with two cases of motor oil. The incident was reported at 10:30 Monday night.

Arizona State plays eight night football games this season.

At wit's end

Sarah-Betty -Edna?

We were talking the other day about a strange phenomenon of Motherhood.

A woman starts thinking of a name for her baby from the minute she knows she is carrying one. She will write it out, say it aloud, try it out on friends and embroider it on little shirts. When the baby is born, she will whisper the name softly in its ear, write it on dozens of announcements and file it in the courthouse.

A few years and a few kids later, she can't remember who you are. I've heard mothers go through 10 or 12 names before they get lucky and hit the right one. (Once I wore my PJs wrong-side-out and my Mom thinking it was a name tag called me Dr. Denton for a week!)

Children seem to think there is something Freudain in the entire exercise. The old if-my-mother-really-loved-me-she'd-remember-my-name. This is hogwash. I love Marc...Mary...Mike...Mil...Mash...Maaa...whatshisname with the same affection as I love Bet...Bronc...Evelyn...Martha...Trish...you know who you are.

Our neighborhood psychiatrist bears me out. He said there is nothing you can generalize from mothers who can't put a name to their children right off the bat.

It used to be a good day for me when I could remember what I called them for, let alone remember who they are.

In talking with a young married the other day, it was revealed that he was one of seven children and not once when he was growing up was he ever called by his real name. "I guess it was because there were so many of us," he said, "that it confused my mother."

I hated to shoot his theory down but for a long while I was an only child and still got "Sarah...Betty...Mildred....Virginia...Edna."

Finally, in desperation, my mother would shout, "How long do I have to call you before you answer?"

I'd yell back, "Until you get it right."

"Was I close?" she'd shout.

"Edna was somewhere in the neighborhood."

"I always liked Edna," she mused, "I should have named you that."

"Then why did you name me Erma?"

"Because it was easy to remember."

Sen. Dole authorizes ads to avoid criminal changes against five newspapers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican vice presidential candidate Robert Dole retroactively authorized $288.56 in antiabortion advertisements as contributions to his 1974 Senate re-election campaign to avoid criminal charges against five newspapers, aides said today.

"They were placed without our authority" by an antiabortion leader, administrative assistant Bill Wohlford said.

That leader, Esther Surs of Shawnee Mission, Kan., said Tuesday night, "I'm not giving out any interviews or making any comments."

The pro-Dole advertisements in that hard-fought and closely decided campaign have been disavowed by the Kansas senator since the day they appeared, dominated by skull-and-crossbone drawings.

His opponent in the race, former Rep. William R. Roy, a gynecologist who said he had performed one abortion, has consistently accused Dole of orchestrating the ads. They ran the weekend before the election.

Both repeated those positions last week after Dole was nominated by the Republican National Convention to be President Ford's running mate.

Campaign-financing laws at the time imposed a spending limit on Senate candidates for media advertising and required that all newspaper ads supporting a candidate be authorized by him.

Newspapers carrying unauthorized ads could be subjected to criminal charges.

Wohlford said that an individual antiabortion crusader who distributed 50,000 anti-Roy fliers and the sponsor of the ads, Eastern Kansas Right to Life, an antiabortion group, were told that "there was no place for them in our campaign."

Nevertheless, the ads appeared shortly in newspapers in four cities, Wohlford said.

"We halted further publication of the ads right away, told the five newspapers they were not authorized ... and called all the papers in the state to make sure no more appeared," he said.

"Then, to make sure neither we nor the newspapers went to jail, we let the cost of the ads go in the records as a contribution. It was all publicly reported at the time, and we have never approved of the content of those ads."

Dole during that campaign did take an antiabortion stance and poked at Roy by telling some audiences, "I never performed one."

He said this weekend he favors a constitutional amendment, supported by the GOP platform, to overturn a Supreme Court ruling that states could not prohibit abortions during early pregnancy.

Sikeston couple is honored

Mr. and Mrs. James Morris

An open house honoring Mr. and Mrs. James V. Morris 407 N. Ingram, for their 25th wedding anniversary was held Sunday at the couple's home. Hosting the reception were their three daughters, Mrs. Mike (Diana) Riley of New Madrid, Mrs. John (Verna Kay) Dover of Bell City and Kim Morris of the home.

Servers at the reception were Betty Green and Kay Fodge of Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris were married Aug. 17, 1951 at Piggott, Ark. Mrs. Morris is the former Dorothy Nell Lindsey, daughter of Mrs. Alma Elliot of Charleston.

Cooking school set for Sept. 2

On Sept. 2 Progressive Farmer's Southern Kitchens Cooking School will come to Sikeston, co-sponsored by The Daily Standard. This is the school's third successful season and overflow crowds throughout the South continue to enjoy learning new recipes and techniques in the fun-filled atmosphere surrounding these schools.

In addition to the cooking class, door prizes will be awarded and a take-home package containing the school's recipe book will be given to each member of the audience.

Always keeping the budget in mind, emphasis will be on time-savers and simple gourmet dishes with an added attraction of creative ideas for entertaining. Members of the audiences will be invited to taste many of these tempting recipes, and several lucky people will actually win the dishes prepared on stage.

See your local participating merchants for an admission ticket and remember to mark your caldendar for Southern Kitchens Cooking School on Sept. 2 at the Sikeston High School Field House beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Free tickets are available from Bank of Sikeston, Lewis Furniture Co., Mark's Food Mart, Safeway, IGA Foodliner, Bruce's Big Star, Lindsey's M&H, the Sikeston Daily Standard, S&S Discount Foods Inc., Piggly Wiggly, Barkett's E-Z Mart, Grimsley's, First National Bank of Sikeston, Security Federal Savings and Loan Assn. and First Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR READERS — Thank you for the many many directions you sent for Mrs. W.H. who wants to crochet a book mark in the shape of a cross. Especially thanks to those who included beautiful samples. The following two letters tell how to make particularly lovely ones. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — A book mark such as Mrs. W.H. wants to crochet has been in our family for many years and these directions are ones I worked out from it.

I started by making a loop at the lower end into which I double crocheted (d.c.) 3, chain 1, d.c. 3, turn, chain 2 and repeat until right length is obtained (about 5 inches.) The number of shells made will be determined by the thread used. This shell pattern is continued out at either side for about an inch and placed so the side arms are about an inch and a half from the top. Picots were single crocheted all around edges and a tassel of the thread made for one end. — CECILLE.

Local library adds to shelves

New fiction books at Sikeston Public Library include: "Ordinary People" by Judith Quest; "Delores" by Jacqueline Susann; "The Blue Hammer" by Ross Macdonald; "The Pride of the Peacock" by Victoria Holt; "Galveston" by Suzanne Morris; and "Castle Barebane" by Joan Aiken.

Non-fiction works are: "Jack Benny" by Irving Fein; "Woman At Home" by Arlene Rossen Cardozo; "Why Not the Best" by Jimmy Carter; "Born Again" by Charles Colson; "Passage to Ararat" by Michael Arlen; and "Lyndon Johnson & the American Dream" by Doris Kearns.

Recital announced

MARSTON — The students of Mrs. Mabel Denison will give a recital at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Marston United Methodist Church.

Students from the Marston area playing will be Tony Stephans, Gary Lewis, Jamie Smith, Kim Chastain, Shane Harmon, Lori Chastain, Charles Finley, Kim Phillips, Mark Ellison, Amy Jo Ownes, Robin Burks, Heather McAllister, Melanie Ellison, Marsha Ellison, Laurie Clay and Linda White.

After the recital, a social hour will be held in the church dining room. The public is invited to attend.

Ann Landers

Whistling husbands not funny to reader

Dear Ann Landers: Your misguided advice to "Morph" set the Women's Movement back 100 years.

I agree-- a married couple who cannot get adequate rest in a double bed should go to twin beds, but your suggestion that the wife put a whistle on his nightstand left me cold.

Sexist humor is no longer in good taste. Unfortunately, too many of your readers do not have your intellectual capacity. They are sure to take you seriously. I pity the wives of the chauvinist males who will have that column used against them.

People are not to be whistled for like dogs -- especially wives of men who want sex. I'll bet the lambasting your receive for that shameful answer will bring forth an apology, but it can't possibly compensate for the damage you've already done. -- P.M.

Dear P.M.: If you don't have a sense of humor you're nowhere--which, incidentally, is the principal flaw in the Women's Movement. Sorry, P.M., I'm not apologizing for that answer. It was O.K. and I stand by it.

Dear Ann: The problem is bed-wetting. It is our son, the oldest of seven children. He reads your column religiously and we hope he will heed your advice.

We have had Arnie to a urologist for tests three times in the last six years. There is nothing physically wrong with the boy. He is 19 years old now and has ruined more bedding and mattresses than I care to think about. The doctor has given Arnie pills, which he "forgets" to take. All instructions not to drink liquids after 4:00 p.m. are ignored.

I can't tell you how upset I get when I go to make up his bed in the morning and find he has done it again.

What burns me up is he doesn't care. Any advice? -- Washing Machine Blues

Dear Wash: A 19-year-old boy who wets his bed and "doesn't care" is sending out messages. Tell him he can swim ten laps a night if he want to but from now on he must do his own laundry and make his own bed. (I'll bet he dries up fairly soon.)

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the woman who had her name legally changed misled you as well as countless others. She made it sound very simple. Well, it isn't.

First you have to go to the county courthouse and get a petition. It must be filled out and notarized by someone who has known you for at least five years. Then you must publicize it for six to eight weeks in a newspaper or a daily law bulletin.

Next step: You are required to get new copies of all certified documents, such as driver's license, marriage license, social security card, birth certificate, just about everything that bears your name.

The total cost for all this runs anywhere from $60 to $75. So please, Ann, let your readers know that there's more to it than Mrs. New-Name implied. -- Think I'll Keep My My Old Name

Dear Think: I feel like changing mine after all the complaints I've received. Charles Seib, Associate Editor of the Washington Post, informed me that Jack Crandall, Chief of Vital Records for the District of Columbia, had to straighten out a lot of people because of that flaky information. I've checked out yours and it is correct. So folks, now you have the straight goods.

Washington girl is state fair queen

Monica Ann Huber

SEDALIA — Nineteen-year-old Monica Ann Huber, Washington, was crowned 1976 Missouri State Fair Queen by Gov. Christopher S. Bond between grandstand shows Sunday night at the Missouri State Fair. Mrs. Huber, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Huber, Washington, will reign over the duration of the fair.

The newly crowned queen entered the competition as Miss Washington Town and Country Fair Queen. She was sponsored by the Washington Area Chamber of Commerce.

She will be a sophomore this fall at Southeast Missouri State University, Cape Girardeau. She plans to become a nurse. Among her special talents are piano, ballet and gymnastics. Last year she was a member of the university's gymnastic team. Her other interests include swimming, reading and tennis.

At St. Francis Borgia High School, she was a cheerleader and reigned as homecoming queen for one year. She also was editor of her high school newspaper and a member of the National Honor Society.

Miss Huber takes over the title previously held by Marilyn Barban, 1975 Missouri State Fair Queen.

Plans for the United Nations were made at the Dumbarton Oaks Conference in Washington, D.C., by the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union, Aug. 21-Sept. 28, 1944, and by the United States, the United Kingdom and the Republic of China (Nationalist) Sept. 29-Oct. 7, 1944, The World Almanac recalls. The UN charter was signed by 50 nations in San Francisco on June 26, 1945.

John Paul Jones is best remembered for his battle cry aboard the Bonhomme Richard: "I have not yet begun to fight!" The World Almanac praises Jones' earlier stirring call for enlistment aboard his ship: "Sign on, young man, and sail with me. The stature of our homeland is no more than the measure of ourselves. Our job is to keep her free. Our will is to keep the torch of freedom burning for all."

General Baptist begins construction on nursing home

CAMPBELL — Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new General Baptist Nursing Home were held Aug. 11 to mark the beginning of construction for a 900-bed nursing home presently operating in Campbell. The building which houses the present nursing home was constructed in 1903 and was operated as a hotel for many years. The present home and contents were purchased in 1954 by the General Baptist Nursing Home Board of Directors and has been functioning as a practical nursing home since that time.

Wanda Britt, administrator of the present home, told officials during the ceremonies that the General Baptist Nursing Home is an asset to this area economically.

"The present operation employs 37 people with an annual payroll of approximately $170,000," she said. She explained that the new nursing home will have an increase of 12.8 per cent in residency, which will create more jobs within the community."

The General Baptist Nursing Home is partially supported by churches, organizations and individuslals who feel that the non-profit home is rendering a worthy service to those in need of nursing care.

Ellis Renard, president of General Baptist Rest Home, Inc., announced that Pool and Canfield Construction Co. of Kansas City was awarded the construction contract and Earl C. McCamis was retained by the board of directors to formulate architectural plans and supervise construction.

According to McCamis, the latest nursing home design and techniques have been adopted to insure that a beautiful building will be located in Campbell. He said that every effort has been employed to see that the new home will be fully operational and safe.

McCamis said the brick building will be built along approved building specifications, including a sprinkler system throughout. Following the life safety codes will enable the home to come under the Medicaid program.

Under the Medicaid program, residents of the surrounding areas may be admitted to the new home regardless of their financial conditions.

The board has been preparing for the new construction during the past eight months and retained Health Projects, Inc., of Poplar Bluff, to coordinate the entire development.

Don C. Bedell, president of Health Projects, Inc., expressed his appreciation that tentative plans for finishing the new home should be in mid-March 1977.

Financing of home will be provided by Southern Missouri Savings & Loan Association, according to Thadius Seifert, an officer of the savings and loan association.

Trash haulers must collect fee

SCOTT CITY — Tom Arnold of Benton, city attorney for Scott City, advised Mrs. Orley Jackson and the City Council Monday night that since the city is not the fee collector for the trash collection service, the Jacksons will have to abide by the contract which does not specify a guaranteed number of customers. The contract further stated that the haulers will do the collecting.

Arnold said that in order to make the service premandatory the present contract would have to be dissolved and then put up for rebidding, specifying that the city would do the fee collecting. Arnold then recommended that a health officer be designated to review cases of violations against the ordinance and he (Arnold) would meet with the health commissioner Tuesday night to compile a list of rules and regulations to follow.

Mayor James O. Cauble said, "It is not the city's intention to bird-dog people to see that the ordinance is enforced, but when proof of the violation is brought to the city's attention, they will be prosecuted."

Mrs. Jackson stated that one of the major problems faced by the company is that several residents place their trash at one location to avoid making the monthly fee.

Cauble said this practice is in violation of Section 8 in the city's ordinance pertaining to solid waste collecting.

The council accepted the resignation of City Collector Virginia Richardson for reasons of ill health. The post will be filled by appointments.

Tabled for further study was the request of Jerry Moore to rent the land across the street from the city hall to put in a mini-golf course.

The council reviewed the need for street name signs and instructed Police Chief Ralph Hayes to designate where no-parking signs are needed on Main Street. The no-parking signs will be furnished by the State Highway Department.

The city heard reports from aldermen who have received complaints from their constituents about the weeds growing on city property.

The council agreed to install sewer hook-ups along Susan and Wheeler streets before the new paving is laid.

They agreed to reject Reutzel's paving bid since he will not sign the specifications to guarantee the work for one year, and the council will accept the Girardeau Contractors, Inc., bid to do the work.

Elizabeth Gentry, who asked to have Colony Park Drive and Mary Street oiled, was advised that her neighbors were circulating a petition to have Colony Park street paved.

The city will ask for bids for drainage ditch work on the south side of town. They put on the city work list trees to be cut down on city property along the streets.

They also agreed to contact Gene Rhodes concerning stagnated water behind his business buildings on Main street.

The city adjusted the water bill of Alice Urhahn and agreed to haul gravel for Jay Whitworth for his driveway, with Whitworth paying for the gravel.

The council agreed to allow Bruce Raines on Pennington Street to hook up with city sewers providing he pays the installation cost of running it to the city line.

Rotarian district governor speaks to Chaffee Rotary Club

CHAFFEE — "Service--The Objective of Rotary" was the subject of an address to the Chaffee Rotary Club last night by Dr. Thomas S. Messer of Cape Girardeau, gov. of Rotary District 609.

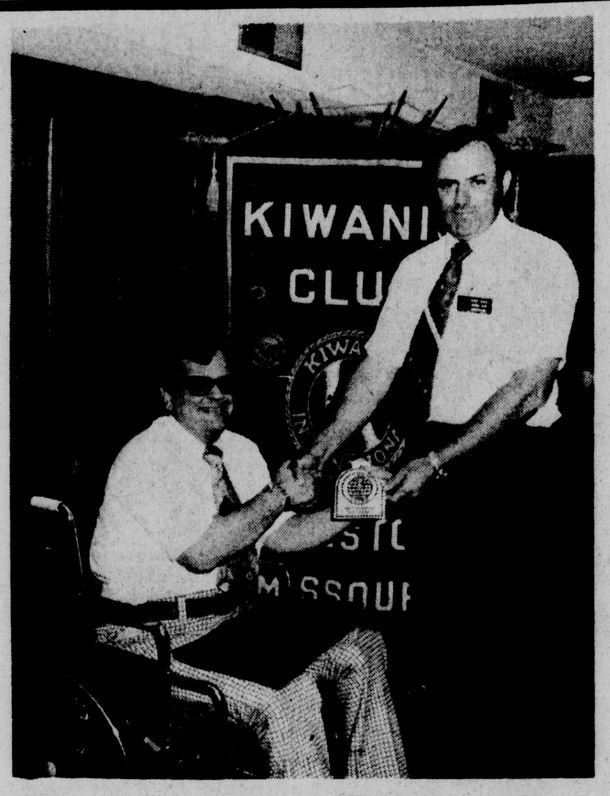
Earlier Dr. Messer confered with Wayne Crippen, president of the local club and other officials to obtain information on the group's planned service activities for this year.

The governor's official visit consisted of a conference with the local president one hour prior to the club meeting, the governor's address to the club and a club assembly in which the president and committee chairman stated goals, objectives, and plans of action.

Dr. Messer is one of 358 Rotary governors throughout the world who are representatives of Rotary International in districts composed of member clubs.

A member of the Rotary Club of Cape Girardeau, Dr. Messer is director of the Baptist Student Center at Southeast Missouri State University. He was elected to office at the Rotary International Convention in New Orleans in June and will serve until June 30, 1977.

Rotary, and international men's service organization, has more than 750,000 members in 17,000 clubs throughout the world.



Distinguished president

Senate nominee Warren E. Hearnes speaks to a hometown crowd in Charleston Sunday evening after returning from Jefferson City, where the Democratic State Committee gave him the party's nomination.

Charleston welcomes Hearnes back home

CHARLESTON— Several hundred Charleston residents turned out Sunday evening for a motorcade welcoming former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes back home after the State Democratic Committee had given him the party's nomination for the U.S. Senate seat to be filled iin the Nov. 2 general election.

The committee selected Hearnes Saturday by a vote of 38-22 over State Treasurer James I. Spainhower to succeed the late 6th District Rep. Jerry Litton, who was killed in an airplane crash on the night of his primary election victory.

Hearnes, in a brief address to the welcoming group, compared political races to athletic events. "Sometimes we win; sometimes not," Hearnes said.

Paying tribute to his fallen opponent, Hearnes said, "Congressman Litton ran a tough campaign. He did create a dialogue with the people of Missouri. He won that medal fate never let him wear. He would have worn it well and all of us would have joined his efforts to keep Missouri Democratic.

"I cannot wear his medal," Hearnes continued. "I din't win it. I cannot take his place with his friends or family. But as one who shared the race, one who traveled the length and breadth of this state in the campaign, I can and will finish the race.

"This political race, like others," he concluded, "may be like a relay. We work as a team.

Each person does his best, and then the baton is passed to someone else."

The mnotorcade of 50 or 60 cars met Hearnes' automobile at the Main Street overpass of Interstate 57 and escorted the former governor and his party through the streets of Charleston to the Hearnes for Senator headquarters, where Hearnes and his wife, Betty, both spoke briefly.

Hart speaks to Kiwanis

Don Hart, manager of the Sikeston Social Security office, was the featured speaker at Tuesday night's Sikeston Kiwanis Club meeting at the El Capri Restaurant.

Hart said the Sikeston office, a branch of the Cape Girardeau district office, opened in 1974 and serves 75,000 people in Scott, Mississippi and New Madrid counties, paying out $2 million a month.

When asked if the Social Security Administration is broke, Hart said the trust funds are solvent and have enough money for an additional five years. Hart said the Social Security program has been in this condition before and federal steps have always been taken to assure the continuance of the program, and he sees no reason for alarm.

Other guests of the club were Ken Sharp of Cape Girardeau; Division 15 lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis Mo-Ark District; Harold Kuehle of Cape Girardeau; and incoming Lt. Gov. Delbert Edgar of Portageville and his son Delmar.

Kuehle, a past Lieutenant Governor, presented past president Bob Wright a banner and pin for being selected as a distinguished club president.

Sharp presented Earl L. Jewell a tab for 27 years of perfect attendance, and president Tom Lambert presented Jewell a certificate in recognition of sincere and devoted effort for the Sikeston Kiwanis Club. Jewell plans to leave Sikeston next month.

In other club business, it was announced that because newly elected club president, Gary Chullino, is being transferred from Sikeston, Mike Parker was nominated as the new president-elect, and secretary Carl Muench was nominated as vice president. The election will be held next Tuesday.

It was also announced that the date of the Kiwanis-Rotary softball game has been changed to Sept. 2.

$100,000 in alimony to Mrs. Garrison in addition to child support payments.

At the time of Mrs. Garrison's death, Garrison was facing contempt of court charges in Dunklin County for non-payment of alimony and failing to return their children to Mrs. Garrison by the time required in the divorce ruling.

Mrs. Garrison was found Sept. 8 in her bedroom, clad only in a nightgown, shot once in the head and beaten with a blunt instrument.

Garrison denies that he was in Kennett on the day of the murder, saying he was on a houseboat in Mississippi.

He was charged with the murder on the day the body was discovered, but fought extradition from Mississippi for almost two years.

Luncheon guests at Rainbow's End

Editor's note: This is another installment of a novel, "Sticks and Stones May Break Your Bones," by Cherie Blanton. The installments appear in the paper each Wednesday.

SUMMARY

Last week Troy took Louise on a surprise visit to one of her oldest and dearest friends' home. They reached there by taking a little-used path off the main road to get to Annie's. Annie, an old, old woman and her sons run a still in the back woods and Troy wanted to ask her if she knew about any of the things taking place at Rainbow's End.

Annie is delighted to see them and introduces them to her favorite grandson Luke. After inviting them in for some sassafrass tea, Annie confesses to having no knowledge of anything strange, but she and Luke promise to keep their ears open, particularly around Randy Weaks who is one of their best customers. Then, Annie quizzes Louise about her friendship with Troy and ends up by sending Luke and Troy out while she reads the future in the tea leaves for Louise.

By CHERIE BLANTON

"I hear a car out front," called out Bertha, "is it Miss Troy—my lunch is almost ready."

"I'll see," said Stacy going to the door, "no, it's Sheriff Ames."

"That figures," muttered Bertha coming out of the kitchen, "and I'll bet he ain't eaten neither!" Grumbling she went into the dining room and began setting another place at the table.

"Hello Sheriff," Stacy greeted him, "and what brings you out here so early in the day?"

Slowly he mounted the steps of the porch. "I had a real interesting visit with Miss Troy and her friend earlier, and the more I got to thinking on what had been said, the more concerned I got. They told me you all had a new hired hand and I feltlike it might be a good idea for me to drive out and ask him some questions."

Sticking his head inside the doorway of the house he raised his voice, "Besides that, my stomach felt awful empty, and I figured Bertha, the best dern cook in the county, might know what to do to solve that problem."

"I could tell somebody, if they'd ask me, that a certain somebody needs to find him a wife and quit trying to eat his own cooking, and he wouldn't all time be so hungry and showin up at other people's dinner tables!" could be heard coming from the back of the house.

Laughing, Stacy said, "You know you're welcome anytime Michael. I don't know which of the two of you loves to tease the other the most." She grinned at him. "I believe you really hit the jackpot yesterday though, when you devoured that last piece of jam cake. She fussed all through dinner last night about not even having had a taste to see if it was fit for human consumption or not—jam cake is definitely Bertha's favorite."

"Mine too. Do you think she'll serve me arsenic at lunch?"

"No, but I noticed a triple layer strawberry shortcake in the pantry."

"That cinches it—Bertha is going to feed me whether she wants to or not." Smacking his lips and rolling his eyes he went charging through the house yelling, "You better give me that shortcake Bertha, or I'm goin blow a hole in all your pots and pans."

"You just try it young man," announced Bertha grimly standing guard at the doorway of her kitchen, "and I'll tan your fanny as big as you are!" She advanced upon him brandishing a long-handled spatula.

"I give," laughed Michael, "I suppose I'll just have to wait for dessert to be served like everyone else."

"You suppos'in right!" scolded the cook, "Now you just get outa here till you is called." Turning away before he could see her laughing, she fled to her kitchen.

"Here comes Jo now," called Stacy. "She's with Amos and Randy so you can have your question-and-answer session with no trouble."

Michael walked back onto the porch to look at the three approaching. "Does Miss Jo still work as hard as she used too?" he asked, noticing the old shirt and jeans she was wearing. "She must be somewhere in her sixties by now."

"Yes," Stacy answered, "and it worries me so. All she's ever done is work like a dog so Sam and I could stay here with her. I have to admit Sam pulls her share of the load, but I feel like I've always been a dreadful burden."

"Nonsense," he cried, "you've helped Bertha keep this house up and that's no easy job, not for two women as big as this place is. And I've driven by and seen you helping out in the fields sometimes too." He thought a moment, "It's funny the way life treats people, you three girls for example, growing up with everything and then your whole world caving in overnight. Still, I can't think of anyone who's done a better job of keeping things going under the circumstances."

"Why, thank you, kind sir." She reached up and gave his cheek a tiny kiss and smiled shyly. "I envy the girl who someday catches you."

Embarrased he looked away and catching sight of another figure said, "Don't look now Miss Stacy, but I think your fiance has just caught you spoonin' with another man. Hope we don't have to fight a duel." Eyes twinkling he called to Sidney, "I'm innocent—she attacked me! Are you sure you know what a Scarlet Lady you're about to marry, Mr. Turner?"

Laughing, Sidney approached. "And this is what I voted for on election day. The crime rate in this county is bound to soar."

He came forward, stooped over and planting a kiss on Stacy's cheek said, "Hello dear, am I in time for one of Bertha's famous lunches?"

Michael and Stacy exchanged amused glances. "You tell her, not me," said the Sheriff throwing up his hands.

As she walked inside to break the news to Bertha, Sidney asked Michael, "What happened to the new patrol car? I see it's got a dent in the back fender. Surely the Sheriff hasn't been doing any careless or reckless driving, has he?"

"What dent?" Michael asked. "All I can see is a character bump." Walking away from Sidney's perplexed countenance he went down the steps to greet the others, just as Troy pulled into the yard.

"Hello everybody." she cried alighting from her car, "my, I'm just about starved to death. Hello Michael, and Sidney—Lord, I haven't seen you in years." She went forward to greet him as Ta Ta leaped from the car and growling furiously began barking and snapping at his heels.

"Why is it Troy can never arrive on a scene without making a scene?" asked Jo shaking her head. "Troy shut that damn dog up and let's all go and eat. I'm worn out and hungry as a bear. Amos, you and Randy finish out back and then you go and get your lunches too." Startled she looked around, then questioned Amos, "Where is Randy? He was here with us when we came up? That shiftless so and so, ever time he thinks there's a little more work to do he disappears."

"I'll find him and get finished Miss Jo, don't you worry none, I think I know where he is, but he sure did get there in a hurry."

"I'm sorry Sidney," apologized Troy after spanking Ta and sending him scooting. "I can't imagine what came over him."

"Perhaps he smelled our bird dog on my clothes, don't let it bother you, he's much too small to do any damage. Poor thing, I know how frustrating life must be for him." And at Sidney's remark Troy and Jo exchanged a meaningful look.

"I can't remember your name," he turned to Louise, "but haven't we met before?"

"Oh goodness no," laughed Troy, "this is a friend of mine from home." She quickly introduced them.

"You're supposed to use that line when you're trying to pick a girl up Mr. Turner, and never in front of your betrothed," teased Michael, then as they all walked in and seated themselves at the table his eyes lit up as Bertha came in carrying a huge platter of fried chicken. "I certainly hope this mystery takes a long time to solve—what's for dinner tonight?" Heaping his plate high he began to eat with relish.

"What mystery?" asked Sidney.

"I told you about the broken fences, dead calves, and all," answered Stacy.

"Did you tell him about the ghost? Thank you Bertha, I'll just have four more of these while you're standing here." Michael helped himself to a plate of feather light biscuits she was passing.

"Lord, I ain't never seen nobody eat biscuits like popcorn before. Mr. Michael, you beats all, you really takes the cake!" Then as she and the rest of them realized what she had just said, they all begin laughing so hard they almost choked.

"What's so funny?" demanded Sidney feeling left out.

"Sam passed out jam cake to everyone while Bertha and I were in town, when we got home there was only one piece left, and the Sheriff literally snatched that from under her nose and ran." Stacy laughed even harder and on this note of hilarity the meal continued.

"I think I've died and gone to heaven." declared Michael getting up and patting his stomach after consuming two enormous portions of shortcake.

"Don't rush yourself none," snickered Bertha, "it won't be long fore you gets there as much as you shovelin in your face every day."

Michael stuck his tongue out at her and announced, "Back to the grindstone." And he followed the cook into the kitchern where Amos and Randy were also enjoying her delicious cooking.

"Hello Amos," said Michael pulling a chair up to the table, and turning to the other man, "I'm Sheriff Ames and you must be Randy Weaks."

The man nodded, his mouth full.

"I'd like to ask you a few questions, if you don't mind."

Randy shot him a quick glance from between lowered lids. "All I do is work here part time, Sheriff, I don't bother nobody, and nobody's been bothering me. What kind of questions do you think I'd have answers too?"

"I don't know, I just thought maybe you might have noticed something strange—seen or heard something that might seem not quite right to you." He paused. "I'm sure Amos has told you all of what's been happening around here."

Amos nodded his head in agreement.

Michael lowered his voice, "It makes me mad seeing somebody trying to frighten a bunch of nice old ladies, and I intend to find out what's going on." And he looked meaningfully at Randy.

"Sheriff, I'll tell you just like I told Amos when he asked me. I ain't seen nothing or know nothing, but if I do I'd be the first to tell. Miss Jo's been real nice to me and I don't want no harm coming to her neither." He proceeded to go back to his meal.

"Just remember that you do." Michael rose to leave.

"Mr. Michael," said Amos, "what happened to your new car? I seed a bad dent in that rear bumper and I din't notice it there yesterday."

But Amos was left to wonder, for the Sheriff squared his shoulders, heaved a hugh sigh, and without answering stalked from the room.

Cooking School

Do your cakes fall? Does your souffle suffer? Are you tired of the same old casseroles? If the answer to any of the above questions is yes, or if you would just like a chance to watch someone else cook for awhile, then come to the Southern Kitchens Cooking School at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 at the Sikeston High School Field House.

The school is sponsored by Progressive Farmer Magazine and The Daily Standard. In addition to the fun of the show, several valuable door prizes, donated by particpating local merchants, will be given away. Each person attending will also be given a packet containing the school's recipe book, redeemable product coupons and food preparation tips.

Admission to the school is by ticket only. Tickets are free and can be obtained from many local merchants who are displaying the cooking school theme in their stores.

Join us Sept. 2, and find out what's cooking.

Hot water sets blood stains

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — A board that came inside a bolt of fabric works beautifully for pressing the legs to slacks. Any fabric shop will gladly give you one, I am sure.

I would so much like to know what will take dried blood out of clothing. — MRS. G.F.

DEAR MRS. G.F. — The blood stains are doubtless set in the garment, if it has been washed in hot water. Otherwise, soak in cold water 30-60 minutes. If the stain remains, put three tablespoons household ammonia in a gallon of luke warm water and soak for half an hour or so. If stain is still there, rub detergent in stain and then wash, using a bleach that is safe for the fabric. Of course, all such remedies are to be used only if safe for the fabric in question. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that prescription and over-the-counter drugs do not have termination dates for their use on the labels. The customer never knows when they are no longer satisfactory, or can't be safely administered. — MRS. M.C.

DEAR POLLY — I was shocked to read that one of the readers cut up flea collars and put them in her cupboard to keep bugs out. These collars are toxic to even dogs and cats and I hate to think of any food absorbing this. To keep the bugs out just scatter a few bay leaves around, after throwing away all infested food. Then clean cupboards and put food in tightly closed jars. The enclosed article by Ralph Nader explains about these flea collars and their danger. — MRS. M.V.B.

DEAR POLLY — I have so many name and address labels that have been obtained one way or another and have found a wonderful use for them other than their usual one. My husband and I have our bookshelves full of books that were often quite costly so I pasted a label on the inside cover of each one. Whenever a book is loaned to someone, the borrower has no trouble remembering from whom it was borrowed. Our books get returned rather than forgotten. — MRS. E.A.L.

DEAR POLLY — I use the pointed end of a grapefruit spoon to dig out the stem part of strawberries, radishes, etc. You can put a finger down to the edge of the spoon without cutting yourself and make a neat job of surgery without squashing the fruit. I discovered this after an eye operation when I could not see too well. — MRS. D.E.H.

DEAR POLLY — Our back yard garden produced tomatoes and so on for us, but was a real source of food for the squirrels. We cut an old green garden hose into various lengths and laid the pieces around the plants. The squirrels thought they were snakes and left our produce alone. — VERA.

DEAR POLLY — Recently, I used that popular hand soap with pumice in it to clean my stove and appliances when I was out of my regular cleanser. It did a wonderful job that was better than any cleaner I have used for this. It is a lot cheaper too. — VI.

DEAR POLLY — After making bread or pastry I save all that excess flour that is on the board and store it in a clean empty canister and when I need to flour meat or chicken before cooking I use this flour that would otherwise be wasted. — JOLEEN.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

Carter hits Ford vetoes

SEATTLE (AP) — Claiming that President Ford's vetoes of social legislation have contributed to "needless human suffering," Jimmy Carter has sounded what will be one of the major themes of his presidential campaign.

On the second day of his four-day campaign swing to the West and Midwest, Carter repeatedly accused the Ford administration of neglecting the needs of the American people, particularly the disadvantaged.

The Democratic presidential nominee switches emphasis today, when he discusses pardons for draft dodgers, international terrorism and the need to reinstill respect for the military, in a speech at the American Legion national convention here.

In Los Angeles Monday, Carter criticized Ford's record of 55 vetoes in the last two years. He called it a "record of political insensitivity, of missed opportunities, of constant conflict with Congress, and of national neglect."

Those vetoes by Ford, whom Carter termed "an appointed president," "demonstrate a degree of negativism, dormancy and a fear of action that only can be harmful to this country," he told a luncheon sponsored by the Los Angeles Town Hall Forum.

As he has done before, he indirectly mentioned Watergate and President Nixon.

"The country has lost faith in its government, in part because of the revelations of official lying and spying and bugging, the resignations in disgrace of both a vice president and president. ..." Carter said.

He also denied that he was a big spender and antigovernment, labels often attached to him.

"I am antiwaste in government," he said. "I don't believe in giveaway programs. I don't believe in wasting money. I believe in tough, competent management."

Carter spent half his time in Los Angeles mixing with rich California Democrats and the Hollywood elite and the other half calling for more concern for the underprivileged and urging blacks and Chicanos to register to vote.

At a party given by actor Warren Beatty, Carter told more than a score of other actors that politicians "have a responsibility to bypass the big shots, including you, and people like you and like I was, and to make a concerted effort to understand people who are poor, black, speak a foreign language, who are not well educated. ..."

U.S.-Korea talks

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea today agreed to a meeting on Wednesday of the joint Korean Military Armistice Commission to discuss the safety of Americans in the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

The United States demanded the meeting and proposed that it be held today. But North Korea proposed a delay until Wednesday afternoon, and the United States agreed.

The United States asked for the meeting in Panmunjom, the truce village in the demilitarized zone, to seek assurances from North Korea that there would not be a repetition of the clash last week in which North Korean guards killed two American army officers.

State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said the United States would demand assurance that "our people will not be harmed."

The American aircraft carrier Midway and four escorting warships were maneuvering off the coast of Korea. American forces in South Korea were reinforced by two fighter squadrons from Okinawa and the United States, and American, South Korean and North Korean forces on the peninsula were all on precautionary alerts.

But the State Department made a conciliatory gesture with a new comment on a statement by North Korean President Kim Il-ung terming the incident at Panmunjom "regretful."

"We recognize that the North Koran statement expresses regret over the incident and we consider this a positive step," Funseth said. "Nevertheless, this does not change the tragic fact that two American officers were brutally beaten to death without provocation."

Another State Department spokesman said on Sunday that the statement was unacceptable because it did not acknowledge responsibility for the slaying of the two Americans.

Funseth added that assurances from North Korea that Americans would be safe in the future "would improve the climate" in Korea.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said the United States "is anxious to cooperate in relaxation of tensions, but we want to make sure there is no miscalculation concerning our firmness in the area."

The North Korean Communist party newspaper, Rodong, charged that the Midway task force had entered North Korean waters. Pentagon sources in Washington said the Midway task force was off the coast of South Korea, well south of North Korean waters.

Attorneys argue over PSC rules

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission has the authority to issue standardized regulations for utility billing and service and those it has issued were based on extensive and detailed research, attorneys have told a Cole County Circuit Court judge.

But utility lawyers, arguing against the regulations before Judge Byron Kinder on Monday, claimed the commission did not have legislative authority to issue such board policy rules and they should be invalidated.

Attorneys for the commission and the Public Counsel's office, which represents consumers before the PSC, asked Kinder, however, to let the standardized billing rules be tested by both the companies and the public before action is taken to nullify them.

Kinder delayed implementation of the so-called "Consumers' bill of rights" last spring at the request of 13 gas, electric and water companies. The regulations, adopted by the commission on a 5-0 vote last December, would have taken effect on June 26.

The regulations ban security deposits in most cases, prohibit penalty charges for late payments, give all customers 21 days to pay bills before facing possible disconnection and forbid disconnection on weekends or holidays.

The utility companies have claimed the regulations are an illegal invasion of utility management, but supporters of the regulations claim they serve to protect the public.

"It is not for the commission to go out and tell the companies what their regulations are going to be," James C. Swearengen, attorney for Empire District Electric Co., told Kinder. "We're not here on a mere technicality. We're here because it's a bad order."

Swearengen said implementation of the order would "cost a lot of money for no good reason," and Robert L. Hawkins, also representing the utilities, estimated the cost at between $10 million and $11 million for the ban on late payment penalties alone.

Both men claimed the standardized regulations in effect nullified utility rate schedules and procedures that were already on file with the commission without proving that those procedures wrre unreasonable.

Agriculture appropriations bill will aid rural Missouri

By STUARTY SYMINGTON
United States Senator

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The President recently signed the $11.1 billion Agriculture Appropriations bill, H.R. 14237, which will fund the fiscal year 1977 U.S. Department of Agriculture and related agencies' activities.

In addition to the general administration of USDA, the bill covers expenditures for rural development programs, domestic food programs and international trade and assistance programs. It also funds such related agencies as the Food and Drug Administration, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Farm Credit Administration.

As passed and signed, the bill appropriates some $800 million more than the administration had requested.

One example of the type of programs which would have been eliminated or cut is the Rural Community Fire Protection grant program, under which some 61 Missouri communities received a total of $85,875 to buy much-needed fire equipment for their volunteer fire departments in fiscal year 1976.

Funding for this worthwhile and relatively inexpensive program was continued at the same rate of $3.5 million by the Congress.

Another administration cut would have eliminated all conservation programs within the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and replaced them with a single conservation measure, but with only 40 per cent as much in matching funds.

Because of the world food situation and the drought conditions which struck many of our midwestern states this year, the Congress believes a greater conservation effort, not less, is justified for the future.

Due to the substantial escalation of land costs, Congress also appropriated the same amount for Farmers Home Administration farm ownership loans for FY 1977 as for FY 1976 ($450 million), 28.5 per cent more than the administration's request.

Wasting billions of dollars on foreign adventures but not providing adequate funds for proven programs to help the people of rural America maintain the productivity of our land resources shows sadly misdirected priorities.

A half-pound of ours makes as much as two pounds of theirs.

An 8-oz. jar of Taster's Choice® Freeze-Dried Coffee makes 120 (6-oz.) cups of coffee. That's as much coffee as you'd get from two pounds of ground roast (following recommended serving directions of the leading national brands).

And since you make Taster's Choice by the cup, you never end up throwing half a pot down the drain.

So the next time you're comparing who gives you what for your money, remember: It's not how much it costs a pound.

We think you should price coffee the way you drink coffee. By the cup.

It's how little it costs a cup.

(And looking at it that way, one of these coupons is worth a lot of cups on us.)

Potatoes originated from Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kids like them as carry-out french fries, gourmets ogle them fondly as baked companions of steaks and scientists prowl distant lands in search of new seed stock to improve them.

The potato, says the Agriculture Department, has a lineage going back centuries to the Andes of South America where natives knew of their food value long before Europeans explored the new world.

So common place are potatoes that it is easy to take them for granted. But farmers who grow them and scientists who fret about their vulnerability to disease and pests are continually searching for ways to improve them.

The department's Cooperative State Research Service says that scientists and potato breeders have been concerned about a steady need for developing and promoting better seed stock.

"Discovering superior characteristics in potato stocks and combining them in productive varieties is...a difficult task because of the complicated genetic composition of the potato, its susceptibility to many diseases and pests, and the considerable ime required to develop stocks and determine their breeding and agricultural value," the agency says.

By and large the efforts have been successful, however, because for nearly 30 years federal and state projects have been set up to develop better potatoes on a coordinated scientific basis. A regional program was started in 1948 at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and since 1950 has expanded into a full-fledged interregional program called IR-1.

In the past 15 years there have been 15 expeditions to Latin America to seek new germ plasm or seed materials from wild-growing and cultivated plants of Solanum tuberosum, the potato's scientific name.

Specimens are processed by USDA's Germplasm Resources Laboratory, Beltsville, Md., and then sent to another facility for one or two years of quarantine to guard against the introduction of diseases.

Eventually, the potato stock ends up at Sturgeon Bay for further research and distribution to breeders.

Potatoes are a major world food source, grown on more than 50 million acres and totaling more than 300 million tons annually. In the United States, potatoes are grown commercially in most states at one time of the year or another and comprise around 1.5 million acres and an output of about 15 million tons annually.

There is winter and spring potato production in California, Florida and other states with mild climates. Summer production occurs generally across the country, but the fall crop is by far the most important.

Last year, for example, the fall potato crop accounted for more than 276 million 100-pound bags of the U.S. total output of 319.8 million. The record total potato production was 342 million hundredweight in 1974, of which 288.7 million was from the fall harvest.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government inspectors found no traces of the chemical DES in the nation's meat supply in the second quarter of this year, the Agriculture Department says.

The chemical — diethylstilbestrol — has been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals when fed to them in large doses. A synthetic growth hormone, DES is fed to cattle to make them gain weight faster.

During the first three months, three beef livers were found to contain DES among 472 checked, officials said.

Tests during the second quarter involved livers from 459 animals.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A campaign to eliminate the threat of screw worms from U.S. livestock herds enters a new phase next week with the formal dedication of a new $14 million facility in Mexico, says the Agriculture Department.

The facility was built in Tuxtula Gutierrez to produce sterile male screw worm flies that will be distributed along the 125-mile-wide Isthmus of Tehuantepec in southern Mexico. Officials hope that this will result in a barrier zone that eventually will eradicate screw worms from most of Mexico and the southern United States. Female screw worm flies exposed to the sterilized males will lay infertile eggs.

The department said Thursday that Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz will join with Mexican President Luis Echeverria to dedicate the new sterile screw worm fly plant Aug. 25. The United States is paying 80 per cent of the cost of the $14 million facility.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

BREAD-CEREAL GROUP

Foods in this group provide worthwhile amounts of protein, iron, and several of the B-vitamins and food energy.

Foods Included: All breads and cereals that are whole grain, enriched or restored. Specifically this group includes: breads, cooked cereals, ready-to-eat cereals, corn meal, crackers, flour, grits, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, rice, rolled oats, quick breads and other baked goods if made with whole-grain or enriched flour. Parboiled rice and wheat also fit in this group.

Recommended Amounts: Four or more servings daily. Or, if no cereals are selected, choose an extra serving of breads or baked goods, which will make at least 5 servings from this group daily. Count as 1 serving: 1 slice of bread, 1 ounce ready-to-eat cereal, ½ to ¾ cup cooked cereal, corn meal, grits, macaroni, noodles, rice or spaghetti.

The Bread-Cereal Group is an important source of carbohydrates. In days of old, we had to depend on home baking for breads but today our markets make available a wide variety of bakery products in ready-to-serve, partially-baked, frozen ready-to-serve, prepared-frozen and many other forms.

Recently, there has been a resurgence of home baking as many enthusiasts are recapturing the nostalgia of old-time kitchens with their aroma of hot bread fresh from the oven. If you bake your own bread, remember that milk, whether liquid or powdered skim, enhances the food value of the bread.

Breakfast cereals, whether ready-to-eat or to-be-cooked, are whole grain or fortified in some manner. When it comes to rice, most consumers still prefer white rice although brown rice has more nutrients (the B vitamins — thiamine, riboflavin and niacin) unless the white rice is enriched. While brown rice doesn't cook up as fluffy, it has an especially delicious taste many people find pleasing. You may want to try it the next time your menu calls for rice.

Longhorns may romp this season

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If Earl Campbell's thick thigh can withstand the stretches and strains of fall football workouts, the Texas Longhorns could romp during the regular season.

Campbell, a 231-pound junior with enough speed to outrun many defensive backs, missed spring training with a pulled hamstring muscle, and published reports pictured Longhorn coaches as fearful it would keep him out in the fall.

"Earl has a 28¾-inch thigh. That's a lot more to pull than the average leg," says Coach Darrell Royal, "but the story was blown way out of proportion. He's running full speed."

Campbell has run for 2,046 yards in two years, which has resulted in predictions that Campbell could be the No. 1 pro draft choice after his senior season.

Eight offensive and 10 defensive regulars return from the Texas team that won 10 and lost two last season, finishing sixth in the college football poll after belting Colorado 38-21 in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl.

Absent, however, will be quarterback Marty Akins, who was all-Southwest Conference.

His probable successor is sophomore Ted Constanzo, who was roughed up by Texas A&M's top-ranked defense last year in a 20-10 Longhorn loss after Akins got hurt. Constanzo's challengers are another sophomore, Mike Cordaro, who got such a slow start that Royal didn't learn to pronounce his name for months, and Randy McEachern, who must overcome practice jitters.

The offensive line appears solid, and several freshman speedsters, including Olympic gold medal winner Johnny Jones, a member of the 400-meter relay team, should put pep in the halfback corps.

Wide receiver Alfred Jackson is rated a future pro star by Royal. And kicker Russell Erxleben averaged 41.4 yards a punt and hit 10 of 13 field goals as a freshman.

Defensive coach Mike Campbell fretted over the way Colorado "marched up and down the field" in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl, but he says his veteran defense has "experience, pretty good quickness and size where you need it."

Where you need it is at defensive tackle, and Royal and Campbell are impressed with junior Brad Shearer, 6-foot-4 and 260 pounds, and Ernest Lee, 6-4 and 250. Shearer was all-SWC last year, and Lee led the team in tackles in Texas' final two games.

The all-senior linebacking trio of Bill Hamilton, Rick Fenlaw and Lionell Johnson were credited with 400 tackles in 1975, and Johnson must fight off the challenge of a 228-pound sophomore, Dwight Jefferson, to keep his job.

New books are available

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The Memphis District, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, announced today that "A Century on the Mississippi, A History of the Memphis District, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, 1876-1976," by Dr. Floyd M. Clay, is now available for distribution to the public.

The 294-page hard-bound book traces the development of the Corps' flood-fight work in the six-state Memphis District over the past century. Complete with numerous illustrations and full-page color photographs, the history tells the story of the river and the riverfolk from the days of the old-time luxury steamboats to the modern era of sleek and efficient working river vessels.

Copies of the history are available from the Memphis District, Corps of Engineers, Room 565, Clifford Davis Federal Building, 167 North Main, Memphis, Tennessee 38103.

Pfc. Metheny is a 1974 graduate of East Prairie High School.

Ford men had votes, Reaganites had the zeal

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In the tensions and struggles of the Republican National Convention, one of President Ford's campaign problems is etched sharply:

He cannot stir in conservative hearts the ardor that burned for Ronald Reagan, but he must have the armies of the Republican right at work for his ticket.

In the four days of the 31st Republican National Convention, Ford men had the votes, but Reaganites had the zeal. And that zeal is what motivates a campaign volunteer to do the dull, hard, unpaid labor of any campaign.

The conservatives can, and did, speak the ritual vows of Republican unity behind the ticket. But pledges of support won't get the envelopes stuffed, the doorbells rung, the precinct lists checked, the leaflets distributed, the GOP vote out on election day.

Those are the labors that can tip an election. The Ford-Jimmy Carter race looks one-sided now, but both nominees say the gap will narrow now that the President has his Republican nomination.

Among Democrats, the detail work frequently is handled by the forces of organized labor. Among Republicans, there are no more effective nuts-and-bolts campaign workers than the conservatives.

Ford invoked the spirit of Harry S. Truman, patron saint of the uphill campaigner, to stake his claim of coming victory in the Nov. 2 election, no mind what the polls and the pundits may say.

The President, a Truman fan nominated in the city of Truman, aimed the first major address of his campaign at the average American, sitting at home.

"It is from your ranks that I come and on your side I stand," he said in Thursday night's acceptance speech. "And I predict right now that the American people are going to say, 'Jerry, you've done a good job. Keep right on doing it.'"

To get them to say that, Ford will need the active help of the Republican party's best foot soldiers, and many of them are the conservatives who worked, and wept, for Ronald Reagan.

The risk to Ford now is not like that of Truman's 1948 campaign, when the left and the right wings of the Democratic party split off and ran candidates of their own.

A group of Young Americans for Freedom, among the most ardent of conservative factions, chanted "Third party, third party" for a while at the convention's closing night. There were only about 20 of them, despite tentative plans for a conservative meeting to talk about a bolt, it seems unlikely such a move could go anywhere.

As Rep. Robert Baumann of Maryland, conservative as they come, told the convention:

"There are those who say we need a third party. I say to you what we need is a good second party, and this is it."

Baumann said the Republican struggle was between two conservatives, not between the left and the right.

Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, one of the favorites of the right, a Reagan supporter who pushed harder than his candidate for tough, conservative language in the platform, spoke out for the ticket.

He praised the platform as a good one, a strong one, also hailed the selection of Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas as Ford's vice presidential nominee.

Reagan said that if a third party is to be considered, it should not be now, just prior to an election, but after Nov. 2, if the Republicans lose.

At Ford's invitation, Reagan had the last word, the final speech, of the convention, and it was all that the President could have asked from his beaten challenger.

" ... We've got to quit talking to each other and about each other," said Reagan. " ... We must go forth from here united, determined and what a great general said a few years ago is true: there is no substitute for victory."

Reagan, too, stressed the party platform, "a banner of bold, unmistakeable colors. ... " For his supporters, with Ford's agreement, had colored it conservative, particularly on the issue of American policy toward the Soviet Union.

Indeed, during the week of preparatory sessions and the four convention days, it seemed Reagan could have anything he wanted — except the one thing he really wanted, the presidential nomination.

Only on points that directly affected that prize did Ford and his strategists resist Reagan.

After they won the test that foretold the nomination, on Reagan's effort to compel Ford to announce in advance who would be running with him, the President put out the word to cool it, go along, get along.

For hours, Ford representatives tried to negotiate a compromise on a platform amendment that unmistakably criticized administration policies of detente. The language, which Reagan proposed, could have come from one of his campaign speeches. And Reagan men, led by Helms, refused to budge on the platform issue.

There was a dispute in the Ford camp over what to do. At one point, the President wanted to fight the Reagan amendment.

But Tarzan, Ford's code name on his team's convention communications network, changed his mind, left the tactics to his floor managers.

Early Wednesday morning, word went out over the walkie talkies: Ford's floor managers and whips were to stop talking to newsmen about the foreign policy amendment. "We've caved in," said one of them. And the Reagan amendment was adopted without a Ford fight, in the name of party unity.

There was more to it; Ford's strategists did not want to risk a vote they feared they might lose, on an issue that was one of Reagan's strongest during the primary campaign.

No matter, the cover served the real interest of the President. His nomination was assured Tuesday night, sealed on Wednesday, 1,187 votes to 1,069 for Reagan, but closer than Republicans had seen in 24 years.

Then, the narrow verdict went to Dwight D. Eisenhower, a national hero both parties had tried to recruit as a sure thing for the White House.

Now, the split decision belongs to a president by appointment, the leader of a minority party, the far-back trailer in polls against Jimmy Carter.

At convention hall, there was warmth in the cheers and ovations for Ford. But there was fire in the battle cries for Reagan, even in the chants that sounded when finally, in defeat, he made his appearance in the stands Thursday night.

As the delegates disbanded on Friday, the enthusiasm gap was showing. In an Associated Press survey, more than 80 per cent of the delegates who supported Reagan said they would vote for the Ford-Dole ticket, but many of them said their personal efforts now will be concentrated on GOP candidates at home, not on the national ticket.

"There's an awful lot of bitterness right now," said L.E. Thomas of Panama City, Fla., Reagan's state campaign manager there. "But when they think about the alternatives, most of them will have to come around."

Thomas said Reagan supporters would have worked more diligently in the fall had the former California governor been on Ford's ticket.

Reagan said he would not accept that nomination. He also confirmed that the President did not offer it to him.

"I'm going back to my garden," said Helen A. Turnell of Salem, Ore. "I'll vote for Ford, but only because Carter is worse."

"Oh, I'll vote for him, but I don't know whether I'll do any work," said Mona Hinman of Kremmling, Colo.

That is the mood Ford needs to crack.

Reagan pledged to work for the President's election, and said that if the Republicans lose, there should be "a reassessment of where we go and how we put that great new majority together."

Then he went home to his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

Ford, in yet another gesture toward the conservative challenger, said he thinks Republicans should consider the advance disclosure of vice presidential nominees, now that it is not at issue in a contest over presidential nomination.

Reagan had named his vice presidential choice, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, long before the convention, in a tactical maneuver that was part of his campign to beat Ford. The President withheld his until Thursday noon, after using the selection as part of his own strategy.

Incidentally, Schweiker got two votes for the vice president nomination when the convention ratified Dole.

Anyhow, Ford told the Republican National Committee Friday that a rule like Reagan's should be considered for 1980.

As if to spread some icing on the unity cake, Dole said that Reagan had suggested him to Ford for the vice presidential nomination. Ford said earlier that Reagan had endorsed his selection.

He had discussed it with the challenger by telephone Thursday morning, hours after an unusual, early-morning visitation upon the Californian he had just defeated for nomination.

The echo of Reagan's campaign even was evident in Ford's challenge to Carter to meet in debate.

Reagan partisans had argued all week, and Sen. Paul Laxalt had said in nominating him, that the former actor and California governor would be a master of campaign debate. Television once was his profession.

Local teenager talks about the Republican convention

By PETER MYERS

These are my impressions of the Republican National Convention in Kansas City. Let me begin by thanking The Daily Standard, and Tony Pippen in particular, for making it possible for me to go.

Leaving the convention Wednesday night, I met some Pennsylvanians who were having a hard time finding a way back to their hotel. I was happy to give them a ride because what we found out about each other was very interesting.

One of them, while getting in the car, found a Reagan poster which I had picked up in Kemper Arena where the convention was held. "Hey, look who this guy's for," he said. "You don't mind, do you?" I asked in a reserved tone since there were five of them and one of me.

"Are you kidding!" he said. "I've been working for Ronald Reagan since I can remember."

Three of them were delegates, and the one to whom I was talking was one of those few Pennsylvanians who had voted for Reagan earlier that night. What a great person he was. They all were.

When we were near their hotel the Reagan delegate (I've forgotten his name, but when you really know a person -- communicate with them even for 30 minutes -- the name doesn't matter) leaned forward a little and said, "I don't know how you feel about President Ford, but America just cannot afford Jimmy Carter. I peferred Reagan, but President Ford is a good man, too; he's done a lot to hold down spending."

This is one of the most striking examples that I remember which shows the unity of the Republican Party. One of the most frequent question delegates were asked was whether the party would stay united or would split into two warring factions. Certainly it is a united party.

In Missouri, for instance, those for Ford or for Reagan, such as Gov. Christopher Bond and Thomas B. Curtis of St. Louis, each said that he would support the nominee of the convention without reserve.

When Reagan spoke to the Missouri caucus Wednesday morning, he affirmed his support for Ford if he failed to get the nomination. He reaffirmed that position in his speech Thursday night.

Speeches, such as those given by Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Jessee Helms of North Carolina and Robert Dole of Kansas were monuments of the determination of party faithfuls to stand together, presenting the electorate a viable alternative in November.

Yes, the delegates fought hard for their candidate: but, when they won, they won gracefully, and when they were defeated, they were defeated nobly.

It was the first convention I have attended, and many have said that it was the noisiest -- even the rowdiest -- that the Republicans have had. (It is not every day that one sees the vice president dancing on his chair with a telephone; but then, Nelson A. Rockefeller has never been vice president.) It was their day; not the spectators' day, not the news media's. They had fought long and hard for their individual beliefs. One delegate remarked that he never would have pictured himself acting like a young kid, but that he enjoyed every minute of it.

Those noises and shouts and hurrays were their way of showing how hard they had fought, how hard they will fight and how much it means to them to be involved in the process and determination of this republic. They are now a united party, working for the fulfillment of their individual beliefs in the inherent freedom which lies within the American Constitution.

Many of the long exhibitions of noise and emotion may have been less than informative for some of the viewers, therefore one idea may be beneficial for those who saw the convention on television. By being at the convention, one could see the entire activities, uninterrupted by commercials. Instead of running these commercials during speeches, as was done as times, perhaps the national networks could have run these financial necessities during the demonstrations. There were many times during the course of the convention when a commercial or ill-placed interview prevented the nation from seeing many excellent addresses.

Television viewers were unable to completely hear the superior addesses of such notables as Mary Louise Smith, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Gov. Bond. In this regard, the national news media has a firm grip on what the national populace is able to see and hear.

Perhaps, though, many were able to hear such speakers as Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Alf Landon of Kansas, John Rhodes of Arizona, Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia and Dr. Tooke from New York. The acceptance speech given by President Ford was one of the best speeches he has ever made. If he continues as well, and if he stands behind the Republican platform, then voters will have a choice between two certainly different approaches to government.

It was fitting that the last address given before the benediction Thursday night was presented by Reagan. It exhibited, as Sen. Helms had exhibited earlier, a deep respect for the Republican party; but more than that, it displayed a certain value of belief in the foundation upon which the party rests, in the principles embodied by the party platform and in the ideals of freedom and conservative construction which have made this such a grand nation in which to live.

Many felt, as did Vernon Landgraf, a delegate from Cape Girardeau. Reagan supporters were disappointed, but non disenchanted. They felt that the party had lost the chance of presenting to the nation a true statesman.But they felt that the difference was still extreme between the two remaining contenders for the presidency. They will work within the party and give it all they have to give: unity preserved for four more years.

The convention was fun; it was a great experience. It brings to mind -- beyond the rhetoric, the noise, the people -- the issues of security and balance which face us today. Freedom is a fine thing to have, but it requires careful attention. A free republic does not rest, not is it blind.

Those within its sphere of life should not fall blindly to supporting completely any faction or party; nor should they compromise their values and ideals for any purpose, unless to serve in strengthening and improving those values and ideals.

Many virtues are necessary for any republic to serve its citizens. Two such virtues are presented here for common consideration; reponsibile conservatism and truth -- not token facts, but truth.

A little vinegar in the water can help remove water spots from glass.

Capahas rally to win

Bi-state League title eludes Saints

"I knew when we came down here," said Cape manager Jess Bolen, "that we'd have to score a lot of runs to stay in the game."

His Capahas did just that, scoring six times in the last two frames to erase a four-run Saints lead and win the Bi-State League championship playoffs by a 12-10 score. Both teams were low on pitchers, forced to go with hurlers who hadn't worked recently,and the hitters were in midseason form. Three home runs flew out of spacious V. F. W. Stadium, including a leadoff shot by Capaha right-fielder Troy Vieth in the ninth that tied the score at 10-10. A three-run shot by Jim Saulter, his thrid roundtripper in three playoff games against the Caps, had erased a four-run Cape lead in the fifth.

The visitors scored first, touching Saints starter Mike Foster for four first inning runs. A pair of Saint errors made all of the runs unearned, but it was the Capahas ability to "hit 'em where they ain't" that gave them the early edge.

Sikeston got one run back in the bottom of the first when hot hitting Grant Dambach doubled Rick Eisenbach home. Then, a Terry Kitchen homer to rightfield in the fifth put the Caps' lead at 5-1.

The first two men in the Saints fifth fanned before singles by Eisenbach, Schatzley and a walk to Dambach filled the sacks. Eisenbach, Schatzley and a walk to Dambach filled the sacks. Eisenbach scored on a passed ball and Saulter belted the ball deep to right on the first delivery from starter Tim Smith. Vieth got a glove on the ball after a long run, but it popped out and over the fence or a 5-5 tie game.

The Saints scored a run in the sixth to go ahead 6-5 but Cape tied it again in the seventh on a walk and two singles.

With a 6-6 count entering the seventh, the Saints seemed to put the game away with a four-run rally. Three Cape errors added to a pair of hits gave Sikeston a 10-6 lead.

But, Cape knocked Foster out in the eighth while narrowing the count to 10-9. Then, they went ahead on Vieth's homer, followed by two walks and two hits. The Saints got two baserunners in the ninth, but a doubleplay ended the gameand the season.

"No team deserves the championship if they blow a four-run lead in the late-innings," said a team member. "But we gave 'em a hard time."

Waits tames Royals as Indians win 3rd straight

CLEVELAND (AP) — Red-haired Rick Waits battled both himself and the Kansas City Royals to a standstill Tuesday night, much to the delight of the Cleveland Indians.

Waits, 6-5, walked five batters but gave up only three hits and the Indians came away with a 2-1 victory, their third straight triumph.

The young lefthander, marked for stardom last season by Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson, showed flashes of his usual wildness but tamed it when he had to in stifling the awesome Kansas City bats.

"I felt like Rick would be the surprise of the pitching staff this year," Robinson said. "But he came up with arm trouble in spring training and he's just now coming back to where he should be. I still think he's going to be an outstanding pitcher.

"If we can harness him out there and make him not walk himself out of games, I tell you he'll be a real winner," Robinson added. "I can't remember a game where he was hit out...it's been the walks that have gotten him."

Tuesday night looked gike a rerun for a while as Waits walked Royals leadoff hitter Jim Wohlford to open the game and Wohlford came home moments later on a two-out single by Hal McRae.

However, Boog Powell drove in one run with a sacrifice fly in the first and Ray Fosse singled in the eventual winning run in the fourth, while the Indians provided some sparkling defensive play to keep the Royals at bay.

Leftfielder George Hendrick, who scored the second run off of Dennis Leonard, 15-6, also made two spectacular catches—the second coming on a fly ball near the foul line by John Mayberry after McRae singled leading off the ninth.

Second baseman Duane Kuiper then choked off the rally by robbing Al Cowans of a hit with a diving stop, turning it into a force play at second.

The loss cut Kansas City's margin over the Oakland A's to 7½ games, but Royals Manager Whitey Herzog shrugged it off, saying, "The Indians are just playing good baseball now, and so are we. These two games here have been fine baseball games."

The Indians won 4-3 Monday night, with Dennis Eckersley pitching a seven-hitter. The teams meet for the last time this season tonight, with Andy Hassler, 3-7, going for the Royals against Jim Bibby, 9-5.

NFL seeks to block grid betting

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Lawyers for the National Football League were to present arguments this afternoon in U.S. District Court in an attempt to suppress Delaware's planned pro football betting game.

The NFL has filed a request for an injunction which says the proposed wagering game "injures the integrity of sports, causes fan disinterest or suspicion and undermines the financial investment of the clubs."

The league is arguing its case before Judge Walter K. Stapleton.

Meanwhile, Peter M. Simmons, acting head of the Delaware lottery, said Tuesday he will go ahead with plans for the new game.

Simmons told a news conference officials want to have the lottery in operation by Sept. 1.

"We are continuing because we believe it is something desirable to the people," Simmons said, "and in the opinion of our attorneys we have a proper and legal right to do that."

MU having problem with hurt tackles

"All this talk about Big Eight champions and national champions is meaningless," said Nebraska Football Coach Tom Osborne, adding that after the first scrimmage he is not sure the Huskers will win a game.

"We had a few good individual things but we're a million miles from being a good football team," he said.

Missouri wrapped up two-a-day drills with Coach Al Onfrio still complaining about injuries.

"Most of them have been minor but they seem to hit one position harder and that's defensive tackle," Onofrio said.

Defensive tackles Keith Morrissey and Randy Frisch were on the injury list.

Coach Ellis Rainsberger was happy with the kicking game and his young Kansas State offensive lineman. "We've got some young kids who are reaally starting to come through for us," he said.

"Operations and hospital rooms cost a lot more than you think."

Falcone's five-hitter gives Cardinals sweep

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I kept their big guns from hitting it out but I couldn't keep their rabbits from getting on base," said St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Pete Falcone, still pale and looking a little green in the face.

The 23-year-old native of Brooklyn, N.Y. admitted to being "nauseous starting in the eighth inning," blaming the offensive pressure of the Cincinnati Reds, whom he held to five hits in a 4-1 victory. He had to scramble throughout with runners on base in each of the first seven innings.

"I didn't have a curve ball," Falcone said, "so I stayed with the fast ball and moved it everywhere."

The two-game sweep by the Cardinals prompted Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson to look over his shoulder at the second place Los Angeles Dodgers, who trail Cincinnati in the National League West.

"I never had the feeling we had it wrapped up, I don't know why," said Anderson, whose team has lost seven of its last 11 games. "We're just not hitting. The big guns have not been doing the job and it's not the fault of the pitching."

Johnny Bench is 0-15 after Tuesday's loss; George Foster is 0-17 and Tony Perez's lone hit Tuesday gives the first base platoon of Perez and Dan Driessen 1 for 25 in the last four games.

"I'm not changing anything" in the lineup, said Anderson. "They're gonna have to die there."

Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst conceded Cincinnati was slumping, but bouyed by the double victory, said, "I thought we just played real good ball the last two nights."

Keith Hernandez, the rookie St. Louis third baseman whose batting average has soared nearly 100 points the last month, was amazed at getting three hits off loser Pat Zachry, 11-5.

"He was the best pitcher in Triple A ball and I only had two hits off him in the last two years," said Hernandez.

Hernandez and Don Kessinger put back-to-back hits together in the second and fourth innings, the latter producing the go ahead run.

"Don makes real good contact with the ball. They were both hit and run plays," said Hernandez. "Keith has really been hitting the last month," said Kessinger, who has been dropped from second to seventh in the St. Louis lineup.

Pete Rose and Joe Morgan walked in the first, staged a double steal and Rose scored on Foster's groundout.

Football signup Saturday

Registration for the Sikeston Jaycee Little League football program will be held this Saturday, August 28 at the Sikeston High School cafetorium.

Boys in the sixth and seventh grades who weigh less than 155 pounds will be eligible for the program. Players must weigh in at the registration session, which will be from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

An insurance fee of $8.00 must also be paid at the registration session.

Players who cannot attend the registration Saturday should contact Charles Blanton III at the Daily Standard office soon.

Ten cut as Big Red make limit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have reduced their Nationasl Football League team roster to 50 players by placing four on waivers, four on the injured reserve list and deactivating two rookies.

Waived were punter Jeff West, cornerback-kick returner John Mosley, wide receiver Cecil Beaird and running back Bill Rudder of Tennessee.

The waiver of West, the team's regular punter last year, means almost certainly that rookie Terry Joyce, who has handled the job during nearly all of the Cardinals preseason games, will get the special-teams assignment.

Ten-year defensive tackle Bob Rowe and rookie running back Randy Walker of Bethune-Cookman went on the injured reserve list along with rookies Lawrence Brame, a linebacker, and offensive lineman Greg Brewton.

Wide receiver Randall Burks and Larry Jameson were deactivated.

Skins pick up pair; Blanda may be through

AP Sports Writer

The veterans are heading for Washington as usual, while the "old man" may finally be heading for home.

Washington Redskins Coach George Allen, in an attempt to repair his porous defense by importing proven talent, obtained safety Jake Scott from the Miami Dolphins and defensive end John Matuszak from the Kansas City Chiefs.

In Oakland, the Raiders reportedly placed the "old man" — 48-year-old George Blanda — on waivers as the National Football League teams, with the exception of newcomers Seattle and Tampa Bay, whittled their rosters to 49 players by midnight Tuesday.

Blanda, who joined the NFL in 1948 with the Chicago Bears as the third-string quarterback behind Sid Luckman and Johnny Lujack, has been sitting on the sidelines this preseason watching rookie Fred Steinfort take over the Raiders' kicking chores.

"I don't care for being here as an insurance policy in case the other kicker can't cut it," said Blanda on Monday, speculating that he would be released. "It's been frustrating and discouraging for me after all the years I've helped this team."

After scoring 2,002 points in 340 games over 26 years, Blanda said it was unlikely any other team would be interested in him. They'd have to "be nuts," he said.

Known for his preference of building teams with veterans, Allen obtained Scott and a high draft choice for defensive back Bryant Salter. Then he sent two draft choices — Allen's favorite trading currency — to Kansas City for Matuszak, a 6-foot-8, 275-pounder who was the first player chosen in the NFL's 1973 college draft.

The Redskins' defense, Allen's pride, has given up 80 points as Washington has lost three of its four preseason games.

Miami, besides sending Scott to the "Over-the-Hill Gang" in Washington, shuffled running back Mercury Morris off to the San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed draft pick. Both Scott and Morris had asked to be traded.

Dolphins Coach Don Shula said Tuesday a tentative agreement has been made to bring veteran Nick Buoniconti out of retirement to shore up Miami's injury-plagued linebacking corps.

Also on the busiest auction day of the season so far, Detroit sent running back Altie Taylor to the Houston Oilers for two undisclosed draft choices; Houston picked up running back Joe Dawkins and offensive tackle Dave Simonson from the New York Giants; the Dallas Cowboys sent wide receiver Cornelius Greene to Seattle, and the Los Rams traded center Ron Kecman and cornerback Gregg Butler to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Eagles win SFSL crown

The Eagles clinched first place in the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League last night with an easy 6-1 victory over Eby's Distributing at the complex.

John Chessor fired a three-hitter for the Eagles, who needed only one victory in their last two games to win the flag. They will play the Bank of Sikeston tonight in the final game of the season. A Bank of Sikeston victory would assure them of third place in the league.

New Madrid Vo-Tech to begin Sept. 9

HOWARDVILLE — The New Madrid County R-1 Vocational Technical Skills Center plans to open instruction in adult evening classes Sept. 9. The classes are scheduled to meet weekly for three-hour sessions from 6 to 9 p.m. each Thursday.

Classes starting April 14, 1977, will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights and end on May 19, 1977.

A minimum of 10 enrollees is necessary to open a class, and the 10 must be adults presently working in the field of instructional choice and needing instruction to improve or upgrade skills, or they must be people presently unemployed desiring to develop job entry skills.

Once the minimum of 10 persons meeting either of these criteria is reached, courses are open to all up to the maximum that can be handled.

In each course, a fee is charged to cover cost of materials used in the instruction, and the fees are payable when the course begins.

An organizational meeting for each class will be held the first night scheduled for the class to meet. Individuals may pursue the entire yearly offering or enter on starting night in any course.

Instructional areas, course, length and starting dates include:

Marston Day plans set for Sept. 5

MARSTON—The second annual Marston Day is set for Sept. 5. Initiated last year with excellent response, the day has been designated solely for the purpose of encouraging former residents to return to Marston during the Labor Day weekend to renew friendships, get acquainted with new residents and meet former residents who will be returning for the affair.

No special activities are planned, except that the noon meal will be served by the civic organizations, and families are asked to join in the fellowship and visiting at the school grounds.

It is requested that children attending be accompanied by their parents.

There will be a display of old photographs of people and places in and about Marston. Persons who might have such pictures are asked to bring them to the gathering, along with their own lawn chairs.

SCARC to begin fund drive

DEXTER— The Stoddard County Association for Retarded Citizens will start its annual fundraising campaign drive throughout the county Aug. 30.

Marjean Mayer and Emma Adams, co-chairmen of the drive said, "Together you and I can help mentally retarded people." This is also the national campaign theme.

Pat Evans is the house to house chairman for Dexter. Mrs. Joe Weber is the business solicitations director for this year. The town's publicity chairman is Shirlene Stubbs.

The Bernie campaign chairman is Judy Crump. Margaret Jones is handling the Advance area. Dale Williams is in charge of the Bell City area.

Elizabeth Petty is chairman of the Essex area. Raymond Duffie and Bertie Cook are the Bloomfield business chairmen. Beth Welborn will be in charge of the roadblock donations in Bloomfield.

Mrs. Mayer said donations will be "greatly appreciated." She added that all the money collected will be put to good use.

Mrs. Mayer has statistics that show three per cent or more than six million people are believed to be mentally retarded. More than 100,000 babies are born every year mentally retarded. The report showed that by 1980 with the growing population, 6.8 million people are expected to be mentally retarded unless far reaching preventive measures are taken.

The report went on to say that mental retardation affects all religions, races and nationalities. Mental retardation is four times more common than rheumatic heart disease, nine times more common than cerebral palsy and 15 times more common than blindness. One of every 10 persons is involved with mental retardation in some way.

Malden man is 'silver haired legislature'

JEFFERSON CITY— Malden Mayor Sparrel Davis was elected as speaker of the House of Representatives for the 1976 Silver Haired Legislature while attending a preliminary session here Friday.

Also attending the session was Clara Sample of Advance who was appointed to the Consumer Affairs Committee. The preliminary session, held in preparation for the general session which will take place Oct. 7, 8 and 9, attracted over 150 persons from around the state.

The session was addressed by Speaker of the House Richard Rabbitt, and Senate President Pro Tem William Cason. Additional training was provided by representatives of The National Retied Teachers Association and The American Association of Retired Persons.

The purpose of the Silver Haired Legislature is to give older Missourians an opportunity to express legislative concerns and develop an ongoing educational program which will promote involvement of older persons in the legislative process.

Other Southeast Missourians attening were Ethel Baumgardner of Poplar Bluff, Wallace Gagnepain of Perryville, Wayne Miley of Winona, Hardy Martin of Doniphon and Ancil Swinford of Farmington.

Thefts probed

BENTON (Special) — The Scott County Sheriff's Department is investigating two separate thefts that occurred over the weekend.

Authorities said a 12-gauge shotgun, a rifle and 19-inch color television was taken from the mobile home of Kenny Miller of rural Commerce sometime Friday or Saturday. Thieves gained entrance by breaking the lock on the front door.

A 21-inch television was reported taken over the weekend from the home of Carlie Hankin of rural Morley.

DOG MULTIPLIES

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Paul Felth and his family got more than they bargained for when they acquired a free dog through a newspaper advertisement recently.

A few weeks later, the St. Bernard, named Brandy, gave birth to 14 puppies. One died soon after the birth.

When they got Brandy, nobody was aware she was pregnant, said Mrs. Felth.

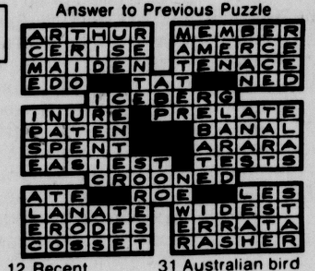
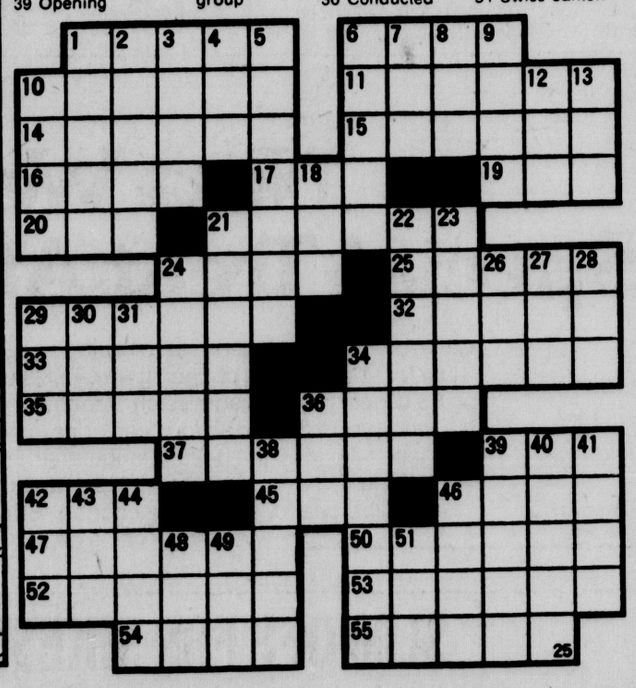
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 25, the 238th day of 1976. There are 128 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1944, in World War II, Allied troops liberated Paris.

On this date:

In 1689, Iroquois Indians attacked Montreal and killed its 200 inhabitants.

In 1718, French immigrants founded New Orleans.

In 1883, a volcanic eruption in the Dutch East Indies created tidal waves that took about 36,000 lives.

In 1921, the World War I peace treaty between the United States and Germany was signed in Berlin.

In 1941, British and Soviet troops invaded Iran in World War II.

In 1967, the leader of the American Nazi Party, George Rockwell, was shot to death in Arlington, Va.

Ten years ago: Teenage Red Guards in Peking, China defaced a Roman Catholic academy, and the Communist government ordered the institution closed.

Five years ago: The Communists hit U.S. installations at Cam Ranh Bay, Da Nang and four other bases in South Vietnam.

One year ago: The Greek government commuted the death sentences of former President George Papadopoulos and two others who had led a military coup in 1967.

Today's birthdays: Alabama Go. George Wallace is 57 years old. Composer and conductor Leonard Bernstein is 58.

Thought for today: This will remain the land of the free only so long as it is the home of the brave — Elmer Davis, writer and radio commentator, 1890-1958.

Sikeston Public Schools to open Sept. 6

50 years ago
August 25, 1926

Warren Kingsbury is on the job with The Standard, arriving Monday.

New Madrid--Mrs. Paul Mueller and children of Jackson are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Riley, sr.

Sand crushed the life from the body of A. D. Harris Wednesday, while hundreds of people stood by helplessly watching the efforts of the men who toiled grimly away in an effort to get to the trapped man before death set in. The accident took place at 4 o'clock Wednesday in the ditch which the Rowan-Rickards Construction Co., is digging and laying sewer pipes in on East Center street, immediately in front of the Sikeston Electric Laundry. Harris, 28, was down in the 14-foot ditch laying tile sewer pipe, when the cave-in occurred.

The Sikeston Public Schools will open September 6, with registration of pupils in the morning. The faculty of the schools this year will be composed as follows: Roy V. Ellise, superintendent; J. H. Moore, coach and principal; Mrs. Josephine Veith, Miss Isabelle Hess, H. F. Sherwood, M. L. Granneman, Miss Georgia Jennings, Miss Emma Morehead, Miss Frances Burch, Miss Margaret Besgrove, and Miss Sarah Wilson.

Morehouse--L. A. Tickle, jr., of Poplar Bluff spent Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Tickle, sr.

Malone Theatre, today, Anne Shirley and John Beal in "M'Liss."

Charleston--Mr. and Mrs. George Drury and three children and Bud Drury, all of Detroit, Mich., are house guests of Mrs. Drury's mother, Mrs. Lillie Ruark, and uncle, Ben Swank.

C. E. Woodward of the State Highway Department, who was transferred to Fredericktown from Sikeston in early summer, is now stationed at Dexter.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Avelle Williams, Tuesday, a daughter. Mrs. Williams and daughter are in Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau.

The Sikeston schools will open for the 1946-47 term Monday, September 2, at all buildings, Supt. T. E. Stallings announced today.

Some 600 students of the Matthews Consolidated District schools reported for classes Monday, August 19, the date set for all schools to open, only to be sent home for an indefinite period, due to the outbreak of an infantile paralysis epidemic. A few days previously, little Caroline Kay Veeson, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Veeson of Matthews, was taken to St. Francis Hospital, seriously ill, and Sunday night her case was diagnosed as infantile paralysis, by physicians there.

The Matthews Consolidated School District board of education will meet Monday night, in conference with a number of contractors, in an effort to get construction started on its proposed new $96,000 school building.

Airport notes. Geo. Martin and Glenn Williams flew to Cape Girardeau on business Wednesday.

Mrs. Dora Belle Anders died at her home, 115 Fifth street, this morning. She was aged 73 years, having been born in Dunklin County, October 25, 1883.

Mrs. Walter W. Lankford entertained with a wiener roast at her home Thursday complimenting her daughter, Katherine Ann, who was eight year old that day.

Phyllis Barger celebrated her fourth birthday Friday with a party at her home, given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Barger.

Mr. and Mrs. Avelle Williams entertained Monday with a party in honor of the 10th birthday of their daughter, Jeanie.

Oran-- Mrs. Lora Forester McLain, 82, widow of the late William E. McLain, and a resident of Oran since 1892, died at her home here Saturday.

The marriage of Miss Mary Joan Henson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Henson of Williamsville, to Buell J. Gimlin, son of Mr. and Mr Ivan Gimlin of Sikeston, was solemnized in a candlelight ceremony on August 11 at the Williamsville Methodist Church.

Babies born at the Delta Communbity Hospital today were: A son to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Baker, Route 3; a baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson, Route 1, Matthews; and babies born on the 26th were: A baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hopkins, Route 2, Essex; and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. William G. Jones of Crowder.

It was a gala occasion for Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bugg when they celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary Sunday with a dinner at Cyrus' Restaurant at noon and a reception in the afternoon at their home, north of Vanduser.

Celebrates 1st birthday

Marcus Edmond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Edmond Jr. of Sikeston Route Three, celebrated his first birthday Aug. 14 at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks of Sikeston Route Three. Among friends and relatives attending the party were Marcus' parents and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Edmond Sr. of Parma Route One.

Dr. Lamb

Aorta may harden with age

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need some information about my father, who is 63 years old, 5 feet 7 and 180 pounds. His blood pressure is 165 over 90. During a recent examination an X ray showed calcium building up in the aorta. Will you please give us your advice on this condition. He takes medicine for his blood pressure and eats a fat free, no salt diet.

DEAR READER — The aorta is the large artery directly connected to the heart. It carries all the oxygenated blood out of the heart to the whole body. It arches above the heart and courses down along the spine until it divides into the arteries to the legs.

As people get older there is a tendency for the wall of this artery to calcify. This usually follows a build up of fatty-cholesterol substances in the wall of the artery — the process in arteries we call atherosclerosis. Because the aorta is very large the build up in it does not cause a blockage to the circulation, the way it does in smaller arteries to the leg, heart, brain or other parts of the body.

Normally the aorta is very elastic. As blood squirts out of the heart into the aorta it just stretches to accomodate the increased blood. Then it contracts by its own elasticity, helping to propel the blood along for its own normal circulation. This elasticity helps to keep the top blood pressure reading from becoming so high. But, as the elasticity is lost the aorta behaves more like a rigid pipe. When all the blood squirts out into the rigid aorta, the pressure rises immediately and higher than it would if the aorta were still elastic. So, your father's blood pressure is 165 when in a younger man it would be perhaps less than 130. This does increase the work of the heart some.

Because high blood pressure is associated with an increased risk of heart attacks and strokes, I agree it should be treated. Moderate elevation such as your father has does not require heroic efforts though as the treatment may be worse than the disease. Your father would do well to decrease the rate of development of fatty-cholesterol deposits in other arteries in his body. He needs to restrict his calories enough to make this possible.

I would also advise a daily walking program to help maintain his level of physical fitness and help him reduce. Everyone who can, should have an exercise program, even if it is just walking, to go along with a diet program when they need to lose weight.

You can't judge by pounds alone, but there is a good possibility that your father needs to lose as much as 30 pounds of fat. The program should be to go on a restricted calorie program with walking and keep on losing fat until there is no significant amount of fat under his skin, around his waist or other locations. It will take time but he should get started with such a program without delay. If he likes to swim he should be encouraged to do so.

To give you more information on blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter, number 1-8, Blood Pressure. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it.

Dexter hospital administration administrator resigns

DEXTER—L.J. Daniel, administrator of Dexter Memorial Hospital since early 1974, unexpectedly submitted his resignation Thursday night at a meeting of the hospital board.

John William Ringer, chairman of the hospital board, confirmed the resignation, saying that Daniel submitted the resignation at the meeting Thursday night.

The resignation reportedly is effective Oct. 1.

Reasons for the resignation apparently centered around Daniel's health.

The hospital said Daniel is on vacation, and he could not be reached for comment.

D.A.E.O.C. sponsors trip to Six Flags

SCOTT CITY— The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation office sponsored and financed a trip to the Six Flags Over Mid-America amusement park Friday for children of low income families. The group of 42 children and seven chaperones departed at 8 a.m. and returned about 10 p.m. The children and volunteer chaperones making this trip were from Oran, Chaffee, Benton, Commerce, Kelso, New Hamburg, Perkins, Rockview, Painton, Illmo and Scott City.

Mary Bain, coordinator of the Scott City DAEOC Center, made all arrangements for the trip. Personnel assisted in recruitment of the children. This is the fifth year a summer youth recreation program has been sponsored by DAEOC.

Memorial plans for the Litton's are announced

Family and friends of U.S. Representative Jerry Litton have established a memorial fund in his honor at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Litton and his family died in a plane crash Aug. 3 after he won the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Litton, who earned a degree in agricultural journalism at UMC in 1961, is well remembered among faculty and staff, particularly in the College of Agriculture.

His identity there predates his college days through his connection with the vocational agriculture student organization, Future Farmers of America.

John Sweeney, director of the UMC Development Fund, said that initial gifts already have been made to UMC in Litton's memory.

Proposals for the memorial gift include using it to encourage development and leadership potential in UMC students by providing scholarships, prizes or recognition awards or to fund specific activities which afford opportunities for student leadership on or off campus.

Litton's rural background and leadership which he provided in Future Farmers, in agriculture and in government, will be recognized by giving preference in selection of recipients to those who show promise of leadership and service in these areas.

The recipients and the number and amount of scholarships, prizes or awards or other use of income from the memorial will be decided by a committee designated by the dean of the College of Agriculture, Elmer Kiehl.

Such awards will be identified in bulletins and announcements as the Jerry Litton leadership scholarships, prizes and awards.

Sweeney said that individuals may make tax-free contributions to the fund through the University Development Fund, 310 Jesse Hall, University of Missouri-Columbia.

Surfacing of streets to begin

MALDEN — Blacktopping of several city streets and parking lots should begin in "two or three weeks," according to City Clerk Roscoe Thornton.

Dewey Bryant Asphalt Contractor was the successful bidder at $2.05 per square yard for the project. The bid was approved at the last City Council meeting.

Thornton says the parking lots slated for paving are the city parking lot at the corner of South Decatur and East Main streets, the ambulance parking lot at the corner of North Decatur and East Main and the Malden Community Building lot.

Streets scheduled for blacktopping include:

West Francis, from Highway 25 to the railroad tracks; Walter Drive from Sidney to Highway 25; Royal Drive, from Stokeland to Highway 25; West Laclede, from Route AB to Madison; Sidney, from Royal Drive to Barrett; Moreland, from the alley east of the General Baptist Church to Highway 25; McDougal, from the alley east of the General Baptist Church to Ashley; Ashley, from Barrett to Moreland, Pine, from Towery to Alberta; Burkhart, from Stokeland to Alberta; Third Avenue, from South Ohio to Illinois; Illinois, from Third Avenue to the end of Illinois; South Indiana, from West Second to the end of South Indiana.

West Second, from South Ohio to South Indiana; gravel road, from the railroad tracks to Highway 25; Broadwater Road, from Stokeland to Charlotte; Morelan Drive (two-lane divided) to Benton; and North Stokeland, from Broadwater Road north.

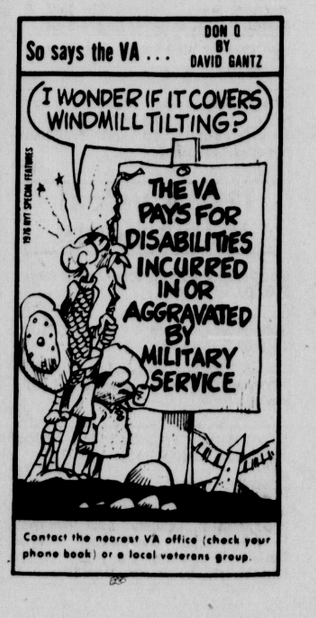
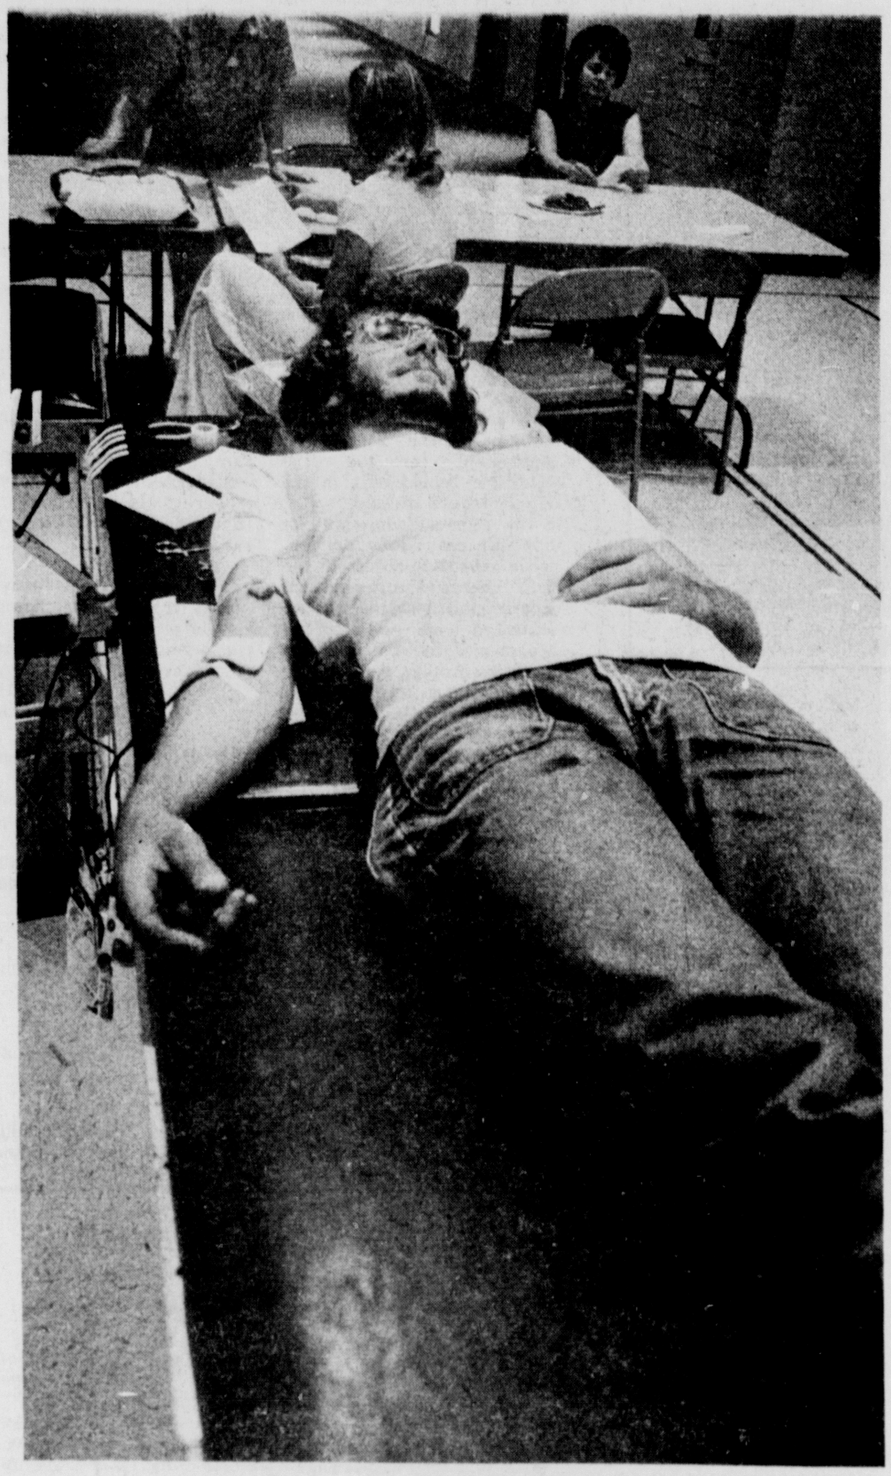
So says the VA ... DON O BY DAVID GANTZ





Blood donor

Bryan Crites, 605 Holly Hill, took time Tuesday night to donate a unit of blood for the Red Cross blood bank. The blood drive, held at the First United Methodist Church, obtained 88 units of blood, according to Anita Woods, volunteer chairman. The goal was 140 units. Another drive is being held today at Broadway Methodist Church in Scott City. Another blood drive will be held here in October.

Carter attacks Ford-Butz farm and consumer policies

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Carrying his campaign to the Midwest, Jimmy Carter said today the Ford administration has neglected the family farmer and American consumer and has failed to establish a stable agricultural policy.

"We need to take agricultural leadership in Washington out of the hands of the corporate interests and the grain speculators," Carter said in a speech prepared for delivery at the Iowa State Fair.

"We need a president and a secretary of agriculture who understand the problems of the family farmer and the consumer — and if I am elected, we're going to have both.

The peanut farmer from Plains, Ga., who is confident he has a strong chance of winning in President Ford's native Midwest, made Des Moines his last stop on a four-day campaign trip. Aides said he would try to capitalize on what he believes is significant discontent in the farm belt over Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and the administration's farm program.

He has attacked Butz as a supporter of big agricultural businesses, lacking understanding and support for small farmers.

"We need to close the revolving door between the agriculture department and the large special interests," Carter said.

"If I am elected, we will make sure that our support prices are at least equal to the cost of production. That will not guarantee profit — no real farmer wants that — but it will give the determined farmer a chance to stay in business."

Alan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau, criticized Carter's tactics.

"Most farmers are for Earl Butz because of his attitude toward farming and the free market system," said Grant, whose membership includes 2.5 million farm families in state farm bureaus.

Grant was questioned Tuesday in Springfield, Mass., about reports that Carter would attack Butz. "They'll lose on that," he said.

He said the issue of family farms vs. large corporations "comes up every four years, but the facts remain the same." He said that the ratio of family-run to corporate-owned farms has remained about steady during the last three decades.

"The farmer himself will save his farm, if the government allows the free market to function," Grant said.

The Democratic presidential nominee also attacked export embargos placed on agricultural products by the Nixon and Ford adminstrations in the last three years, calling them "a record of unparalleled incompetence.

"It's not my idea of a fair shake when the government promotes foreign sales and then cuts them off for political convenience.

"It's not my idea of a fair shake when inside speculators, with special connections in the agriculture department, make windfall profits on grain deals while the producer himself sells at a loss."

Carter had said Tuesday night when he met with representatives of two dozen national farm organizations that if elected president he would never authorize an embargo singling out foreign shipment of U.S. farm products.

"Under my administration, if I'm elected, there will never be another embargo that singles out farm products," the former Georgia governor said during the meeting with representatives of such groups as the National Farmers Organization, Farmers Union, National Grange, American Farm Bureau and National Corn Growers Association.

Embargoes on shipments of U.S. grain, particularly last October's embargo on shipments to Russia, have been a sore point with many farmers who claim they lost money because of them. The administration has said that no farm sales were lost because all available ports and ships were tied up at the time of the embargoes.

Carter also said that, if elected, he would do what he could to clean up what he called "the dirty situation" in the country's grain inspection system.

An ongoing federal investigation of the grain export business in New Orleans has resulted in the conviction of more than 50 grain companies and individuals.

After his arrival Tuesday evening, Carter spoke to a crowd of about 5,000 persons who attended a rally on a farm near Des Moines.

Conran man hurt seriously

Two persons were injured, one seriously, in separate traffic accidents Tuesday, according to the highway patrol.

A Conran man suffered serious injuries in an accident at 2 a.m. Tuesday on Highway 162, six miles east of Portageville.

The accident occurred when the driver of an eastbound pickup truck, Gary Don Mattingly, 27, of Conran, ran though a stop sign at a "T" intersection, drove 300 feet into a soybean field and overturned. Mattingly lay in the field until 7 a.m. Tuesday when a passing motorist reported the accident.

Mattingly suffered serious injuries and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital by the Portageville City Ambulance. He will be transferrred to Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

An accident at 12:20 p.m. Tuesday on a city street in Lilbourn resulted in minor injuries to a Lilbourn girl on a

U.S. demands North Korea punish killers

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United States demanded today that North Korea punish the soldiers who hacked to death two U.S. Army officers at the Panmunjom truce village a week ago. North Korea proposed physical separation between Communist and allied guards at Panmunjom to prevent clashes like the fight in which the two Americans perished.

The U.S.-led United Nations command declared the separation proposal "may be a positive step" and would be studied in detail — but said it meanwhile expects punishment of the North Koreans who killed the Americans in a dispute over pruning a tree.

"I have called this meeting for one purpose ... to inform you that our side calls for punishment of those responsible for the murder of the two UNC officers," U.S. Rear Adm. Mark P. Frudden told the North Koreans during a 48-minute session of the joint commission which oversees the 23-year-old

3 charged with sex soliciting

NEW MADRID — Three itinerant black women in their 20's, suspected of soliciting sex at Scotty's S & C Truck Plaza, located at the Highway 80 interchange on Interstate 55, were arrested at 1:30 a.m. today by New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Ronnie Adams.

Adams said he was notified by personnel at the truck stop that the women were harrassing truck drivers on the parking lot.

The women, identified as Linda Caldwell, Ruth Johnson and Linda R. Martin, were traveling in a car bearing California license plates but claimed to be residents of Georgia, Florida, California and other points.

A misdemeanor charge of prostitution was filed against them in New Madrid County Magistrate Court, and they were released after posting bonds of $25 each.

Thieves hit donut shop

PORTAGEVILLE— Early Bird Donut Shop, 209 King Ave., was burglarized Tuesday night. Items reported stolen included potato chips, gum and candy mints. Two half pints of milk were consumed at the scene.

A drive-in service window had been broken out to enter the building.

Garrison adds Stoddard attorneys to defense

BLOOMFIELD — Two Stoddard County attorneys this week agreed to act in the defense of Dr. Norman A. Garrison Jr. of Corinth, Miss., charged with the Sept. 8, 1974 murder of his wife, Lee Ann Garrison.

Jim Spain of Bloomfield and C. H. Parsons of Dexter entered appearances for Garrison Monday.

These attorneys are in addition to Jim Robison of Sikeston and attorneys in Mississippi who are defending Garrison.

Trial date for Garrison has been set for the week of Oct. 18 by Judge Rex Henson of Poplar Bluff, who was designated special judge in July after Judge Flake McHaney of Kennett disqualified himself.

The action came on July 7 and was because McHaney had presided over matters involving Garrison in the past, specifically his divorce from the late Mrs. Garrison.

The Garrisons separated in January 1974 -- eight months before her death -- and in June agreed to a divorce settlement that called for payment of

Escapees caught

BLOOMFIELD — Two juvenile boys who escaped from the Stoddard County jail Monday night were captured about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday and returned to the jail by the highway patrol, the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said today.

The two were identified as Carl Thomas Jackson, 17, and Brian K. Kirkpatrick, 16, of Bloomfield.

The escape was made when they pried back a heavy, wire screen on their second floor jail cell and leaped to freedom.

Another juvenile was reportedly in the cell at the time of the escape, but told the sheriff's deputies that he slept through the escape.

Both juveniles are now in the Stoddard County jail.

Drugs stolen in break-in

NEW MADRID— A sizeable quantity of narcotic drugs were stolen in a break-in sometime after midnight Monday at the Gideon Prescription Shop, according to New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo.

A double-door cabinet secured with two locks had been pried open with a bar to obtain the drugs, which Wingo said were valued at $255.80.

One of four drawers in the pharmacy cash register had been pried open, but no money was found.

The prescription shop is located in part of the Gideon IGA building.

After entering the building by prying open a northeast door, the thieves climbed over an inside partition into the prescription shop.

The sheriff's department, highway patrol and Gideon Police department are continuing the investigation.

Manager says plant shutdown temporary

The temporary closing of the Sikeston plant of Triangle PWC was caused by a low level of construction activity and the lack of demand for the company's building wire products, according to Charles McPhail, plant manager.

The closing will affect about 100 manufacturing personnel. Office and shipping employes will remain active during the shutdown, McPhail said.

The shutdown will be for one month and all personnel will be recalled a the end of that month, he added.

McPhail said the company is not planning a permanent shutdown. He said the company will be doing plant modification construction during the shutdown.

Burglars hit 2 homes

Burglars took $462 worth of merchandise from the Kenneth Marshall apartment, 518 S. Kingshighway, sometime between Friday and Monday, according to police.

Taken were 30 eight-track tapes valued at $150, a $70 tape player, an AM-FM radio worth $58, and FM stereo eight-track player worth $139, a hunting knife valued at $28, a spear gun worth $12 and a matchete valued at $5.

Hasps on the front and back doors were pried off, police said.

Vivian Russel, 829 Ruth St., told police that she discovered her .38-caliber pistol missing Tuesday. The gun wasvalued at $125.

Pistol, battery stolen

BENTON — Thefts of a pistol and a farm tractor battery in two separate incidents were reported to the Scott County Sheriff's Department Tuesday.

Danny Richardson, Oran Route Two, reported at 2 p.m. Tuesday that a 357-magnum pistol had been stolen from his trailer.

At 2:30 p.m. B.T. Johnson of Vanduser reported the theft of a battery from his farm tractor.

Value of the items and time the thefts occurred has not been determined.

The Scott County Sheriff's Department is investigating both incidents.

Scout roundup set Sept. 16

The 1976 Fall Roundup for Scouts in the Okeechobee District will be held Sept. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in schools throughout the district.

The roundup schedule was announced Tuesday night at the Okeechobee District Committee meeting at the Production Credit Association building, by David Corti, district executive. Roundup chairman will be Ernest Elledge, 809 Poplar Drive.

In Sikeston, boys interested in joining the Cub Scouts will meet at Southeast, Southwest, Matthews and Lee Hunter elementary schools. Boys interested in joining the Boy Scouts will meet at Middle School.

The schedule in other towns in the district includes:

Charleston: Warren E. Hearnes Elementary School, cubs and Scouts.

East Prairie; A.J. Martin Elementary School, cubs and Scouts.

New Madrid: Scott Street Elementary, cubs.

Morehouse: Morehouse Elementary, cubs and Scouts.

Benton: Kelly Elementary, cubs and Scouts.

Morley: Morley Community Building, cubs and Scouts

Oran: Oran Elementary, cubs and Scouts.

Parents of prospective cubs or Scouts are asked to bring their boys. A boy will not be able to complete his application without his parent.

Boys will be registered and assigned to units at the meeting. Boys and parents will also meet other Scouts and leaders, who will present displays and demonstrations.

Each school will be surveyed and literature will be sent to the parents about one week before the roundup.

The district committee also announced that cornerstone training for adult Scout leaders will be held in Sikeston on Oct. 11-12 and Nov. 8-9. Cub leader training will be held Oct. 5-6 and Nov. 3-4.

"LEGION FEVER"

We're not saying this is the explanation, mind you, but the mysterious and selective appearance of the killer disease "Legion Fever" at the American Legion convention in Philadelphia should at least alert us to the potential danger of biological or chemical warfare.

Consider the circumstances: 152 persons — all of them attendees at the Legion convention — are suddenly struck down by a virulent malady that kills one out of four. No one else, apparently, contracted the disease. It has not been transmitted to the friends or families of the afflicted. And although the Legionnaires stayed at three hotels where they mingled freely with the hotel workers who waited on tables, cleaned the rooms and handled their luggage and mail, not a single hotel employee was afflicted with the "disease," much less died from it. No wonder doctors are baffled. They can only tell us what it is not. Some are saying the cause may never be known.

Well, might a foreign nation, which had developed the causative agent for such a disease, seek to try it out in the U.S. on an experimental basis? The Soviet Union inevitably comes to mind. The Soviets are known to conduct extensive research in biological and chemical warfare. What more appropriate target, in their eyes, could there be than the American Legion — an organization not well known for its devotion to "detente"?

If the Soviets, or any other communist or terrorist group wanted to use biological warfare, it seems resonable that they might try to develop an agent which could be selectively used against command centers or troops units, for example. Something which could not be traced, which would not be contagious, and would not spread to the public at large. Something, in short, like "Legion Fever."

Again, we don't suggest that is what we are confronted with in this case. A conventional explanation may be discovered, and even if it is not there is no evidence of sinister origin. We say only that this ought to make us better aware of biological or chemical warfare could be like if ever it turned loose.

Forewarned is forearmed.

'WATCH' OUR COMEBACK

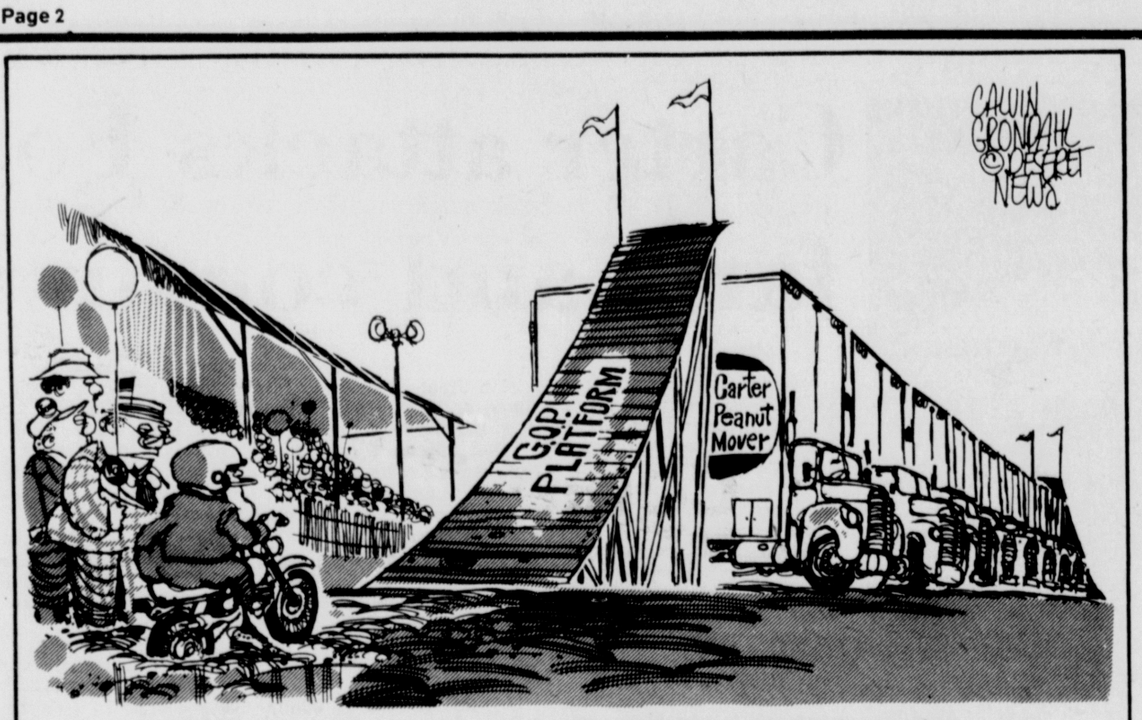
Striking proof (no pun intended) that the United States still sets the pace in advanced product tecnology is found in the phenomenal growth of the digital watch industry.

Digital watches are those little electronic jobs using light- emitting diodes (LEDs), which at the touch of a button show the time in hours and minutes and in some cases seconds, as well as the month and day.

For decades the American watch industry saw its share of the market declining in the face of competition from other nations, especially the Swiss. But now the Swiss and Japanese and other foreign watchmakers have found themsleves left high and dry by the surge of American companies, backed by modern electronics technology, in the new field of digital watches. The result, as Business Week recently reported, has been to bring watchmaking leadership back to the United States.

"We sold over 300,000 digital watches last year and we expect to do even better this year," says Eugene Gluck, president of E. Gluck Corp., the nation's No. 3 watch company in terms of unit sales.

As additional proof of the continuing vitality of the American free enterprise system, it is interesting to note that Gluck came to the United States in the 1940s as a wartime refugee from Europe and started his company from scratch. It now sells nearly three million watches of all types a year.



"Congratulations, Mr. Ford. No one deserves the chance to try this more than you do."

NEW YORK TIMES QUESTION

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

If you picked up a newspaper and read the screaming headline "Are We -- or Is Our Strategy -- MAD?" you would probably think you were reading a sensational tabloid.

Would you believe -- such a headline was recently splashed across the dignified New York Times?

The contents of the article were just as blunt. It came to grips with two life-and-death problems: the threat to the very survival of the United States from the tremendous buildup of Soviet military power, and whether U.S. national strategy for dealing with this threat might be totally wrong.

The New York Times quotes with respect, if not outright endorsement, statements from the London Times and London Economist that the Soviet Union will have "valid strategic superiority by the end of this year" and that the Kremlin leaders believe they could then destroy America without suffering unacceptable reprisals.

For the last 15 years, U.S. strategy has been based on the theory that the Soviets won't attack us because they know we would strike back and kill millions of Russians.

This theory of deterrence was once accurately explained by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger as the product of three factors: military power, the will to use it, and the assessment of those factors by a potential aggressor.

But please note: since deterrence is a product, not a sum, if any one of them is zero, deterrence fails.

The deterrence theory might have been true in 1962 during the Cuban missile crisis when we had an 8-to-1 lead in nuclear power. But 14 years later, the strategic balance is reversed, and the theory is perilously obsolete.

Many experts believe that because of Soviet bases in Cuba and our many cities which can be hit from Soviet submarines, the United States is at least 10 times as vulnerable to nuclear attack as the USSR is today.

Foy Kohler, our former ambassador in Moscow, summed it up like this: "Instead of a 'balance of terror' which equally restrains both sides, the terror would be mainly on the part of the United States."

British and American experts now say that the Kremlin leaders believe they will this year have enough military superiority, combined with such elaborate civil defense installations and preparations, that they will be able to destroy America without suffering unacceptable retaliation. If this is true, deterrence has failed, our strategy is indeed "mad," and so are the architects who devised it.

In the understatement of the century, The Times concludes: "Surely the American people have a right to be informed about the truth of the statements ... so that they can debate whether it is necessary to revise our strategic assumptions. Mere national survival should be the paramount issue of this autumn's election."

It's too bad we weren't told this early in the year, before 19 presidential primaries, so that the eager candidates would have all been forced to present their strategy for dealing with this "paramount issue."

However, we still have two months left before the election, and it's not too late to force policy commitments, from the candidates who remain in the race, on the matter of building adequate antimissile and civil defenses.

STILL THE BEST

A California Manufacturers Association magazine observes that New York, long known as the "Empire State," once stood at the head of the roster of states. It had the most and the best of everything, including population, industry and money. But now, as the California publication notes, New York is losing population, along with "...industry, plants, production, and jobs." The major problem is a hostile business climate.

Some of the factors that made it tough for business in New York included very heavy rates of taxation, excessive and unjustified regulation and such contributing things as handsome unemployment payments available for strikers. The business publication points out that in California the same sort of hostile business climate is resulting in a loss of people and productive enterprise to other areas with less oppressive regulatory and tax policies. The hope is voiced that California will learn its lesson from New York without actually having to experience it. It might be hoped also that the United States of America will learn its lesson from the evidence of history and correct the long-standing habit of taxing, regulating and criticizing its highly-productive private enterprise system out of existence.

Let's face it. How many people really want to buy their automobile of approved design and uniform gray color from a federally-operated factory outlet or purchase their groceries from a state store? Under such a system, it would be dangerous to have a private thought, let alone express it. Let's stand up for what we have. It is still the best there is.

TIME FOR RADICAL SURGERY

The candidates and the experts (they are not necessarily the same) have given us so many explanations of the horrendous $73 billion federal deficit recorded for fiscal year 1976 that average citizens can only be thoroughly confused. Not many of us can understand how, year after year, with inflation worsening and unemployment being held to barely tolerable levels, the Congress can continue to pursue the discredited course of trying to spend this country into prosperity. It has't worked in the past, isn't working now and won't work in the future.

The "cure" of inflationary deficit spending is proving more harmful than the "disease" of recession and unemployment. Inflation hurts everyone, especially the old and the disabled and the truly needy. And while special programs can be devised to help the jobless, little can be done for anyone if we continue to pursue chronic inflationary policies.

It is doubtful that there is any magic governmental medicine for our economic malaise. The only proven way for politicians to doctor our economy is to perform radical surgery on spending and do what is necessary to create a good business climate. Then the private sector can do what it has done so well during the past 200 years—provide the jobs and goods and services that have enabled an ever-increasing number of us to enjoy a steadily improving quality of life.

TERRORISM STANDS ACCUSED

CHAIM HERZOG, Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, has not wasted words trying to defend the Israeli commando raid on Uganda that freed more than 100 hostages of Palestinian terrorists.

While members of the Organization of African Unity, backed by Arab governments and the Soviet Union, have sought to label Israel as an aggressor, Herzog rightly has charged that it is his country that should be doing the accusing. It is, he suggested, Idi Amin who ought to be standing in the dock.

AMIN, ARROGANT AND rattle-brained dictator of Uganda, obviously made it possible for the terrorists to carry out their villainous scheme. The unfolding story of the Israeli raid shows what remarkable intelligence the Isrelis gathered on Amin and Uganda in their hurried preparations. So when Israel stands as accuser of Amin's role as a co-conspirator of sorts, its words are believable.

At one point Herzog told the Security Council, "I stand here as an accuser of the countries that because of evil design or lack of moral backbone, have collaborated with these bloodthirty terrorists. I stand here as an accuser of this world organization, the United Nations, which has been unable, because of the machinations of the Arab delegates and their supporters, to coordinate effective measures in order to combat the evil of world terrorism."

And finally, Herzog said, "Before us stands accused, this rotten, corrupt, brutal, cynical, bloodthirsty monster of internationalism and all of those who support it in one way or the other, whether by commission or omission."

THE UNITED STATES has lauded not only Israel's stand on this point of terrorism. William Stanton, the U.S. ambassador to the UN, also has forthrightly praised the raid itself.

And more than that, he has called on the Security Council to "record its collective view that international terrorism—and specifically hijacking—must be stopped."

It can be stopped only when hypocritical nations stop giving sanctuary to terrorists. It can be stopped only when the United Nations shows the moral fiber to direct its righteous indignation against international gangsters rather than powers that seek to protect their own citizens against air pirates.

PRISONER EXCHANGE WORTH CONSIDERATION

From The Kansas City Times

The issue of the abuse of American prisoners in Mexican jails continues to abrade relations between two friendly nations that ought to have more productive topics to engage them. The abuse is fact, only the full extent of it is uncertain. The question is what officials in Mexico City are prepared to do about it.

Many of the 550 Americans in prisons south of the border were confined for drug offenses. The U.S. has no quarrel either with the sternness of drug enforcement or the severity of the sentences. What is intolerable is the pattern of torture and other physical mistreatment, including the forcible extraction of confessions, and the frequent denial of access to consular or legal aid.

Six months ago the State Department had in hand more than a score of documented cases of physical abuse and nearly 100 of legal deprivation, and officials conceded at the time that there certainly were many more instances than had been verified. Release of the report added to the growing storm of indignation in this country and provoked impatient exchanges between the U.S. and Mexican governments.

As it turns out, Mexican authorities also are complaining about the lot of their nationals in American jails. So, when the subject came up during Secretary Kissinger's recent Mexico City visit, his hosts were reported privately to have made a novel proposal: Outright exchange of the 550 jailed Americans for the 1100 Mexicans behind bars in the U.S. for federal offenses.

The potential complexity of any such deal is obvious. Sentence schedules differ for the same offense, and it would be clearly intolerable for a prisoner sentenced to 20 years by the Mexicans to be serving alongside another, guilty of the same violation in the U.S., with a term of two years or less. Or, worse, to be incarcerated for what would ordinarily be a probated offense in this country. Parole laws also vary widely.

But with all its possible snags, the proposition nevertheless deserves close study. The alternative is to hope that Mexico will correct its penal abuses, and the wait for that is guaranteed to be interminable.

TRAGEDY OF NOT TRYING

Among the many complaints folks in outstate Missouri often voice is that appointments to the nations service academies too often go to young men in the big cities.

A recent announcement by a Congressman shows that of nine appointments, five were from the St. Louis area.

One of the reasons why a majority are from the urban sections is that there are more young men in them than in the rural areas.

Another is that seldom if ever does a student from our town or a nearby one even apply.

A service academy provides the finest education a young man can get. It is a tragedy of omission in not trying to get such an appointment.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Money for Machel:

Why is Sen. Clark fighting to subsidize Marxist African dictatorships?

LISBON -- And little children huddled amid their own strange fears. And cried. And clung to their mothers who weren't much less frightened or less tear-stained at first. Slowly one youngster, then another, improvised little playrooms in corners of hotel lobbies thousands of miles from home.

They weren't paying guests. They were in transit -- from their ancient soil to nowhere, at the new Portuguese government's expense.

In the crowded dining room of the not-so-luxurious Hotel Lutecia here they ate queitly, sisters and brothers and hopeless parents, staring into a stonewalled future. At that moment I wished the United States Senator from Paris, Iowa, Richard Clark, the debating champ from Iowa University, was at the table with me among these "miserables." Why?

Richard Clark is the semi-skilled intellectual who heads the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on African affairs. He is fighting to force the U.S. to contribute some 12 million American dollars to the weirdly totalitarian bush-league East African Marxist "republic" of Mozambique. From which these children, these parents had to flee for their lives.

Since Richard Clark, with all of 3½ years' experience in the U.S. Senate, hasn't been here or even in East Africa, how would he know of the sufferings of the "retornados" who are in flight from the year-old Communist African nation he is befriending?

These children are refugees from African Marxist dictator President Samora Machel. They are the victims of reverse discrimination. They hurt no one. They are of a line backing into some 470 years of farming, retailing and commerce in Mozambique, Angola and even Timor. Now they have no homes but the hotel rooms, the lobbies and the streets. They are the lucky ones who got out after the "liberation" fronts took over.

Now the Portuguese government must find $30 million a month to feed them, house them in hotels, pay specialists to find their parents overseas jobs.

Quite a task. There are some 800,000 retornados in Portugal.

I write this story at a great distance from Maputo, capital of Mozambique, because I, as other Western news people, can't fly in. That coastal nation's bearded dictator, sounding like the eerie ruler of Frederick Forsyth's mythical African dictatorship in "Dogs of War," doesn't want the truth told.

Why should he? He and others of his self-appointed and anointed cabinet returned from Moscow recently. There they arranged for the Soviets to build naval bases in Maputo (formerly Lourenco Marques) and other ports.

There they liaisoned with the Cubans, planning joint offensives in eastern and southern Africa. There they talked of Western "imperialist" Europe and America.

And at home in Maputo, protected by a free-swinging, free-stabbing, free-clubbing personal bodyguard, Samora Machel, president and dictator, chief of the Frelimo movement, runs a concentratin camp nation. Crawling prisons teem with tens of thousands of dissenters. Slave labor camps ("reeducation centers") are jammed with men and women who did little more than demand wages due them. Or whose crime was -- and is -- being Jehovah's Witnesses.

"Machelismo" comes as close to political psychosis as anything since Adolf Hitler bit a rug. Not too long ago, when Machel got into a sharp debate with a cabinet minister, the president's bodyguard stabbed the official. Another time, when a commercial jet pilot moved his aircraft too close to Machel's private plane (nothing's too good for the proletarian leadership) the bodyguard almost beat the aviator to death.

For the record, the report is that the stabbed man was Armando Guebuza, minister of the interior. He was cut down in the presidential palace.

Machel isn't an illiterate springing from the bush. He and his comrades in the Frelimo are intellectuals, poets, writers. This hasn't kept them from incarcerating over 60,000 persons. Nor has it kept him from Fidel Castro-like speeches running four hours and more.

He has nationalized almost everything in sight. Business, utilities, land and even private homes. And has paid for nothing.

He has warned workers they may have to wait three years for their wages. And he has spoken of a "solidarity bank" into which would be put expropriated pay.

He is collectivizing farms. Revolutionary justice is meted out to those who murmur objections. Unhappy soldiers are shot.

It's all there for Sen. Clark to see. Certainly, president Machel won't shut the airport to the gentleman from Iowa who wants to give Maputo so many million American dollars.

And it might do Dick Clark some good to get to Africa. After all, the Iowa Senator, an expert on Eastern Europe, is head of the African subcommittee. Wonder how he got the post?

Sen. Clark had better get there fast if he wants to hand out all that money. President Machel is asking the United Nations for $50 million a year to help him develop his country. And more money from UNCTAD (UN-Conference on Trade and Development). UNCTAD will hand out millions more. And some of those millions will be American dollars.

As the King of Siam once said: " 'Tis a puzzlement." That goes for Sen. Clark. Why does the gentleman from Paris, Iowa, want to subsidize a grisly dictatorship? Why help a new nation on whose coast the Soviet navy soon will park? Why not come here, Senator, and bring some toys, too?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Blue Collar Ills

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Blue Cross has been telling the American public that it does more "than just pay bills." That's true. The boys at Blue Cross like to run up bills of their own and stick Uncle Sam with the tab.

A confidential audit prepared by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare reveals that at least five Blue Cross companies overcharged the federal government thousands of dollars in the administration of Medicare programs.

The federal government pays the giant health insurance system $7.2 million per year to administer a portion of the $17.7 billion Medicare program. Blue Cross then signs subcontracts with its subsidiaries, which handle the day-to-day drudgery of processing claims.

The HEW report charges that Blue Cross subcontractors in Iowa, Maine, Nebraska, and Wisconsin purchased luxury automobiles, chartered private airplanes and foisted the bills off on Medicare. Here are the details:

— Some Blue Cross executives flew first class to business meetings and stayed at the finest hotels. They took their families along and charged it all to the government. "Charging Medicare for the meetings was a questionable practice," the audit states, "since the meetings were of a general nature, held in settings outside the contractors service area."

— Blue Cross officials in Iowa and Wisconsin bought fleets of luxury automobiles, which they charged to Medicare. These costs were "unreasonable," said the confidential audit, and "unallowable for reimbursement to the contractors."

— Blue Cross workers also charged the taxpayers thousands of dollars for "business automobiles" which they put to personal use. Employes in Iowa and Maine took the vehicles home after work and used them as if they owned them.

— Blue Cross executives often shunned commercial airlines and chartered private planes. In each instance, the audit charges, commercial flights were available. The public paid.

— Blue cross auditors who should have halted the waste of federal money simply looked the other way. On one occasion, according to a confidential memorandum, a government investigator grilled a Blue Cross auditor about the personal use of federal monies. "So what?" snapped the Blue Cross man. "We'll call it compensation and make the necessary adjustments."

Blue Cross' current Medicare contract expires at the end of September. Our sources predict, however, that the insurance colossus will flex its political muscle and get the agreement renewed.

Rep. Charles Vanik, D.-Ohio, chairman of the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee, will hold hearings on the Blue Cross Medicare contract later this month.

"We think this is the tip of the iceberg," said one House investigator. Vanik anticipates finding similar abuses in Blue Cross' administration of the Medicaid program and Defense Department insurance plans.

Footnote: A Blue Cross spokesman tacitly admitted to our associate Marc Smolonsky that the insurance organization had overcharged the federal government. But the thousands of dollars involved, he argued, was "insignificant" in comparison to the total amount of the contract. Blue Cross, he added, is trying to "correct the problem."

REVOLVING REPUBLICANS: This year Republicans won't be able to use the traditional campaign theme, "Don't change horses in midstream."

At least that's what Democratic party boss Bob Strauss is saying. In a fund-raising letter, Strauss outlines the game of government musical chairs the GOP has been playing during the past seven years.

Both Richard Nixon and Sprio Agnew resigned from office. That meant two appointed vice presidents and one appointed president, Strauss points out.

There have been six different Republican Attorneys General, five Commerce and Labor Secretaries, four Secretaries at Defense, Interior, and Health, Education and Welfare. The Department of Housing and Urban Development has had three different bosses in seven years.

Meanwhile, the CIA is on its fourth new director, as is the Budget office and the Federal Energy Administration. The FBI command has turned over only three times.

Strauss, of course, is pushing for one more change at all of these agencies. That would be the appointment of Democratic party faithfuls in a Carter administration.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Prior to a recent House poll on anti-abortion, Rep. Wayne Hays, D.-Ohio, was asked by his cloakroom colleagues how he planned to vote. Hays, who has admitted to a personal liaison with Elizabeth Ray, smiled back: "Since I've come out foursquare for (sex), I guess I have to favor abortion."

— Rep. Robert Giaimo, D.-Conn., may now be regretting his ardent support for congressional funding of a subway system for Washington. The construction crews have now made a trench out of the street in front of his home, and he is awakened every morning by the turmoil.

Area demos to back Teasdale

Bootheel Democrats who formerly supported Sen. William J. Cason for the nomination for governor in the Aug. 3 primary election met with winner Joseph P. Teasdale in a show of unity Monday night at Two-Tony's Smorgasbord.

About 70 party leaders from southeast Missouri enthusiastically applauded Teasdale when he spoke to them at a dinner meeting. His central theme was party unity.

But the meeting also symbolized, according to political observers, an emerging political strategy Teasdale will follow in attempting to unseat Republican Gov. Christopher S. Bond in the Nov. 2 general election.

Party leaders do not believe they will have any trouble in turning out a large majority for Teasdale, who they see as an attractive candidate and hard campaigner.

This is in contrast to the 1972 election when, with George McGovern at the top of the Democratic ticket and lackluster Edward L. Dowd as the gubernatorial nominee, they had problems keeping party faithful in line.

In fact, they point out, Republican inroads were made as the usually heavy percentage given Democratic candidates dropped. Bond got 40 per cent of the vote in the Bootheel.

Teasdale hopes to reverse that and the meeting here Monday was an early step in getting the support he needs from outstate party centers of strength, to challenge Bond.

Democratic strategists, in looking at the 1972 vote totals, note that Bond's nearly 200,000-vote victory was concentrated in several important areas where Democrats usually do better.

For example, nearly half of Bond's margin was in Kansas City and St. Louis, Jackson County, Teasdale's homeground and where he served as prosecuting attorney, gave Bond nearly 66 per cent of the vote.

Additionally, Bond carried St. Louis County by 75,179 votes. It is believed that Teasdale can cut into that strength.

The Democratic nominee went to St. Louis County Tuesday to meet with party leaders there. He expects to resume his personal campaign effort to voters about Labor Day.

Theft of tools, oil is probed

PAINTON— The Scott County Sheriff's Department is investigating the theft of hand tools and motor oil taken from an equipment shed belonging to Delane Streeter, Route One.

Approximately $1,000 worth of hand tools were taken along with two cases of motor oil. The incident was reported at 10:30 Monday night.

Arizona State plays eight night football games this season.

At wit's end

Sarah-Betty -Edna?

We were talking the other day about a strange phenomenon of Motherhood.

A woman starts thinking of a name for her baby from the minute she knows she is carrying one. She will write it out, say it aloud, try it out on friends and embroider it on little shirts. When the baby is born, she will whisper the name softly in its ear, write it on dozens of announcements and file it in the courthouse.

A few years and a few kids later, she can't remember who you are. I've heard mothers go through 10 or 12 names before they get lucky and hit the right one. (Once I wore my PJs wrong-side-out and my Mom thinking it was a name tag called me Dr. Denton for a week!)

Children seem to think there is something Freudain in the entire exercise. The old if-my-mother-really-loved-me-she'd-remember-my-name. This is hogwash. I love Marc...Mary...Mike...Mil... Mash...Maaa...whatshisname with the same affection as I love Bet...Bronc...Evelyn...Martha...Trish...you know who you are.

Our neighborhood psychiatrist bears me out. He said there is nothing you can generalize from mothers who can't put a name to their children right off the bat.

It used to be a good day for me when I could remember what I called them for, let alone remember who they are.

In talking with a young married the other day, it was revealed that he was one of seven children and not once when he was growing up was he ever called by his real name. "I guess it was because there were so many of us," he said, "that it confused my mother."

I hated to shoot his theory down but for a long while I was an only child and still got "Sarah...Betty...Mildred....Virginia...Edna."

Finally, in desperation, my mother would shout, "How long do I have to call you before you answer?"

I'd yell back, "Until you get it right."

"Was I close?" she'd shout.

"Edna was somewhere in the neighborhood."

"I always liked Edna," she mused, "I should have named you that."

"Then why did you name me Erma?"

"Because it was easy to remember."

Sen. Dole authorizes ads to avoid criminal changes against five newspapers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican vice presidential candidate Robert Dole retroactively authorized $288.56 in antiabortion advertisements as contributions to his 1974 Senate re-election campaign to avoid criminal charges against five newspapers, aides said today.

"They were placed without our authority" by an antiabortion leader, administrative assistant Bill Wohlford said.

That leader, Esther Surs of Shawnee Mission, Kan., said Tuesday night, "I'm not giving out any interviews or making any comments."

The pro-Dole advertisements in that hard-fought and closely decided campaign have been disavowed by the Kansas senator since the day they appeared, dominated by skull-and-crossbone drawings.

His opponent in the race, former Rep. William R. Roy, a gynecologist who said he had performed one abortion, has consistently accused Dole of orchestrating the ads. They ran the weekend before the election.

Both repeated those positions last week after Dole was nominated by the Republican National Convention to be President Ford's running mate.

Campaign-financing laws at the time imposed a spending limit on Senate candidates for media advertising and required that all newspaper ads supporting a candidate be authorized by him.

Newspapers carrying unauthorized ads could be subjected to criminal charges.

Wohlford said that an individual antiabortion crusader who distributed 50,000 anti-Roy fliers and the sponsor of the ads, Eastern Kansas Right to Life, an antiabortion group, were told that "there was no place for them in our campaign."

Nevertheless, the ads appeared shortly in newspapers in four cities, Wohlford said.

"We halted further publication of the ads right away, told the five newspapers they were not authorized ... and called all the papers in the state to make sure no more appeared," he said.

"Then, to make sure neither we nor the newspapers went to jail, we let the cost of the ads go in the records as a contribution. It was all publicly reported at the time, and we have never approved of the content of those ads."

Dole during that campaign did take an antiabortion stance and poked at Roy by telling some audiences, "I never performed one."

He said this weekend he favors a constitutional amendment, supported by the GOP platform, to overturn a Supreme Court ruling that states could not prohibit abortions during early pregnancy.

Sikeston couple is honored

Mr. and Mrs. James Morris

An open house honoring Mr. and Mrs. James V. Morris 407 N. Ingram, for their 25th wedding anniversary was held Sunday at the couple's home. Hosting the reception were their three daughters, Mrs. Mike (Diana) Riley of New Madrid, Mrs. John (Verna Kay) Dover of Bell City and Kim Morris of the home.

Servers at the reception were Betty Green and Kay Fodge of Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris were married Aug. 17, 1951 at Piggott, Ark. Mrs. Morris is the former Dorothy Nell Lindsey, daughter of Mrs. Alma Elliot of Charleston.

Cooking school set for Sept. 2

On Sept. 2 Progressive Farmer's Southern Kitchens Cooking School will come to Sikeston, co-sponsored by The Daily Standard. This is the school's third successful season and overflow crowds throughout the South continue to enjoy learning new recipes and techniques in the fun-filled atmosphere surrounding these schools.

In addition to the cooking class, door prizes will be awarded and a take-home package containing the school's recipe book will be given to each member of the audience.

Always keeping the budget in mind, emphasis will be on time-savers and simple gourmet dishes with an added attraction of creative ideas for entertaining. Members of the audiences will be invited to taste many of these tempting recipes, and several lucky people will actually win the dishes prepared on stage.

See your local participating merchants for an admission ticket and remember to mark your caldendar for Southern Kitchens Cooking School on Sept. 2 at the Sikeston High School Field House beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Free tickets are available from Bank of Sikeston, Lewis Furniture Co., Mark's Food Mart, Safeway, IGA Foodliner, Bruce's Big Star, Lindsey's M&H, the Sikeston Daily Standard, S&S Discount Foods Inc., Piggly Wiggly, Barkett's E-Z Mart, Grimsley's, First National Bank of Sikeston, Security Federal Savings and Loan Assn. and First Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR READERS — Thank you for the many many directions you sent for Mrs. W.H. who wants to crochet a book mark in the shape of a cross. Especially thanks to those who included beautiful samples. The following two letters tell how to make particularly lovely ones. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — A book mark such as Mrs. W.H. wants to crochet has been in our family for many years and these directions are ones I worked out from it.

I started by making a loop at the lower end into which I double crocheted (d.c.) 3, chain 1, d.c. 3, turn, chain 2 and repeat until right length is obtained (about 5 inches.) The number of shells made will be determined by the thread used. This shell pattern is continued out at either side for about an inch and placed so the side arms are about an inch and a half from the top. Picots were single crocheted all around edges and a tassel of the thread made for one end. — CECILLE.

Local library adds to shelves

New fiction books at Sikeston Public Library include: "Ordinary People" by Judith Quest; "Delores" by Jacqueline Susann; "The Blue Hammer" by Ross Macdonald; "The Pride of the Peacock" by Victoria Holt; "Galveston" by Suzanne Morris; and "Castle Barebane" by Joan Aiken.

Non-fiction works are: "Jack Benny" by Irving Fein; "Woman At Home" by Arlene Rossen Cardozo; "Why Not the Best" by Jimmy Carter; "Born Again" by Charles Colson; "Passage to Ararat" by Michael Arlen; and "Lyndon Johnson & the American Dream" by Doris Kearns.

Recital announced

MARSTON — The students of Mrs. Mabel Denison will give a recital at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Marston United Methodist Church.

Students from the Marston area playing will be Tony Stephans, Gary Lewis, Jamie Smith, Kim Chastain, Shane Harmon, Lori Chastain, Charles Finley, Kim Phillips, Mark Ellison, Amy Jo Ownes, Robin Burks, Heather McAllister, Melanie Ellison, Marsha Ellison, Laurie Clay and Linda White.

After the recital, a social hour will be held in the church dining room. The public is invited to attend.

Ann Landers

Whistling husbands not funny to reader

Dear Ann Landers: Your misguided advice to "Morph" set the Women's Movement back 100 years.

I agree-- a married couple who cannot get adequate rest in a double bed should go to twin beds, but your suggestion that the wife put a whistle on his nightstand left me cold.

Sexist humor is no longer in good taste. Unfortunately, too many of your readers do not have your intellectual capacity. They are sure to take you seriously. I pity the wives of the chauvinist males who will have that column used against them.

People are not to be whistled for like dogs -- especially wives of men who want sex. I'll bet the lambasting your receive for that shameful answer will bring forth an apology, but it can't possibly compensate for the damage you've already done. -- P.M.

Dear P.M.: If you don't have a sense of humor you're nowhere--which, incidentally, is the principal flaw in the Women's Movement. Sorry, P.M., I'm not apologizing for that answer. It was O.K. and I stand by it.

Dear Ann: The problem is bed-wetting. It is our son, the oldest of seven children. He reads your column religiously and we hope he will heed your advice.

We have had Arnie to a urologist for tests three times in the last six years. There is nothing physically wrong with the boy. He is 19 years old now and has ruined more bedding and mattresses than I care to think about. The doctor has given Arnie pills, which he "forgets" to take. All instructions not to drink liquids after 4:00 p.m. are ignored.

I can't tell you how upset I get when I go to make up his bed in the morning and find he has done it again.

What burns me up is he doesn't care. Any advice? -- Washing Machine Blues

Dear Wash: A 19-year-old boy who wets his bed and "doesn't care" is sending out messages. Tell him he can swim ten laps a night if he want to but from now on he must do his own laundry and make his own bed. (I'll bet he dries up fairly soon.)

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the woman who had her name legally changed misled you as well as countless others. She made it sound very simple. Well, it isn't.

First you have to go to the county courthouse and get a petition. It must be filled out and notarized by someone who has known you for at least five years. Then you must publicize it for six to eight weeks in a newspaper or a daily law bulletin.

Next step: You are required to get new copies of all certified documents, such as driver's license, marriage license, social security card, birth certificate, just about everything that bears your name.

The total cost for all this runs anywhere from $60 to $75. So please, Ann, let your readers know that there's more to it than Mrs. New-Name implied. -- Think I'll Keep My My Old Name

Dear Think: I feel like changing mine after all the complaints I've received. Charles Seib, Associate Editor of the Washington Post, informed me that Jack Crandall, Chief of Vital Records for the District of Columbia, had to straighten out a lot of people because of that flaky information. I've checked out yours and it is correct. So folks, now you have the straight goods.

Ann Landers discusses teenage drinking -- its myths, its realities. Learn the facts by reading "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Washington girl is state fair queen

Monica Ann Huber

SEDALIA — Nineteen-year-old Monica Ann Huber, Washington, was crowned 1976 Missouri State Fair Queen by Gov. Christopher S. Bond between grandstand shows Sunday night at the Missouri State Fair. Mrs. Huber, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Huber, Washington, will reign over the duration of the fair.

The newly crowned queen entered the competition as Miss Washington Town and Country Fair Queen. She was sponsored by the Washington Area Chamber of Commerce.

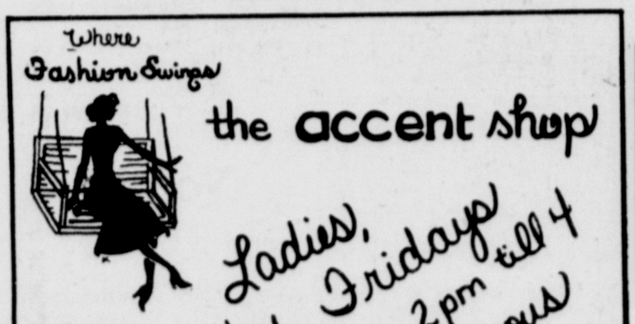
She will be a sophomore this fall at Southeast Missouri State University, Cape Girardeau. She plans to become a nurse. Among her special talents are piano, ballet and gymnastics. Last year she was a member of the university's gymnastic team. Her other interests include swimming, reading and tennis.

At St. Francis Borgia High School, she was a cheerleader and reigned as homecoming queen for one year. She also was editor of her high school newspaper and a member of the National Honor Society.

Miss Huber takes over the title previously held by Marilyn Barban, 1975 Missouri State Fair Queen.

Plans for the United Nations were made at the Dumbarton Oaks Conference in Washington, D.C., by the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union, Aug. 21-Sept. 28, 1944, and by the United States, the United Kingdom and the Republic of China (Nationalist) Sept. 29-Oct. 7, 1944, The World Almanac recalls. The UN charter was signed by 50 nations in San Francisco on June 26, 1945.

John Paul Jones is best remembered for his battle cry aboard the Bonhomme Richard: "I have not yet begun to fight!" The World Almanac praises Jones' earlier stirring call for enlistment aboard his ship: "Sign on, young man, and sail with me. The stature of our homeland is no more than the measure of ourselves. Our job is to keep her free. Our will is to keep the torch of freedom burning for all."



Deaths

Paul Leible

KELSO — Paul Leible, 72, died at 6:50 a.m. today in St. Francis Hospital at Cape Girardeau, where he had been a patient since Sunday.

Born Sept. 28, 1903 near Kelso to the late Jacob and Louisa Burger Leible, he was a lifelong resident of the Kelso community and a retired route man for Kelso Milling Co. and Cape Egg & Feed Co.

He was a member of St. Augustine Catholic Church and the Men's Sodality of the church.

On April 19, 1927, he married Leona Glastetter, who survives.

General Baptist begins construction on nursing home

CAMPBELL — Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new General Baptist Nursing Home were held Aug. 11 to mark the beginning of construction for a 900-bed nursing home presently operating in Campbell The building which houses the present nursing home was constructed in 1903 and was operated as a hotel for many years. The present home and contents were purchased in 1954 by the General Baptist Nursing Home Board of Directors and has been functioning as a practical nursing home since that time.

Wanda Britt, administrator of the present home, told officials during the ceremonies that the General Baptist Nursing Home is an asset to this area economically.

"The present operation employs 37 people with an annual payroll of approximately $170,000," she said. She explained that the new nursing home will have an increase of 12.8 per cent in residency, which will create more jobs within the community."

The General Baptist Nursing Home is partially supported by churches, organizations and individusials who feel that the non-profit home is rendering a worthy service to those in need of nursing care.

Ellis Renard, president of General Baptist Rest Home, Inc., announced that Pool and Canfield Construction Co. of Kansas City was awarded the construction contract and Earl C. McCamis was retained by the board of directors to formulate architectural plans and supervise construction.

According to McCamis, the latest nursing home design and techniques have been adopted to insure that a beautiful building will be located in Campbell. He said that every effort has been employed to see that the new home will be fully operational and safe.

McCamis said the brick building will be built along approved building specifications, including a sprinkler system throughout. Following the life safety codes will enable the home to come under the Medicaid program.

Under the Medicaid program, residents of the surrounding areas may be admitted to the new home regardless of their financial conditions.

The board has been preparing for the new construction during the past eight months and retained Health Projects, Inc., of Poplar Bluff, to coordinate the entire development.

Don C. Bedell, president of Health Projects, Inc., expressed his appreciation that tentative plans for finishing the new home should be in mid-March 1977.

Financing of home will be provided by Southern Missouri Savings & Loan Association, according to Thadius Seifert, an officer of the savings and loan association.

Trash haulers must collect fee

SCOTT CITY — Tom Arnold of Benton, city attorney for Scott City, advised Mrs. Orley Jackson and the City Council Monday night that since the city is not the fee collector for the trash collection service, the Jacksons will have to abide by the contract which does not specify a guaranteed number of customers. The contract further stated that the haulers will do the collecting.

Arnold said that in order to make the service premandatory the present contract would have to be dissolved and then put up for rebidding, specifying that the city would do the fee collecting. Arnold then recommended that a health officer be designated to review cases of violations against the ordinance and he (Arnold) would meet with the health commissioner Tuesday night to compile a list of rules and regulations to follow.

Mayor James O. Cauble said, "It is not the city's intention to bird-dog people to see that the ordinance is enforced, but when proof of the violation is brought to the city's attention, they will be prosecuted."

Mrs. Jackson stated that one of the major problems faced by the company is that several residents place their trash at one location to avoid making the monthly fee.

Cauble said this practice is in violation of Section 8 in the city's ordinance pertaining to solid waste collecting.

The council accepted the resignation of City Collector Virginia Richardson for reasons of ill health. The post will be filled by appointments.

Tabled for further study was the request of Jerry Moore to rent the land across the street from the city hall to put in a mini-golf course.

The council reviewed the need for street name signs and instructed Police Chief Ralph Hayes to designate where no-parking signs are needed on Main Street. The no-parking signs will be furnished by the State Highway Department.

The city heard reports from aldermen who have received complaints from their constituents about the weeds growing on city property.

The council agreed to install sewer hook-ups along Susan and Wheeler streets before the new paving is laid.

They agreed to reject Reutzel's paving bid since he will not sign the specifications to guarantee the work for one year, and the council will accept the Girardeau Contractors, Inc., bid to do the work.

Elizabeth Gentry, who asked to have Colony Park Drive and Mary Street oiled, was advised that her neighbors were circulating a petition to have Colony Park street paved.

The city will ask for bids for drainage ditch work on the south side of town. They put on the city work list trees to be cut down on city property along the streets.

They also agreed to contact Gene Rhodes concerning stagnated water behind his business buildings on Main street.

The city adjusted the water bill of Alice Urhahn and agreed to haul gravel for Jay Whitworth for his driveway, with Whitworth paying for the gravel.

The council agreed to allow Bruce Raines on Pennington Street to hook up with city sewers providing he pays the installation cost of running it to the city line.

Rotarian district governor speaks to Chaffee Rotary Club

CHAFFEE — "Service--The Objective of Rotary" was the subject of an address to the Chaffee Rotary Club last night by Dr. Thomas S. Messer of Cape Girardeau, gov. of Rotary District 609.

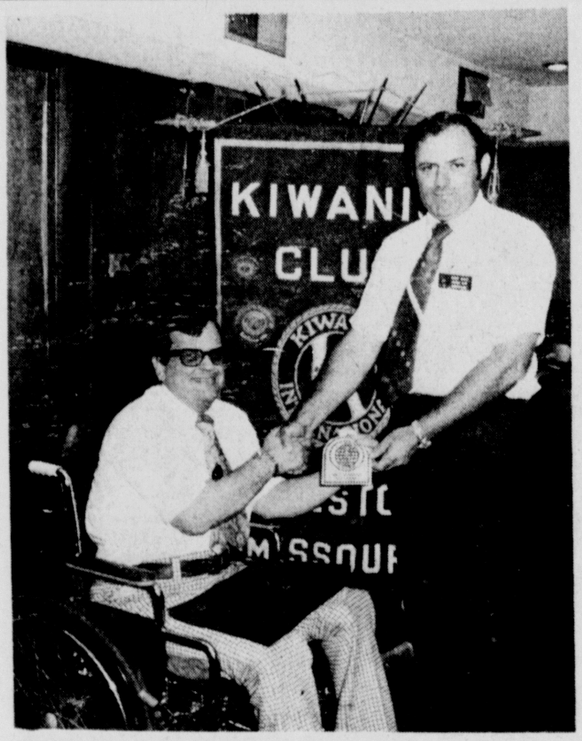
Earlier Dr. Messer confered with Wayne Crippen, president of the local club and other officials to obtain information on the group's planned service activities for this year.

The governor's official visit consisted of a conference with the local president one hour prior to the club meeting, the governor's address to the club and a club assembly in which the president and committee chairman stated goals, objectives, and plans of action.

Dr. Messer is one of 358 Rotary governors throughout the world who are representatives of Rotary International in districts composed of member clubs.

A member of the Rotary Club of Cape Girardeau, Dr. Messer is director of the Baptist Student Center at Southeast Missouri State University. He was elected to office at the Rotary International Convention in New Orleans in June and will serve until June 30, 1977.

Rotary, and international men's service organization, has more than 750,000 members in 17,000 clubs throughout the world.



Distinguished president

Senate nominee Warren E. Hearnes speaks to a hometown crowd in Charleston Sunday evening after returning from Jefferson City, where the Democratic State Committee gave him the party's nomination.

Charleston welcomes Hearnes back home

CHARLESTON— Several hundred Charleston residents turned out Sunday evening for a motorcade welcoming former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes back home after the State Democratic Committee had given him the party's nomination for the U.S. Senate seat to be filled iin the Nov. 2 general election.

The committee selected Hearnes Saturday by a vote of 38-22 over State Treasurer James I. Spainhower to succeed the late 6th District Rep. Jerry Litton, who was killed in an airplane crash on the night of his primary election victory.

Hearnes, in a brief address to the welcoming group, compared political races to athletic events. "Sometimes we win; sometimes not," Hearnes said.

Paying tribute to his fallen opponent, Hearnes said, "Congressman Litton ran a tough campaign. He did create a dialogue with the people of Missouri. He won that medal fate never let him wear. He would have worn it well and all of us would have joined his efforts to keep Missouri Democratic.

"I cannot wear his medal," Hearnes continued. "I din't win it. I cannot take his place with his friends or family. But as one who shared the race, one who traveled the length and breadth of this state in the campaign, I can and will finish the race.

"This political race, like others," he concluded, "may be like a relay. We work as a team.

Each person does his best, and then the baton is passed to someone else."

The mnotorcade of 50 or 60 cars met Hearnes' automobile at the Main Street overpass of Interstate 57 and escorted the former governor and his party through the streets of Charleston to the Hearnes for Senator headquarters, where Hearnes and his wife, Betty, both spoke briefly.

Hart speaks to Kiwanis

Don Hart, manager of the Sikeston Social Security office, was the featured speaker at Tuesday night's Sikeston Kiwanis Club meeting at the El Capri Restaurant.

Hart said the Sikeston office, a branch of the Cape Girardeau district office, opened in 1974 and serves 75,000 people in Scott, Mississippi and New Madrid counties, paying out $2 million a month.

When asked if the Social Security Administration is broke, Hart said the trust funds are solvent and have enough money for an additional five years. Hart said the Social Security program has been in this condition before and federal steps have always been taken to assure the continuance of the program, and he sees no reason for alarm.

Other guests of the club were Ken Sharp of Cape Girardeau; Division 15 lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis Mo-Ark District; Harold Kuehle of Cape Girardeau; and incoming Lt. Gov. Delbert Edgar of Portageville and his son Delmar.

Kuehle, a past Lieutenant Governor, presented past president Bob Wright a banner and pin for being selected as a distinguished club president.

Sharp presented Earl L. Jewell a tab for 27 years of perfect attendance, and president Tom Lambert presented Jewell a certificate in recognition of sincere and devoted effort for the Sikeston Kiwanis Club. Jewell plans to leave Sikeston next month.

In other club business, it was announced that because newly elected club president, Gary Chullino, is being transferred from Sikeston, Mike Parker was nominated as the new president-elect, and secretary Carl Muench was nominated as vice president. The election will be held next Tuesday.

It was also announced that the date of the Kiwanis-Rotary softball game has been changed to Sept. 2.

Luncheon guests at Rainbow's End

Editor's note: This is another installment of a novel, "Sticks and Stones May Break Your Bones," by Cherie Blanton. The installments appear in the paper each Wednesday.

SUMMARY

Last week Troy took Louise on a surprise visit to one of her oldest and dearest friends' home. They reached there by taking a little-used path off the main road to get to Annie's. Annie, an old, old woman and her sons run a still in the back woods and Troy wanted to ask her if she knew about any of the things taking place at Rainbow's End.

Annie is delighted to see them and introduces them to her favorite grandson Luke. After inviting them in for some sassafrass tea, Annie confesses to having no knowledge of anything strange, but she and Luke promise to keep their ears open, particularly around Randy Weaks who is one of their best customers. Then, Annie quizzes Louise about her friendship with Troy and ends up by sending Luke and Troy out while she reads the future in the tea leaves for Louise.

By CHERIE BLANTON

"I hear a car out front," called out Bertha, "is it Miss Troy—my lunch is almost ready."

"I'll see," said Stacy going to the door, "no, it's Sheriff Ames."

"That figures," muttered Bertha coming out of the kitchen, "and I'll bet he ain't eaten neither!" Grumbling she went into the dining room and began setting another place at the table.

"Hello Sheriff," Stacy greeted him, "and what brings you out here so early in the day?"

Slowly he mounted the steps of the porch. "I had a real interesting visit with Miss Troy and her friend earlier, and the more I got to thinking on what had been said, the more concerned I got. They told me you all had a new hired hand and I felt like it might be a good idea for me to drive out and ask him some questions."

Sticking his head inside the doorway of the house he raised his voice, "Besides that, my stomach felt awful empty, and I figured Bertha, the best dern cook in the county, might know what to do to solve that problem."

"I could tell somebody, if they'd ask me, that a certain somebody needs to find him a wife and quit trying to eat his own cooking, and he wouldn't all time be so hungry and showin up at other people's dinner tables!" could be heard coming from the back of the house.

Laughing, Stacy said, "You know you're welcome anytime Michael. I don't know which of the two of you loves to tease the other the most." She grinned at him. "I believe you really hit the jackpot yesterday though, when you devoured that last piece of jam cake. She fussed all through dinner last night about not even having had a taste to see if it was fit for human consumption or not—jam cake is definitely Bertha's favorite."

"Mine too. Do you think she'll serve me arsenic at lunch?"

"No, but I noticed a triple layer strawberry shortcake in the pantry."

"That cinches it—Bertha is going to feed me whether she wants to or not." Smacking his lips and rolling his eyes he went charging through the house yelling, "You better give me that shortcake Bertha, or I'm goin blow a hole in all your pots and pans."

"You just try it young man," announced Bertha grimly standing guard at the doorway of her kitchen, "and I'll tan your fanny as big as you are!" She advanced upon him brandishing a long-handled spatula.

"I give," laughed Michael, "I suppose I'll just have to wait for dessert to be served like everyone else."

"You suppos'in right!" scolded the cook, "Now you just get outa here till you is called." Turning away before he could see her laughing, she fled to her kitchen.

"Here comes Jo now," called Stacy. "She's with Amos and Randy so you can have your question-and-answer session with no trouble."

Michael walked back onto the porch to look at the three approaching. "Does Miss Jo still work as hard as she used too?" he asked, noticing the old shirt and jeans she was wearing. "She must be somewhere in her sixties by now."

"Yes," Stacy answered, "and it worries me so. All she's ever done is work like a dog so Sam and I could stay here with her. I have to admit Sam pulls her share of the load, but I feel like I've always been a dreadful burden."

"Nonsense," he cried, "you've helped Bertha keep this house up and that's no easy job, not for two women as big as this place is. And I've driven by and seen you helping out in the fields sometimes too." He thought a moment, "It's funny the way life treats people, you three girls for example, growing up with everything and then your whole world caving in overnight. Still, I can't think of anyone who's done a better job of keeping things going under the circumstances."

"Why, thank you, kind sir." She reached up and gave his cheek a tiny kiss and smiled shyly. "I envy the girl who someday catches you."

Embarrased he looked away and catching sight of another figure said, "Don't look now Miss Stacy, but I think your fiance has just caught you spoonin' with another man. Hope we don't have to fight a duel." Eyes twinkling he called to Sidney, "I'm innocent—she attacked me! Are you sure you know what a Scarlet Lady you're about to marry, Mr. Turner?"

Laughing, Sidney approached. "And this is what I voted for on election day. The crime rate in this county is bound to soar."

He came forward, stooped over and planting a kiss on Stacy's cheek said, "Hello dear, am I in time for one of Bertha's famous lunches?"

Michael and Stacy exchanged amused glances. "You tell her, not me," said the Sheriff throwing up his hands.

As she walked inside to break the news to Bertha, Sidney asked Michael, "What happened to the new patrol car? I see it's got a dent in the back fender. Surely the Sheriff hasn't been doing any careless or reckless driving, has he?"

"What dent?" Michael asked. "All I can see is a character bump." Walking away from Sidney's perplexed countenance he went down the steps to greet the others, just as Troy pulled into the yard.

"Hello everybody." she cried alighting from her car, "my, I'm just about starved to death. Hello Michael, and Sidney—Lord, I haven't seen you in years." She went forward to greet him as Ta Ta leaped from the car and growling furiously began barking and snapping at his heels.

"Why is it Troy can never arrive on a scene without making a scene?" asked Jo shaking her head. "Troy shut that damn dog up and let's all go and eat. I'm worn out and hungry as a bear. Amos, you and Randy finish out back and then you go and get your lunches too." Startled she looked around, then questioned Amos, "Where is Randy? He was here with us when we came up? That shiftless so and so, ever time he thinks there's a little more work to do he disappears."

"I'll find him and get finished Miss Jo, don't you worry none, I think I know where he is, but he sure did get there in a hurry."

"I'm sorry Sidney," apologized Troy after spanking Ta and sending him scooting. "I can't imagine what came over him."

"Perhaps he smelled our bird dog on my clothes, don't let it bother you, he's much too small to do any damage. Poor thing, I know how frustrating life must be for him." And at Sidney's remark Troy and Jo exchanged a meaningful look.

"I can't remember your name," he turned to Louise, "but haven't we met before?"

"Oh goodness no," laughed Troy, "this is a friend of mine from home." She quickly introduced them.

"You're supposed to use that line when you're trying to pick a girl up Mr. Turner, and never in front of your betrothed," teased Michael, then as they all walked in and seated themselves at the table his eyes lit up as Bertha came in carrying a huge platter of fried chicken. "I certainly hope this mystery takes a long time to solve—what's for dinner tonight?" Heaping his plate high he began to eat with relish.

"What mystery?" asked Sidney.

"I told you about the broken fences, dead calves, and all," answered Stacy.

"Did you tell him about the ghost? Thank you Bertha, I'll just have four more of these while you're standing here." Michael helped himself to a plate of feather light biscuits she was passing.

"Lord, I ain't never seen nobody eat biscuits like popcorn before. Mr. Michael, you beats all, you really takes the cake!" Then as she and the rest of them realized what she had just said, they all begin laughing so hard they almost choked.

"What's so funny?" demanded Sidney feeling left out.

"Sam passed out jam cake to everyone while Bertha and I were in town, when we got home there was only one piece left, and the Sheriff literally snatched that from under her nose and ran." Stacy laughed even harder and on this note of hilarity the meal continued.

"I think I've died and gone to heaven." declared Michael getting up and patting his stomach after consuming two enormous portions of shortcake.

"Don't rush yourself none," snickered Bertha, "it won't be long fore you gets there as much as you shovelin in your face every day."

Michael stuck his tongue out at her and announced, "Back to the grindstone." And he followed the cook into the kitchen where Amos and Randy were also enjoying her delicious cooking.

"Hello Amos," said Michael pulling a chair up to the table, and turning to the other man, "I'm Sheriff Ames and you must be Randy Weaks."

The man nodded, his mouth full.

"I'd like to ask you a few questions, if you don't mind."

Randy shot him a quick glance from between lowered lids. "All I do is work here part time, Sheriff, I don't bother nobody, and nobody's been bothering me. What kind of questions do you think I'd have answers too?"

"I don't know, I just thought maybe you might have noticed something strange—seen or heard something that might seem not quite right to you." He paused. "I'm sure Amos has told you all of what's been happening around here."

Amos nodded his head in agreement.

Michael lowered his voice, "It makes me mad seeing somebody trying to frighten a bunch of nice old ladies, and I intend to find out what's going on." And he looked meaningfully at Randy.

"Sheriff, I'll tell you just like I told Amos when he asked me. I ain't seen nothing or know nothing, but if I do I'd be the first to tell. Miss Jo's been real nice to me and I don't want no harm coming to her neither." He proceeded to go back to his meal.

"Just remember that you do." Michael rose to leave.

"Mr. Michael," said Amos, "what happened to your new car? I seed a bad dent in that rear bumper and I din't notice it there yesterday."

But Amos was left to wonder, for the Sheriff squared his shoulders, heaved a hugh sigh, and without answering stalked from the room.

(To be continued Wednesday.

Hot water sets blood stains

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — A board that came inside a bolt of fabric works beautifully for pressing the legs to slacks. Any fabric shop will gladly give you one, I am sure.

I would so much like to know what will take dried blood out of clothing. — MRS. G.F.

DEAR MRS. G.F. — The blood stains are doubtless set in the garment, if it has been washed in hot water. Otherwise, soak in cold water 30-60 minutes. If the stain remains, put three tablespoons household ammonia in a gallon of luke warm water and soak for half an hour or so. If stain is still there, rub detergent in stain and then wash, using a bleach that is safe for the fabric. Of course, all such remedies are to be used only if safe for the fabric in question. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that prescription and over-the-counter drugs do not have termination dates for their use on the labels. The customer never knows when they are no longer satisfactory, or can't be safely administered. — MRS. M.C.

DEAR POLLY — I was shocked to read that one of the readers cut up flea collars and put them in her cupboard to keep bugs out. These collars are toxic to even dogs and cats and I hate to think of any food absorbing this. To keep the bugs out just scatter a few bay leaves around, after throwing away all infested food. Then clean cupboards and put food in tightly closed jars. The enclosed article by Ralph Nader explains about these flea collars and their danger. — MRS. M.V.B.

DEAR POLLY — I have so many name and address labels that have been obtained one way or another and have found a wonderful use for them other than their usual one. My husband and I have our bookshelves full of books that were often quite costly so I pasted a label on the inside cover of each one. Whenever a book is loaned to someone, the borrower has no trouble remembering from whom it was borrowed. Our books get returned rather than forgotten. — MRS. E.A.L.

DEAR POLLY — I use the pointed end of a grapefruit spoon to dig out the stem part of strawberries, radishes, etc. You can put a finger down to the edge of the spoon without cutting yourself and make a neat job of surgery without squashing the fruit. I discovered this after an eye operation when I could not see too well. — MRS. D.E.H.

DEAR POLLY — Our back yard garden produced tomatoes and so on for us, but was a real source of food for the squirrels. We cut an old green garden hose into various lengths and laid the pieces around the plants. The squirrels thought they were snakes and left our produce alone. — VERA.

DEAR POLLY — Recently, I used that popular hand soap with pumice in it to clean my stove and appliances when I was out of my regular cleanser. It did a wonderful job that was better than any cleaner I have used for this. It is a lot cheaper too. — VI.

DEAR POLLY — After making bread or pastry I save all that excess flour that is on the board and store it in a clean empty canister and when I need to flour meat or chicken before cooking I use this flour that would otherwise be wasted. — JOLEEN.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

Carter hits Ford vetoes

SEATTLE (AP) — Claiming that President Ford's vetoes of social legislation have contributed to "needless human suffering," Jimmy Carter has sounded what will be one of the major themes of his presidential campaign.

On the second day of his four-day campaign swing to the West and Midwest, Carter repeatedly accused the Ford administration of neglecting the needs of the American people, particularly the disadvantaged.

The Democratic presidential nominee switches emphasis today, when he discusses pardons for draft dodgers, international terrorism and the need to reinstill respect for the military, in a speech at the American Legion national convention here.

In Los Angeles Monday, Carter criticized Ford's record of 55 vetoes in the last two years. He called it a "record of political insensitivity, of missed opportunities, of constant conflict with Congress, and of national neglect."

Those vetoes by Ford, whom Carter termed "an appointed president," "demonstrate a degree of negativism, dormancy and a fear of action that only can be harmful to this country," he told a luncheon sponsored by the Los Angeles Town Hall Forum.

As he has done before, he indirectly mentioned Watergate and President Nixon.

"The country has lost faith in its government, in part because of the revelations of official lying and spying and bugging, the resignations in disgrace of both a vice president and president. ..." Carter said.

He also denied that he was a big spender and antigovernment, labels often attached to him.

"I am antiwaste in government," he said. "I don't believe in giveaway programs. I don't believe in wasting money. I believe in tough, competent management."

Carter spent half his time in Los Angeles mixing with rich California Democrats and the Hollywood elite and the other half calling for more concern for the underprivileged and urging blacks and Chicanos to register to vote.

At a party given by actor Warren Beatty, Carter told more than a score of other actors that politicians "have a responsibility to bypass the big shots, including you, and people like you and like I was, and to make a concerted effort to understand people who are poor, black, speak a foreign language, who are not well educated. ..."

U.S.-Korea talks

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea today agreed to a meeting on Wednesday of the joint Korean Military Armistice Commission to discuss the safety of Americans in the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

The United States demanded the meeting and proposed that it be held today. But North Korea proposed a delay until Wednesday afternoon, and the United States agreed.

The United States asked for the meeting in Panmunjom, the truce village in the demilitarized zone, to seek assurances from North Korea that there would not be a repetition of the clash last week in which North Korean guards killed two American army officers.

State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said the United States would demand assurance that "our people will not be harmed."

The American aircraft carrier Midway and four escorting warships were maneuvering off the coast of Korea. American forces in South Korea were reinforced by two fighter squadrons from Okinawa and the United States, and American, South Korean and North Korean forces on the peninsula were all on precautionary alerts.

But the State Department made a conciliatory gesture with a new comment on a statement by North Korean President Kim Il-ung terming the incident at Panmunjom "regretful."

"We recognize that the North Koran statement expresses regret over the incident and we consider this a positive step," Funseth said. "Nevertheless, this does not change the tragic fact that two American officers were brutally beaten to death without provocation."

Another State Department spokesman said on Sunday that the statement was unacceptable because it did not acknowledge responsibility for the slaying of the two Americans.

Funseth added that assurances from North Korea that Americans would be safe in the future "would improve the climate" in Korea.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said the United States "is anxious to cooperate in relaxation of tensions, but we want to make sure there is no miscalculation concerning our firmness in the area."

The North Korean Communist party newspaper, Rodong, charged that the Midway task force had entered North Korean waters. Pentagon sources in Washington said the Midway task force was off the coast of South Korea, well south of North Korean waters.

Attorneys argue over PSC rules

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission has the authority to issue standardized regulations for utility billing and service and those it has issued were based on extensive and detailed research, attorneys have told a Cole County Circuit Court judge.

But utility lawyers, arguing against the regulations before Judge Byron Kinder on Monday, claimed the commission did not have legislative authority to issue such board policy rules and they should be invalidated.

Attorneys for the commission and the Public Counsel's office, which represents consumers before the PSC, asked Kinder, however, to let the standardized billing rules be tested by both the companies and the public before action is taken to nullify them.

Kinder delayed implementation of the so-called "Consumers' bill of rights" last spring at the request of 13 gas, electric and water companies. The regulations, adopted by the commission on a 5-0 vote last December, would have taken effect on June 26.

The regulations ban security deposits in most cases, prohibit penalty charges for late payments, give all customers 21 days to pay bills before facing possible disconnection and forbid disconnection on weekends or holidays.

The utility companies have claimed the regulations are an illegal invasion of utility management, but supporters of the regulations claim they serve to protect the public.

"It is not for the commission to go out and tell the companies what their regulations are going to be," James C. Swearengen, attorney for Empire District Electric Co., told Kinder. "We're not here on a mere technicality. We're here because it's a bad order."

Swearengen said implementation of the order would "cost a lot of money for no good reason," and Robert L. Hawkins, also representing the utilities, estimated the cost at between $10 million and $11 million for the ban on late payment penalties alone.

Both men claimed the standardized regulations in effect nullified utility rate schedules and procedures that were already on file with the commission without proving that those procedures wrre unreasonable.

Agriculture appropriations bill will aid rural Missouri

By STUARTY SYMINGTON
United States Senator

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The President recently signed the $11.1 billion Agriculture Appropriations bill, H.R. 14237, which will fund the fiscal year 1977 U.S. Department of Agriculture and related agencies' activities.

In addition to the general administration of USDA, the bill covers expenditures for rural development programs, domestic food programs and international trade and assistance programs. It also funds such related agencies as the Food and Drug Administration, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and the Farm Credit Administration.

As passed and signed, the bill appropriates some $800 million more than the administration had requested.

One example of the type of programs which would have been eliminated or cut is the Rural Community Fire Protection grant program, under which some 61 Missouri communities received a total of $85,875 to buy much-needed fire equipment for their volunteer fire departments in fiscal year 1976.

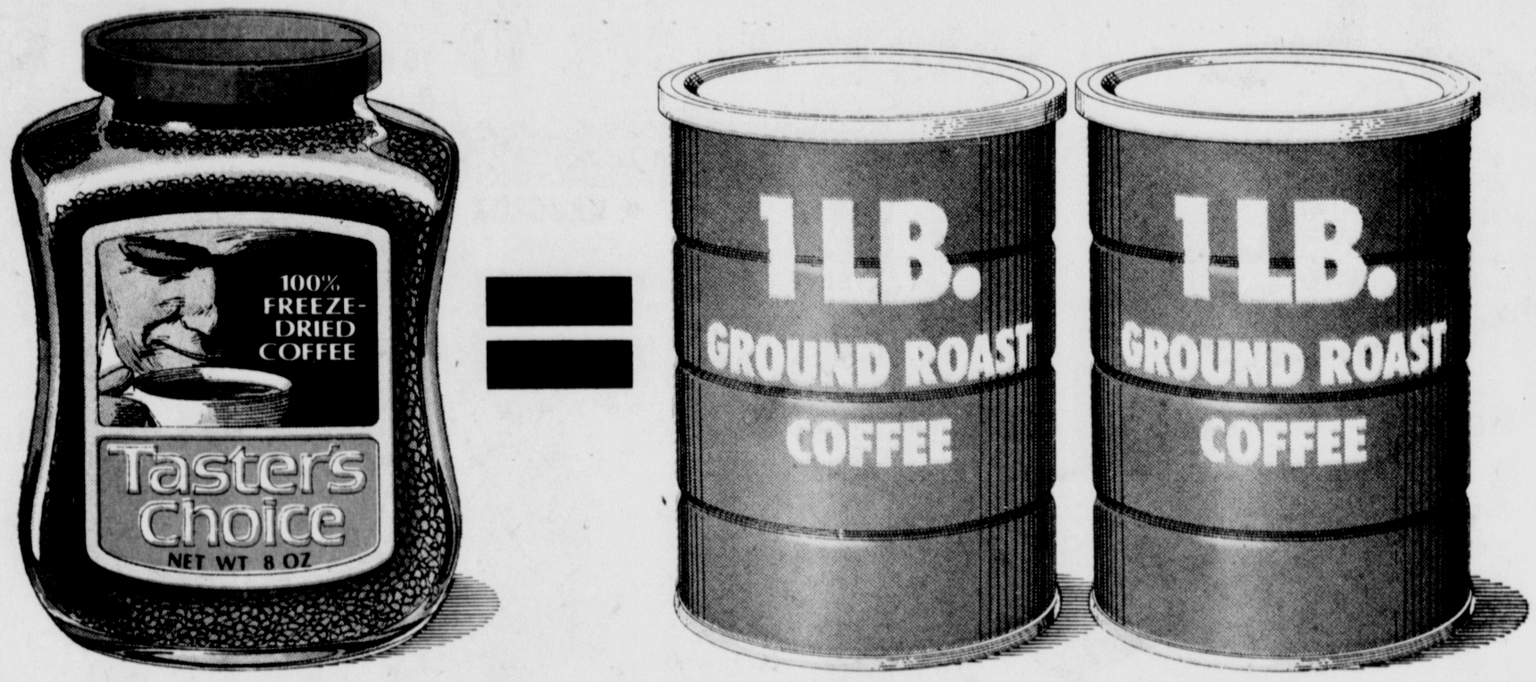
Funding for this worthwhile and relatively inexpensive program was continued at the same rate of $3.5 million by the Congress.

Another administration cut would have eliminated all conservation programs within the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and replaced them with a single conservation measure, but with only 40 per cent as much in matching funds.

Because of the world food situation and the drought conditions which struck many of our midwestern states this year, the Congress believes a greater conservation effort, not less, is justified for the future.

Due to the substantial escalation of land costs, Congress also appropriated the same amount for Farmers Home Administration farm ownership loans for FY 1977 as for FY 1976 ($450 million), 28.5 per cent more than the administration's request.

Wasting billions of dollars on foreign adventures but not providing adequate funds for proven programs to help the people of rural America maintain the productivity of our land resources shows sadly misdirected priorities.



A half-pound of ours makes as much as two pounds of theirs.

An 8-oz. jar of Taster's Choice® Freeze-Dried Coffee makes 120 (6-oz.) cups of coffee. That's as much coffee as you'd get from two pounds of ground roast (following recommended serving directions of the leading national brands).

And since you make Taster's Choice by the cup, you never end up throwing half a pot down the drain.

So the next time you're comparing who gives you what for your money, remember: It's not how much it costs a pound.

We think you should price coffee the way you drink coffee. By the cup.

It's how little it costs a cup.

Farm roundup
Potatoes originated from Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kids like them as carry-out french fries, gourmets ogle them fondly as baked companions of steaks and scientists prowl distant lands in search of new seed stock to improve them.

The potato, says the Agriculture Department, has a lineage going back centuries to the Andes of South America where natives knew of their food value long before Europeans explored the new world.

So common place are potatoes that it is easy to take them for granted. But farmers who grow them and scientists who fret about their vulnerability to disease and pests are continually searching for ways to improve them.

The department's Cooperative State Research Service says that scientists and potato breeders have been concerned about a steady need for developing and promoting better seed stock.

"Discovering superior characteristics in potato stocks and combining them in productive varieties is...a difficult task because of the complicated genetic composition of the potato, its susceptibility to many diseases and pests, and the considerable ime required to develop stocks and determine their breeding and agricultural value," the agency says.

By and large the efforts have been successful, however, because for nearly 30 years federal and state projects have been set up to develop better potatoes on a coordinated scientific basis. A regional program was started in 1948 at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and since 1950 has expanded into a full-fledged interregional program called IR-1.

In the past 15 years there have been 15 expeditions to Latin America to seek new germ plasm or seed materials from wild-growing and cultivated plants of Solanum tuberosum, the potato's scientific name.

Specimens are processed by USDA's Germplasm Resources Laboratory, Beltsville, Md., and then sent to another facility for one or two years of quarantine to guard against the introduction of diseases.

Eventually, the potato stock ends up at Sturgeon Bay for further research and distribution to breeders.

Potatoes are a major world food source, grown on more than 50 million acres and totaling more than 300 million tons annually. In the United States, potatoes are grown commercially in most states at one time of the year or another and comprise around 1.5 million acres and an output of about 15 million tons annually.

There is winter and spring potato production in California, Florida and other states with mild climates. Summer production occurs generally across the country, but the fall crop is by far the most important.

Last year, for example, the fall potato crop accounted for more than 276 million 100-pound bags of the U.S. total output of 319.8 million. The record total potato production was 342 million hundredweight in 1974, of which 288.7 million was from the fall harvest.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government inspectors found no traces of the chemical DES in the nation's meat supply in the second quarter of this year, the Agriculture Department says.

The chemical — diethylstilbestrol — has been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals when fed to them in large doses. A synthetic growth hormone, DES is fed to cattle to make them gain weight faster.

During the first three months, three beef livers were found to contain DES among 472 checked, officials said.

Tests during the second quarter involved livers from 459 animals.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A campaign to eliminate the threat of screw worms from U.S. livestock herds enters a new phase next week with the formal dedication of a new $14 million facility in Mexico, says the Agriculture Department.

The facility was built in Tuxtula Gutierrez to produce sterile male screw worm flies that will be distributed along the 125-mile-wide Isthmus of Tehuantepec in southern Mexico. Officials hope that this will result in a barrier zone that eventually will eradicate screw worms from most of Mexico and the southern United States. Female screw worm flies exposed to the sterilized males will lay infertile eggs.

The department said Thursday that Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz will join with Mexican President Luis Echeverria to dedicate the new sterile screw worm fly plant Aug. 25. The United States is paying 80 per cent of the cost of the $14 million facility.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

BREAD-CEREAL GROUP

Foods in this group provide worthwhile amounts of protein, iron, and several of the B-vitamins and food energy.

Foods Included: All breads and cereals that are whole grain, enriched or restored. Specifically this group includes: breads, cooked cereals, ready-to-eat cereals, corn meal, crackers, flour, grits, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, rice, rolled oats, quick breads and other baked goods if made with whole-grain or enriched flour. Parboiled rice and wheat also fit in this group.

Recommended Amounts: Four or more servings daily. Or, if no cereals are selected, choose an extra serving of breads or baked goods, which will make at least 5 servings from this group daily. Count as 1 serving: 1 slice of bread, 1 ounce ready-to-eat cereal, ½ to ¾ cup cooked cereal, corn meal, grits, macaroni, noodles, rice or spaghetti.

The Bread-Cereal Group is an important source of carbohydrates. In days of old, we had to depend on home baking for breads but today our markets make available a wide variety of bakery products in ready-to-serve, partially-baked, frozen ready-to-serve, prepared-frozen and many other forms.

Recently, there has been a resurgence of home baking as many enthusiasts are recapturing the nostalgia of old-time kitchens with their aroma of hot bread fresh from the oven. If you bake your own bread, remember that milk, whether liquid or powdered skim, enhances the food value of the bread.

Breakfast cereals, whether ready-to-eat or to-be-cooked, are whole grain or fortified in some manner. When it comes to rice, most consumers still prefer white rice although brown rice has more nutrients (the B vitamins — thiamine, riboflavin and niacin) unless the white rice is enriched. While brown rice doesn't cook up as fluffy, it has an especially delicious taste many people find pleasing. You may want to try it the next time your menu calls for rice.

Longhorns may romp this season

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If Earl Campbell's thick thigh can withstand the stretches and strains of fall football workouts, the Texas Longhorns could romp during the regular season.

Campbell, a 231-pound junior with enough speed to outrun many defensive backs, missed spring training with a pulled hamstring muscle, and published reports pictured Longhorn coaches as fearful it would keep him out in the fall.

"Earl has a 28¾-inch thigh. That's a lot more to pull than the average leg," says Coach Darrell Royal, "but the story was blown way out of proportion. He's running full speed."

Campbell has run for 2,046 yards in two years, which has resulted in predictions that Campbell could be the No. 1 pro draft choice after his senior season.

Eight offensive and 10 defensive regulars return from the Texas team that won 10 and lost two last season, finishing sixth in the college football poll after belting Colorado 38-21 in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl.

Absent, however, will be quarterback Marty Akins, who was all-Southwest Conference.

His probable successor is sophomore Ted Constanzo, who was roughed up by Texas A&M's top-ranked defense last year in a 20-10 Longhorn loss after Akins got hurt. Constanzo's challengers are another sophomore, Mike Cordaro, who got such a slow start that Royal didn't learn to pronounce his name for months, and Randy McEachern, who must overcome practice jitters.

The offensive line appears solid, and several freshman speedsters, including Olympic gold medal winner Johnny Jones, a member of the 400-meter relay team, should put pep in the halfback corps.

Wide receiver Alfred Jackson is rated a future pro star by Royal. And kicker Russell Erxleben averaged 41.4 yards a punt and hit 10 of 13 field goals as a freshman.

Defensive coach Mike Campbell fretted over the way Colorado "marched up and down the field" in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl, but he says his veteran defense has "experience, pretty good quickness and size where you need it."

Where you need it is at defensive tackle, and Royal and Campbell are impressed with junior Brad Shearer, 6-foot-4 and 260 pounds, and Ernest Lee, 6-4 and 250. Shearer was all-SWC last year, and Lee led the team in tackles in Texas' final two games.

The all-senior linebacking trio of Bill Hamilton, Rick Fenlaw and Lionell Johnson were credited with 400 tackles in 1975, and Johnson must fight off the challenge of a 228-pound sophomore, Dwight Jefferson, to keep his job.

New books are available

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The Memphis District, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, announced today that "A Century on the Mississippi, A History of the Memphis District, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, 1876-1976," by Dr. Floyd M. Clay, is now available for distribution to the public.

The 294-page hard-bound book traces the development of the Corps' flood-fight work in the six-state Memphis District over the past century. Complete with numerous illustrations and full-page color photographs, the history tells the story of the river and the riverfolk from the days of the old-time luxury steamboats to the modern era of sleek and efficient working river vessels.

Copies of the history are available from the Memphis District, Corps of Engineers, Room 565, Clifford Davis Federal Building, 167 North Main, Memphis, Tennessee 38103.

Ford men had votes, Reaganites had the zeal

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In the tensions and struggles of the Republican National Convention, one of President Ford's campaign problems is etched sharply:

He cannot stir in conservative hearts the ardor that burned for Ronald Reagan, but he must have the armies of the Republican right at work for his ticket.

In the four days of the 31st Republican National Convention, Ford men had the votes, but Reaganites had the zeal. And that zeal is what motivates a campaign volunteer to do the dull, hard, unpaid labor of any campaign.

The conservatives can, and did, speak the ritual vows of Republican unity behind the ticket. But pledges of support won't get the envelopes stuffed, the doorbells rung, the precinct lists checked, the leaflets distributed, the GOP vote out on election day.

Those are the labors that can tip an election. The Ford-Jimmy Carter race looks one-sided now, but both nominees say the gap will narrow now that the President has his Republican nomination.

Among Democrats, the detail work frequently is handled by the forces of organized labor. Among Republicans, there are no more effective nuts-and-bolts campaign workers than the conservatives.

Ford invoked the spirit of Harry S. Truman, patron saint of the uphill campaigner, to stake his claim of coming victory in the Nov. 2 election, no mind what the polls and the pundits may say.

The President, a Truman fan nominated in the city of Truman, aimed the first major address of his campaign at the average American, sitting at home.

"It is from your ranks that I come and on your side I stand," he said in Thursday night's acceptance speech. "And I predict right now that the American people are going to say, 'Jerry, you've done a good job. Keep right on doing it.'"

To get them to say that, Ford will need the active help of the Republican party's best foot soldiers, and many of them are the conservatives who worked, and wept, for Ronald Reagan.

The risk to Ford now is not like that of Truman's 1948 campaign, when the left and the right wings of the Democratic party split off and ran candidates of their own.

A group of Young Americans for Freedom, among the most ardent of conservative factions, chanted "Third party, third party" for a while at the convention's closing night. There were only about 20 of them, despite tentative plans for a conservative meeting to talk about a bolt, it seems likely such a move could go anywhere.

As Rep. Robert Baumann of Maryland, conservative as they come, told the convention:

"There are those who say we need a third party. I say to you what we need is a good second party, and this is it."

Baumann said the Republican struggle was between two conservatives, not between the left and the right.

Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, one of the favorites of the right, a Reagan supporter who pushed harder than his candidate for tough, conservative language in the platform, spoke out for the ticket.

He praised the platform as a good one, a strong one, also hailed the selection of Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas as Ford's vice presidential nominee.

Reagan said that if a third party is to be considered, it should not be now, just prior to an election, but after Nov. 2, if the Republicans lose.

At Ford's invitation, Reagan had the last word, the final speech, of the convention, and it was all that the President could have asked from his beaten challenger.

" ... We've got to quit talking to each other and about each other," said Reagan. " ... We must go forth from here united, determined and what a great general said a few years ago is true: there is no substitute for victory."

Reagan, too, stressed the party platform, "a banner of bold, unmistakeable colors. ... " For his supporters, with Ford's agreement, had colored it conservative, particularly on the issue of American policy toward the Soviet Union.

Indeed, during the week of preparatory sessions and the four convention days, it seemed Reagan could have anything he wanted — except the one thing he really wanted, the presidential nomination.

Only on points that directly affected that prize did Ford and his strategists resist Reagan.

After they won the test that foretold the nomination, on Reagan's effort to compel Ford to announce in advance who would be running with him, the President put out the word to cool it, go along, get along.

For hours, Ford representatives tried to negotiate a compromise on a platform amendment that unmistakably criticized administration policies of detente. The language, which Reagan proposed, could have come from one of his campaign speeches. And Reagan men, led by Helms, refused to budge on the platform issue.

There was a dispute in the Ford camp over what to do. At one point, the President wanted to fight the Reagan amendment.

But Tarzan, Ford's code name on his team's convention communications network, changed his mind, left the tactics to his floor managers.

Early Wednesday morning, word went out over the walkie talkies: Ford's floor managers and whips were to stop talking to newsmen about the foreign policy amendment. "We've caved in," said one of them. And the Reagan amendment was adopted without a Ford fight, in the name of party unity.

There was more to it; Ford's strategists did not want to risk a vote they feared they might lose, on an issue that was one of Reagan's strongest during the primary campaign.

No matter, the cover served the real interest of the President. His nomination was assured Tuesday night, sealed on Wednesday, 1,187 votes to 1,069 for Reagan, but closer than Republicans had seen in 24 years.

Then, the narrow verdict went to Dwight D. Eisenhower, a national hero both parties had tried to recruit as a sure thing for the White House.

Now, the split decision belongs to a president by appointment, the leader of a minority party, the far-back trailer in polls against Jimmy Carter.

At convention hall, there was warmth in the cheers and ovations for Ford. But there was fire in the battle cries for Reagan, even in the chants that sounded when finally, in defeat, he made his appearance in the stands Thursday night.

As the delegates disbanded on Friday, the enthusiasm gap was showing. In an Associated Press survey, more than 80 per cent of the delegates who supported Reagan said they would vote for the Ford-Dole ticket, but many of them said their personal efforts now will be concentrated on GOP candidates at home, not on the national ticket.

"There's an awful lot of bitterness right now," said L.E. Thomas of Panama City, Fla., Reagan's state campaign manager there. "But when they think about the alternatives, most of them will have to come around."

Thomas said Reagan supporters would have worked more diligently in the fall had the former California governor been on Ford's ticket.

Reagan said he would not accept that nomination. He also confirmed that the President did not offer it to him.

"I'm going back to my garden," said Helen A. Turnell of Salem, Ore. "I'll vote for Ford, but only because Carter is worse."

"Oh, I'll vote for him, but I don't know whether I'll do any work," said Mona Hinman of Kremmling, Colo.

That is the mood Ford needs to crack.

Reagan pledged to work for the President's election, and said that if the Republicans lose, there should be "a reassessment of where we go and how we put that great new majority together."

Then he went home to his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

Ford, in yet another gesture toward the conservative challenger, said he thinks Republicans should consider the advance disclosure of vice presidential nominees, now that it is not at issue in a contest over presidential nomination.

Reagan had named his vice presidential choice, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, long before the convention, in a tactical maneuver that was part of his campign to beat Ford. The President withheld his until Thursday noon, after using the selection as part of his own strategy.

Incidentally, Schweiker got two votes for the vice president nomination when the convention ratified Dole.

Anyhow, Ford told the Republican National Committee Friday that a rule like Reagan's should be considered for 1980.

As if to spread some icing on the unity cake, Dole said that Reagan had suggested him to Ford for the vice presidential nomination. Ford said earlier that Reagan had endorsed his selection.

He had discussed it with the challenger by telephone Thursday morning, hours after an unusual, early-morning visitation upon the Californian he had just defeated for nomination.

The echo of Reagan's campaign even was evident in Ford's challenge to Carter to meet in debate.

Reagan partisans had argued all week, and Sen. Paul Laxalt had said in nominating him, that the former actor and California governor would be a master of campaign debate. Television once was his profession.

"WATCH FOR FURTHER DETAILS"

Local teenager talks about the Republican convention

By PETER MYERS

These are my impressions of the Republican National Convention in Kansas City. Let me begin by thanking The Daily Standard, and Tony Pippen in particular, for making it possible for me to go.

Leaving the convention Wednesday night, I met some Pennsylvanians who were having a hard time finding a way back to their hotel. I was happy to give them a ride because what we found out about each other was very interesting.

One of them, while getting in the car, found a Reagan poster which I had picked up in Kemper Arena where the convention was held. "Hey, look who this guy's for," he said. "You don't mind, do you?" I asked in a reserved tone since there were five of them and one of me.

"Are you kidding!" he said. "I've been working for Ronald Reagan since I can remember."

Three of them were delegates, and the one to whom I was talking was one of those few Pennsylvanians who had voted for Reagan earlier that night. What a great person he was. They all were.

When we were near their hotel the Reagan delegate (I've forgotten his name, but when you really know a person -- communicate with them even for 30 minutes -- the name doesn't matter) leaned forward a little and said, "I don't know how you feel about President Ford, but America just cannot afford Jimmy Carter. I peferred Reagan, but President Ford is a good man, too; he's done a lot to hold down spending."

This is one of the most striking examples that I remember which shows the unity of the Republican Party. One of the most frequent question delegates were asked was whether the party would stay united or would split into two warring factions. Certainly it is a united party.

In Missouri, for instance, those for Ford or for Reagan, such as Gov. Christopher Bond and Thomas B. Curtis of St. Louis, each said that he would support the nominee of the convention without reserve.

When Reagan spoke to the Missouri caucus Wednesday morning, he affirmed his support for Ford if he failed to get the nomination. He reaffirmed that position in his speech Thursday night.

Speeches, such as those given by Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Jessee Helms of North Carolina and Robert Dole of Kansas were monuments of the determination of party faithfuls to stand together, presenting the electorate a viable alternative in November.

Yes, the delegates fought hard for their candidate: but, when they won, they won gracefully, and when they were defeated, they were defeated nobly.

It was the first convention I have attended, and many have said that it was the noisiest -- even the rowdiest -- that the Republicans have had. (It is not every day that one sees the vice president dancing on his chair with a telephone; but then, Nelson A. Rockefeller has never been vice president.) It was their day; not the spectators' day, not the news media's. They had fought long and hard for their individual beliefs. One delegate remarked that he never would have pictured himself acting like a young kid, but that he enjoyed every minute of it.

Those noises and shouts and hurrays were their way of showing how hard they had fought, how hard they will fight and how much it means to them to be involved in the process and determination of this republic. They are now a united party, working for the fulfillment of their individual beliefs in the inherent freedom which lies within the American Constitution.

Many of the long exhibitions of noise and emotion may have been less than informative for some of the viewers, therefore one idea may be beneficial for those who saw the convention on television. By being at the convention, one could see the entire activities, uninterrupted by commercials. Instead of running these commercials during speeches, as was done as times, perhaps the national networks could have run these financial necessities during the demonstrations. There were many times during the course of the convention when a commercial or ill-placed interview prevented the nation from seeing many excellent addresses.

Television viewers were unable to completely hear the superior addesses of such notables as Mary Louise Smith, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Gov. Bond. In this regard, the national news media has a firm grip on what the national populace is able to see and hear.

Perhaps, though, many were able to hear such speakers as Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Alf Landon of Kansas, John Rhodes of Arizona, Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia and Dr. Tooke from New York. The acceptance speech given by President Ford was one of the best speeches he has ever made. If he continues as well, and if he stands behind the Republican platform, then voters will have a choice between two certainly different approaches to government.

It was fitting that the last address given before the benediction Thursday night was presented by Reagan. It exhibited, as Sen. Helms had exhibited earlier, a deep respect for the Republican party; but more than that, it displayed a certain value of belief in the foundation upon which the party rests, in the principles embodied by the party platform and in the ideals of freedom and conservative construction which have made this such a grand nation in which to live.

Many felt, as did Vernon Landgraf, a delegate from Cape Girardeau. Reagan supporters were disappointed, but non disenchanted. They felt that the party had lost the chance of presenting to the nation a true statesman.But they felt that the difference was still extreme between the two remaining contenders for the presidency. They will work within the party and give it all they have to give: unity preserved for four more years.

The convention was fun; it was a great experience. It brings to mind -- beyond the rhetoric, the noise, the people -- the issues of security and balance which face us today. Freedom is a fine thing to have, but it requires careful attention. A free republic does not rest, not is it blind.

Those within its sphere of life should not fall blindly to supporting completely any faction or party; nor should they compromise their values and ideals for any purpose, unless to serve in strengthening and improving those values and ideals.

Many virtues are necessary for any republic to serve its citizens. Two such virtues are presented here for common consideration; reponsibile conservatism and truth -- not token facts, but truth.

Harvard plays its first four football games at home this year.

UCLA has five night games listed this season. Four of them at home.

Capahas rally to win

Bi-state League title eludes Saints

"I knew when we came down here," said Cape manager Jess Bolen, "that we'd have to score a lot of runs to stay in the game."

His Capahas did just that, scoring six times in the last two frames to erase a four-run Saints lead and win the Bi-State League championship playoffs by a 12-10 score. Both teams were low on pitchers, forced to go with hurlers who hadn't worked recently,and the hitters were in midseason form. Three home runs flew out of spacious V. F. W. Stadium, including a leadoff shot by Capaha right-fielder Troy Vieth in the ninth that tied the score at 10-10. A three-run shot by Jim Saulter, his thrid roundtripper in three playoff games against the Caps, had erased a four-run Cape lead in the fifth.

The visitors scored first, touching Saints starter Mike Foster for four first inning runs. A pair of Saint errors made all of the runs unearned, but it was the Capahas ability to "hit 'em where they ain't" that gave them the early edge.

Sikeston got one run back in the bottom of the first when hot hitting Grant Dambach doubled Rick Eisenbach home. Then, a Terry Kitchen homer to rightfield in the fifth put the Caps' lead at 5-1.

The first two men in the Saints fifth fanned before singles by Eisenbach, Schatzley and a walk to Dambach filled the sacks. Eisenbach, Schatzley and a walk to Dambach filled the sacks. Eisenbach scored on a passed ball and Saulter belted the ball deep to right on the first delivery from starter Tim Smith. Vieth got a glove on the ball after a long run, but it popped out and over the fence or a 5-5 tie game.

The Saints scored a run in the sixth to go ahead 6-5 but Cape tied it again in the seventh on a walk and two singles.

With a 6-6 count entering the seventh, the Saints seemed to put the game away with a four-run rally. Three Cape errors added to a pair of hits gave Sikeston a 10-6 lead.

But, Cape knocked Foster out in the eighth while narrowing the count to 10-9. Then, they went ahead on Vieth's homer, followed by two walks and two hits. The Saints got two baserunners in the ninth, but a doubleplay ended the gameand the season.

"No team deserves the championship if they blow a four-run lead in the late-innings," said a team member. "But we gave 'em a hard time."

Waits tames Royals as Indians win 3rd straight

CLEVELAND (AP) — Red-haired Rick Waits battled both himself and the Kansas City Royals to a standstill Tuesday night, much to the delight of the Cleveland Indians.

Waits, 6-5, walked five batters but gave up only three hits and the Indians came away with a 2-1 victory, their third straight triumph.

The young lefthander, marked for stardom last season by Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson, showed flashes of his usual wildness but tamed it when he had to in stifling the awesome Kansas City bats.

"I felt like Rick would be the surprise of the pitching staff this year," Robinson said. "But he came up with arm trouble in spring training and he's just now coming back to where he should be. I still think he's going to be an outstanding pitcher.

"If we can harness him out there and make him not walk himself out of games, I tell you he'll be a real winner," Robinson added. "I can't remember a game where he was hit out...it's been the walks that have gotten him."

Tuesday night looked gike a rerun for a while as Waits walked Royals leadoff hitter Jim Wohlford to open the game and Wohlford came home moments later on a two-out single by Hal McRae.

However, Boog Powell drove in one run with a sacrifice fly in the first and Ray Fosse singled in the eventual winning run in the fourth, while the Indians provided some sparkling defensive play to keep the Royals at bay.

Leftfielder George Hendrick, who scored the second run off of Dennis Leonard, 15-6, also made two spectacular catches—the second coming on a fly ball near the foul line by John Mayberry after McRae singled leading off the ninth.

Second baseman Duane Kuiper then choked off the rally by robbing Al Cowans of a hit with a diving stop, turning it into a force play at second.

The loss cut Kansas City's margin over the Oakland A's to 7½ games, but Royals Manager Whitey Herzog shrugged it off, saying, "The Indians are just playing good baseball now, and so are we. These two games here have been fine baseball games."

The Indians won 4-3 Monday night, with Dennis Eckersley pitching a seven-hitter. The teams meet for the last time this season tonight, with Andy Hassler, 3-7, going for the Royals against Jim Bibby, 9-5.

NFL seeks to block grid betting

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Lawyers for the National Football League were to present arguments this afternoon in U.S. District Court in an attempt to suppress Delaware's planned pro football betting game.

The NFL has filed a request for an injunction which says the proposed wagering game "injures the integrity of sports, causes fan disinterest or suspicion and undermines the financial investment of the clubs."

The league is arguing its case before Judge Walter K. Stapleton.

Meanwhile, Peter M. Simmons, acting head of the Delaware lottery, said Tuesday he will go ahead with plans for the new game.

Simmons told a news conference officials want to have the lottery in operation by Sept. 1.

"We are continuing because we believe it is something desirable to the people," Simmons said, "and in the opinion of our attorneys we have a proper and legal right to do that."

MU having problem with hurt tackles

"All this talk about Big Eight champions and national champions is meaningless," said Nebraska Football Coach Tom Osborne, adding that after the first scrimmage he is not sure the Huskers will win a game.

"We had a few good individual things but we're a million miles from being a good football team," he said.

Missouri wrapped up two-a-day drills with Coach Al Onfrio still complaining about injuries.

"Most of them have been minor but they seem to hit one position harder and that's defensive tackle," Onofrio said.

Defensive tackles Keith Morrissey and Randy Frisch were on the injury list.

Coach Ellis Rainsberger was happy with the kicking game and his young Kansas State offensive lineman. "We've got some young kids who are reaally starting to come through for us," he said.

Falcone's five-hitter gives Cardinals sweep

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I kept their big guns from hitting it out but I couldn't keep their rabbits from getting on base," said St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Pete Falcone, still pale and looking a little green in the face.

The 23-year-old native of Brooklyn, N.Y. admitted to being "nauseous starting in the eighth inning," blaming the offensive pressure of the Cincinnati Reds, whom he held to five hits in a 4-1 victory. He had to scramble throughout with runners on base in each of the first seven innings.

"I didn't have a curve ball," Falcone said, "so I stayed with the fast ball and moved it everywhere."

The two-game sweep by the Cardinals prompted Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson to look over his shoulder at the second place Los Angeles Dodgers, who trail Cincinnati in the National League West.

"I never had the feeling we had it wrapped up, I don't know why," said Anderson, whose team has lost seven of its last 11 games. "We're just not hitting. The big guns have not been doing the job and it's not the fault of the pitching."

Johnny Bench is 0-15 after Tuesday's loss; George Foster is 0-17 and Tony Perez's lone hit Tuesday gives the first base platoon of Perez and Dan Driessen 1 for 25 in the last four games.

"I'm not changing anything" in the lineup, said Anderson. "They're gonna have to die there."

Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst conceded Cincinnati was slumping, but bouyed by the double victory, said, "I thought we just played real good ball the last two nights."

Keith Hernandez, the rookie St. Louis third baseman whose batting average has soared nearly 100 points the last month, was amazed at getting three hits off loser Pat Zachry, 11-5.

"He was the best pitcher in Triple A ball and I only had two hits off him in the last two years," said Hernandez.

Hernandez and Don Kessinger put back-to-back hits together in the second and fourth innings, the latter producing the go ahead run.

"Don makes real good contact with the ball. They were both hit and run plays," said Hernandez. "Keith has really been hitting the last month," said Kessinger, who has been dropped from second to seventh in the St. Louis lineup.

Pete Rose and Joe Morgan walked in the first, staged a double steal and Rose scored on Foster's groundout.

Ten cut as Big Red make limit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have reduced their Nationasl Football League team roster to 50 players by placing four on waivers, four on the injured reserve list and deactivating two rookies.

Waived were punter Jeff West, cornerback-kick returner John Mosley, wide receiver Cecil Beaird and running back Bill Rudder of Tennessee.

The waiver of West, the team's regular punter last year, means almost certainly that rookie Terry Joyce, who has handled the job during nearly all of the Cardinals preseason games, will get the special-teams assignment.

Ten-year defensive tackle Bob Rowe and rookie running back Randy Walker of Bethune-Cookman went on the injured reserve list along with rookies Lawrence Brame, a linebacker, and offensive lineman Greg Brewton.

Wide receiver Randall Burks and Larry Jameson were deactivated.

Skins pick up pair; Blanda may be through

AP Sports Writer

The veterans are heading for Washington as usual, while the "old man" may finally be heading for home.

Washington Redskins Coach George Allen, in an attempt to repair his porous defense by importing proven talent, obtained safety Jake Scott from the Miami Dolphins and defensive end John Matuszak from the Kansas City Chiefs.

In Oakland, the Raiders reportedly placed the "old man" — 48-year-old George Blanda — on waivers as the National Football League teams, with the exception of newcomers Seattle and Tampa Bay, whittled their rosters to 49 players by midnight Tuesday.

Blanda, who joined the NFL in 1948 with the Chicago Bears as the third-string quarterback behind Sid Luckman and Johnny Lujack, has been sitting on the sidelines this preseason watching rookie Fred Steinfort take over the Raiders' kicking chores.

"I don't care for being here as an insurance policy in case the other kicker can't cut it," said Blanda on Monday, speculating that he would be released. "It's been frustrating and discouraging for me after all the years I've helped this team."

After scoring 2,002 points in 340 games over 26 years, Blanda said it was unlikely any other team would be interested in him. They'd have to "be nuts," he said.

Known for his preference of building teams with veterans, Allen obtained Scott and a high draft choice for defensive back Bryant Salter. Then he sent two draft choices — Allen's favorite trading currency — to Kansas City for Matuszak, a 6-foot-8, 275-pounder who was the first player chosen in the NFL's 1973 college draft.

The Redskins' defense, Allen's pride, has given up 80 points as Washington has lost three of its four preseason games.

Miami, besides sending Scott to the "Over-the-Hill Gang" in Washington, shuffled running back Mercury Morris off to the San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed draft pick. Both Scott and Morris had asked to be traded.

Dolphins Coach Don Shula said Tuesday a tentative agreement has been made to bring veteran Nick Buoniconti out of retirement to shore up Miami's injury-plagued linebacking corps.

Also on the busiest auction day of the season so far, Detroit sent running back Altie Taylor to the Houston Oilers for two undisclosed draft choices; Houston picked up running back Joe Dawkins and offensive tackle Dave Simonson from the New York Giants; the Dallas Cowboys sent wide receiver Cornelius Greene to Seattle, and the Los Rams traded center Ron Kecman and cornerback Gregg Butler to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Eagles win SFSL crown

The Eagles clinched first place in the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League last night with an easy 6-1 victory over Eby's Distributing at the complex.

John Chessor fired a three-hitter for the Eagles, who needed only one victory in their last two games to win the flag. They will play the Bank of Sikeston tonight in the final game of the season. A Bank of Sikeston victory would assure them of third place in the league.

Football signup Saturday

Registration for the Sikeston Jaycee Little League football program will be held this Saturday, August 28 at the Sikeston High School cafetorium.

Boys in the sixth and seventh grades who weigh less than 155 pounds will be eligible for the program. Players must weigh in at the registration session, which will be from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

An insurance fee of $8.00 must also be paid at the registration session.

New Madrid Vo-Tech to begin Sept. 9

HOWARDVILLE — The New Madrid County R-1 Vocational Technical Skills Center plans to open instruction in adult evening classes Sept. 9. The classes are scheduled to meet weekly for three-hour sessions from 6 to 9 p.m. each Thursday.

Classes starting April 14, 1977, will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights and end on May 19, 1977.

A minimum of 10 enrollees is necessary to open a class, and the 10 must be adults presently working in the field of instructional choice and needing instruction to improve or upgrade skills, or they must be people presently unemployed desiring to develop job entry skills.

Once the minimum of 10 persons meeting either of these criteria is reached, courses are open to all up to the maximum that can be handled.

In each course, a fee is charged to cover cost of materials used in the instruction, and the fees are payable when the course begins.

An organizational meeting for each class will be held the first night scheduled for the class to meet. Individuals may pursue the entire yearly offering or enter on starting night in any course.

Instructional areas, course, length and starting dates include:

Graphics — General graphics I, nine weeks, Sept. 9; general graphics II, nine weeks, Nov. 11; general graphics III, nine weeks, Feb. 3, 1977; general graphics IV, nine weeks, April 14, 1977.

Marston Day plans set for Sept. 5

MARSTON—The second annual Marston Day is set for Sept. 5. Initiated last year with excellent response, the day has been designated solely for the purpose of encouraging former residents to return to Marston during the Labor Day weekend to renew friendships, get acquainted with new residents and meet former residents who will be returning for the affair.

No special activities are planned, except that the noon meal will be served by the civic organizations, and families are asked to join in the fellowship and visiting at the school grounds.

It is requested that children attending be accompanied by their parents.

There will be a display of old photographs of people and places in and about Marston. Persons who might have such pictures are asked to bring them to the gathering, along with their own lawn chairs.

SCARC to begin fund drive

DEXTER— The Stoddard County Association for Retarded Citizens will start its annual fundraising campaign drive throughout the county Aug. 30.

Marjean Mayer and Emma Adams, co-chairmen of the drive said, "Together you and I can help mentally retarded people." This is also the national campaign theme.

Pat Evans is the house to house chairman for Dexter. Mrs. Joe Weber is the business solicitations director for this year. The town's publicity chairman is Shirlene Stubbs.

The Bernie campaign chairman is Judy Crump. Margaret Jones is handling the Advance area. Dale Williams is in charge of the Bell City area.

Elizabeth Petty is chairman of the Essex area. Raymond Duffie and Bertie Cook are the Bloomfield business chairmen. Beth Welborn will be in charge of the roadblock donations in Bloomfield.

Mrs. Mayer said donations will be "greatly appreciated." She added that all the money collected will be put to good use.

Mrs. Mayer has statistics that show three per cent or more than six million people are believed to be mentally retarded. More than 100,000 babies are born every year mentally retarded. The report showed that by 1980 with the growing population, 6.8 million people are expected to be mentally retarded unless far reaching preventive measures are taken.

The report went on to say that mental retardation affects all religions, races and nationalities. Mental retardation is four times more common than rheumatic heart disease, nine times more common than cerebral palsy and 15 times more common than blindness. One of every 10 persons is involved with mental retardation in some way.

Malden man is 'silver haired legislature'

JEFFERSON CITY— Malden Mayor Sparrel Davis was elected as speaker of the House of Represenatives for the 1976 Silver Haired Legislature while attending a preliminary session here Friday.

Also attending the session was Clara Sample of Advance who was appointed to the Consumer Affairs Committee. The preliminary session, held in preparation for the general session which will take place Oct. 7, 8 and 9, attracted over 150 persons from around the state.

The session was addressed by Speaker of the House Richard Rabbitt, and Senate President Pro Tem William Cason. Additional training was provided by representatives of The National Retied Teachers Association and The American Association of Retired Persons.

The purpose of the Silver Haired Legislature is to give older Missourians an opportunity to express legislative concerns and develop an ongoing educational program which will promote involvement of older persons in the legislative process.

Other Southeast Missourians attening were Ethel Baumgardner of Poplar Bluff, Wallace Gagnepain of Perryville, Wayne Miley of Winona, Hardy Martin of Doniphon and Ancil Swinford of Farmington.

Thefts probed

BENTON (Special) — The Scott County Sheriff's Department is investigating two separate thefts that occurred over the weekend.

Authorities said a 12-gauge shotgun, a rifle and 19-inch color television was taken from the mobile home of Kenny Miller of rural Commerce sometime Friday or Saturday. Thieves gained entrance by breaking the lock on the front door.

A 21-inch television was reported taken over the weekend from the home of Carlie Hankin of rural Morley.

DOG MULTIPLES

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Paul Felth and his family got more than they bargained for when they acquired a free dog through a newspaper advertisement recently.

A few weeks later, the St. Bernard, named Brandy, gave birth to 14 puppies. One died soon after the birth.

When they got Brandy, nobody was aware she was pregnant, said Mrs. Felth.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 25, the 238th day of 1976. There are 128 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1944, in World War II, Allied troops liberated Paris.

On this date:

In 1689, Iroquois Indians attacked Montreal and killed its 200 inhabitants.

In 1718, French immigrants founded New Orleans.

In 1883, a volcanic eruption in the Dutch East Indies created tidal waves that took about 36,000 lives.

In 1921, the World War I peace treaty between the United States and Germany was signed in Berlin.

In 1941, British and Soviet troops invaded Iran in World War II.

In 1967, the leader of the American Nazi Party, George Rockwell, was shot to death in Arlington, Va.

Ten years ago: Teen-age Red Guards in Peking, China defaced a Roman Catholic academy, and the Communist government ordered the institution closed.

Five years ago: The Communists hit U.S. installations at Cam Ranh Bay, Da Nang and four other bases in South Vietnam.

One year ago: The Greek government commuted the death sentences of former President George Papadopoulos and two others who had led a military coup in 1967.

Today's birthdays: Alabama Go. George Wallace is 57 years old. Composer and conductor Leonard Bernstein is 58.

Thought for today: This will remain the land of the free only so long as it is the home of the brave — Elmer Davis, writer and radio commentator, 1890-1958.

Sikeston Public Schools to open Sept. 6

August 25, 1926

Warren Kingsbury is on the job with The Standard, arriving Monday.

New Madrid--Mrs. Paul Mueller and children of Jackson are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Riley, sr.

Sand crushed the life from the body of A. D. Harris Wednesday, while hundreds of people stood by helplessly watching the efforts of the men who toiled grimly away in an effort to get to the trapped man before death set in. The accident took place at 4 o'clock Wednesday in the ditch which the Rowan-Rickards Construction Co., is digging and laying sewer pipes in on East Center street, immediately in front of the Sikeston Electric Laundry. Harris, 28, was down in the 14-foot ditch laying tile sewer pipe, when the cave-in occurred.

The Sikeston Public Schools will open September 6, with registration of pupils in the morning. The faculty of the schools this year will be composed as follows: Roy V. Ellise, superintendent; J. H. Moore, coach and principal; Mrs. Josephine Veith, Miss Isabelle Hess, H. F. Sherwood, M. L. Granneman, Miss Georgia Jennings, Miss Emma Morehead, Miss Frances Burch, Miss Margaret Besgrove, and Miss Sarah Wilson.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Avelle Williams, Tuesday, a daughter. Mrs. Williams and daughter are in Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau.

The Sikeston schools will open for the 1946-47 term Monday, September 2, at all buildings, Supt. T. E. Stallings announced today.

Some 600 students of the Matthews Consolidated District schools reported for classes Monday, August 19, the date set for all schools to open, only to be sent home for an indefinite period, due to the outbreak of an infantile paralysis epidemic. A few days previously, little Caroline Kay Veeson, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Veeson of Matthews, was taken to St. Francis Hospital, seriously ill, and Sunday night her case was diagnosed as infantile paralysis, by physicians there.

The Matthews Consolidated School District board of education will meet Monday night, in conference with a number of contractors, in an effort to get construction started on its proposed new $96,000 school building.

Airport notes. Geo. Martin and Glenn Williams flew to Cape Girardeau on business Wednesday.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need some information about my father, who is 63 years old, 5 feet 7 and 180 pounds. His blood pressure is 165 over 90. During a recent examination an X ray showed calcium building up in the aorta. Will you please give us your advice on this condition. He takes medicine for his blood pressure and eats a fat free, no salt diet.

DEAR READER — The aorta is the large artery directly connected to the heart. It carries all the oxygenated blood out of the heart to the whole body. It arches above the heart and courses down along the spine until it divides into the arteries to the legs.

As people get older there is a tendency for the wall of this artery to calcify. This usually follows a build up of fatty-cholesterol substances in the wall of the artery — the process in arteries we call atherosclerosis. Because the aorta is very large the build up in it does not cause a blockage to the circulation, the way it does in smaller arteries to the leg, heart, brain or other parts of the body.

Normally the aorta is very elastic. As blood squirts out of the heart into the aorta it just stretches to accomodate the increased blood. Then it contracts by its own elasticity, helping to propel the blood along for its own normal circulation. This elasticity helps to keep the top blood pressure reading from becoming so high. But, as the elasticity is lost the aorta behaves more like a rigid pipe. When all the blood squirts out into the rigid aorta, the pressure rises immediately and higher than it would if the aorta were still elastic. So, your father's blood pressure is 165 when in a younger man it would be perhaps less than 130. This does increase the work of the heart some.

Because high blood pressure is associated with an increased risk of heart attacks and strokes, I agree it should be treated. Moderate elevation such as your father has does not require heroic efforts though as the treatment may be worse than the disease. Your father would do well to decrease the rate of development of fatty-cholesterol deposits in other arteries in his body. He needs to restrict his calories enough to make this possible.

I would also advise a daily walking program to help maintain his level of physical fitness and help him reduce. Everyone who can, should have an exercise program, even if it is just walking, to go along with a diet program when they need to lose weight.

You can't judge by pounds alone, but there is a good possibility that your father needs to lose as much as 30 pounds of fat. The program should be to go on a restricted calorie program with walking and keep on losing fat until there is no significant amount of fat under his skin, around his waist or other locations. It will take time but he should get started with such a program without delay. If he likes to swim he should be encouraged to do so.

To give you more information on blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter, number 1-8, Blood Pressure. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it.

Dexter hospital administration administrator resigns

DEXTER—L.J. Daniel, administrator of Dexter Memorial Hospital since early 1974, unexpectedly submitted his resignation Thursday night at a meeting of the hospital board.

John William Ringer, chairman of the hospital board, confirmed the resignation, saying that Daniel submitted the resignation at the meeting Thursday night.

The resignation reportedly is effective Oct. 1.

Reasons for the resignation apparently centered around Daniel's health.

The hospital said Daniel is on vacation, and he could not be reached for comment.

D.A.E.O.C. sponsors trip to Six Flags

SCOTT CITY— The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation office sponsored and financed a trip to the Six Flags Over Mid-America amusement park Friday for children of low income families. The group of 42 children and seven chaperones departed at 8 a.m. and returned about 10 p.m. The children and volunteer chaperones making this trip were from Oran, Chaffee, Benton, Commerce, Kelso, New Hamburg, Perkins, Rockview, Painton, Illmo and Scott City.

Mary Bain, coordinator of the Scott City DAEOC Center, made all arrangements for the trip. Personnel assisted in recruitment of the children. This is the fifth year a summer youth recreation program has been sponsored by DAEOC.

Memorial plans for the Litton's are announced

Family and friends of U.S. Representative Jerry Litton have established a memorial fund in his honor at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Litton and his family died in a plane crash Aug. 3 after he won the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Litton, who earned a degree in agricultural journalism at UMC in 1961, is well remembered among faculty and staff, particularly in the College of Agriculture.

His identity there predates his college days through his connection with the vocational agriculture student organization, Future Farmers of America.

John Sweeney, director of the UMC Development Fund, said that initial gifts already have been made to UMC in Litton's memory.

Proposals for the memorial gift include using it to encourage development and leadership potential in UMC students by providing scholarships, prizes or recognition awards or to fund specific activities which afford opportunities for student leadership on or off campus.

Litton's rural background and leadership which he provided in Future Farmers, in agriculture and in government, will be recognized by giving preference in selection of recipients to those who show promise of leadership and service in these areas.

The recipients and the number and amount of scholarships, prizes or awards or other use of income from the memorial will be decided by a committee designated by the dean of the College of Agriculture, Elmer Kiehl.

Such awards will be identified in bulletins and announcements as the Jerry Litton leadership scholarships, prizes and awards.

Sweeney said that individuals may make tax-free contributions to the fund through the University Development Fund, 310 Jesse Hall, University of Missouri-Columbia.

Surfacing of streets to begin

MALDEN — Blacktopping of several city streets and parking lots should begin in "two or three weeks," according to City Clerk Roscoe Thornton.

Dewey Bryant Asphalt Contractor was the successful bidder at $2.05 per square yard for the project. The bid was approved at the last City Council meeting.

Thornton says the parking lots slated for paving are the city parking lot at the corner of South Decatur and East Main streets, the ambulance parking lot at the corner of North Decatur and East Main and the Malden Community Building lot.

Streets scheduled for blacktopping include:

West Francis, from Highway 25 to the railroad tracks; Walter Drive from Sidney to Highway 25; Royal Drive, from Stokeland to Highway 25; West Laclede, from Route AB to Madison; Sidney, from Royal Drive to Barrett; Moreland, from the alley east of the General Baptist Church to Highway 25; McDougal, from the alley east of the General Baptist Church to Ashley; Ashley, from Barrett to Moreland, Pine, from Towery to Alberta; Burkhart, from Stokeland to Alberta; Third Avenue, from South Ohio to Illinois; Illinois, from Third Avenue to the end of Illinois; South Indiana, from West Second to the end of South Indiana.

West Second, from South Ohio to South Indiana; gravel road, from the railroad tracks to Highway 25; Broadwater Road, from Stokeland to Charlotte; Morelan Drive (two-lane divided) to Benton; and North Stokeland, from Broadwater Road north.
